BREST-LITOVSK FALLS BEFORE TEUTONIC ARMY

New and Important Victory for Austro-Germans in Drive Against Russians.

Squadron of 62 French Airmen Drop Shower of Big Shells on German Arms Factory.

Today's War News Given in Summary.

Brest-Litovsk, the great Russian stronghold, which has been the apparent chief goal of the Austro-Germans in their advance after the taking of Warsaw, has been captured by the Teutonic forces. The Russians gave up the fortress, the Berlin official statement says, after the works on the western and northwestern front had been stormed and the attacking forces had succeeded in entering the central defenses.

A great enveloping movement has been in progress for some time past, which threatened to cut off Brest-Litovsk from the east. Recent semi-official intimations from Petrograd have been that the Russians were preparing to give up the stronghold.

An air raid of unprecedented proportions so far as reported has been made by the French, who sent 62 aeroplanes over a German arms factory to the north of Saarlouis, in Rheinish, Prussia. More than 150 bombs, thirty of them of large calibre, were dropped "with precision," the French statement says:

Japan is to establish new factories for the manufacture of shells as part of her plan to give increased assistance to her allies in the war advices from Tokio state.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The Russian fortress of Brest-Litovsk has been captured by Teutonic forces. Announcement to this effect was made today by the German army headquarters staff.

German and Austro-Hungarian troops stormed the works on the western and northwestern front and succeeded last night in entering the center fortress. The Russians, the statement adds, then gave up the fortress.

The Russian fortress of Brest-Litovsk had been considered one of the strongest fortresses in Europe and was the southern base of the second Russian line of defenses to which the armies of Grand Duke Nicholas retreated after the fall of Warsaw. The citadel is situated on the Bug river and at the junction of several railways, 131 miles south of Grodno and 120 miles due east of the Polish capital.

The storming of Brest-Litovsk by the Teutonic forces is probably the most important military achievement since the fall of Warsaw three weeks ago today. The town, which had a population

OFFICER PETGEN WINS A FOOTRACE

Officer Nick Petgen, of the police department, won a hot footrace with Charlie Harkenrider, a police character, Thursday forenoon, when Harkenrider broke away at the corner of Jefferson and Clay streets, where the officer had him. John Van Allen, also a police character, and one other man in charge while Motorcycle Officer Young, who had arrested the trio, went to a patrol box to call the wagon. Harkenrider is big and rangy, while Officer Petgen is short and stocky. Harkenrider ran down Washington street to Clinton, where he was overhauled by the short-legged but high-geared copper. Harkenrider and the other two were drunk and were on an aimless campaign for work cleaning cisterns. At a residence on Clay street, near Washington, Harkenrider's ruffianly conduct alarmed a young matron and she telephoned the police. Officer Young was dispatched and found the three men not far away and arrested them. He asked Officer Petgen, who was patrolling his beat near, to hold the men while he called the wagon and Harkenrider thought the opportunity good for a getaway.

Thanks Governors for Administration Support

Boston, Aug. 26.—The duty of the state in dealing with the inmates of its prisons was the general topic of discussion at today's session of the governors' conference. Two of the governors, E. F. Dunne, of Illinois, and W. P. Hunt, of Arizona, had prepared formal addresses on the abolition of capital punishment and former Governor Cole L. Blease, of South Carolina, spoke on the duty and responsibility of the governor in dealing with prisoners. A review of the state militia, seven thousand strong, was the feature of the afternoon.

The thanks of the administration for the resolution adopted by the governors on Thursday pledging support to President Wilson was extended to the conference today by Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory.

Mr. Gregory said that at the present time the administration felt the need of being in close touch with the states, and such an encouraging expression as was sent to the president was greatly appreciated, especially as it came from a body in which party lines had been eliminated.

New and Satisfactory Undersea Program Expected from Berlin.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, conferred with Secretary Lansing nearly an hour this morning and while both refused to discuss their meeting in any way, it was understood the ambassador reiterated that it was not the intent of the German government that any American lives should be lost on the Arabic.

Harvey A. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Miller, of 415 Buchanan street and a member of Company E, Eleventh infantry of the United States regulars stationed along the Mexican border at Douglas, Arizona, died at a hospital in that city Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock from blood poison developing from a pimple on the nose. After leaving the institution a pimple developed on his nose and kept growing larger each day. On August 19 he was taken back to the hospital at which time the doctor stated that there was little hopes for his recovery, the poison having gone through his entire system.

Born in Sheldon, he moved to Fort Wayne with his parents when he was yet quite young and attended school at St. Patrick's for a short time. He then took employment with the Independent Five and Ten Cents store where he worked for nearly a year. Previous to his enlistment he was employed by the Pennsylvania railroad for two years in the capacity of a fireman. Besides his grief stricken parents he is survived by three sisters and three brothers—Mrs.

SHORN WHILE THEY SLEEP

Gladys Archer and Anna Ott Victim of Outrage in Their Home.

TRESSES OF BOTH ARE SHEARED OFF

Mysterious Night Crime is Committed at Archer Home, Wells Street.

A mysterious outrage that the detective force of the police department is laboring hard to unravel, was committed at the home of W. S. Archer, 1640 Wells street, some time Wednesday night, when an unknown miscreant entered the bed chamber occupied by Miss Gladys Archer, aged 18, and Miss Anna Ott, aged 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ott, 435 Huffman street, and employed in the Archer home as a maid, and cut the hair from the heads of both young ladies.

Neither girl knew of the outrage of which they were the victims until they awoke at 6 o'clock Thursday morning.

The police were notified and Motorcycle Officer Elmer Young was detailed to make a preliminary investigation and later the case was turned over to Detective Sergeant Joseph Brennan. Some slight clues have been obtained, but the mystery of the affair is proving difficult.

Girls Slept Together.

There was company at the Archer home Wednesday night and to provide accommodations for all Gladys Archer and Miss Ott together occupied the same bed in an upstairs chamber in the northeast part of the house. They retired about 10 o'clock and were soon asleep. Miss Archer says she slept soundly throughout the night and was in no wise disturbed, but Miss Ott says that some time during the night she was partly awakened by the consciousness that her hair was being handled. She thought Miss Archer had hold of it and drowsily wondered why, but did not

BUD GIBSON ENTERS A PLEA OF GUILTY

Special Venire of 200 to Get Jury for Trial of Mayor Bell.

Indianapolis, Aug. 26.—Bud Gibson, who was indicted with Thomas Taggart, democratic national committeeman for Indiana, Mayor Joseph E. Bell and others charged with election irregularities here in 1914, pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge today. His trial was set to begin next Monday.

James (Bud) Gibson had been represented by the same firm of attorneys, appearing for Mr. Taggart, but told Special Judge W. H. Eichhorn that he did not care to have them represent him further. A member of the firm appeared and withdrew as counsel for the defendant.

Gibson's bond was fixed at $5,000 and he was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

"I want to go to jail with the sheriff for protection, said Gibson, after the court had fixed his bond. "I do not want to be bothered by any one in connection with the case now."

Prosecutor A. J. Rucker announced after Gibson had pleaded guilty that he would move to dismiss the indictment charging Gibson with fraud in the primary of May 5, 1914, on which the defendant was to have gone to trial next Monday.

After the Gibson proceedings Special Judge W. H. Eichhorn announced that a special venire of 200 would be drawn tomorrow from which a jury to hear the trial of Mayor Bell would be selected. This action was taken after Prosecutor Rucker had stated that he was willing to leave the case in the hands of Judge Eichhorn without a jury. Judge Eichhorn said he did not wish to assume the responsibility. Mayor Bell's trial is set to begin Sept. 7.

Gibson is the seventh to plead guilty to the indictment, six having entered similar pleas when they were arraigned in July. Sentence in each case has been withheld.

ARREST IS MADE IN TOLLESTON MURDER

Slain Lutheran Pastor Was Preparing to Attend Convention in Fort Wayne Soon.

Gary, Ind., Aug. 26.—With the arrest today of George Schneider, a member of the Gary Saxon-Verein in connection with the murder of the Rev. Edmund Keyser, whose body was found near his parsonage in Tolleston, a suburb, Tuesday night, the police announced they practically had abandoned the theory that the German pastor may have been slain because of his pro-German utterances.

Schneider's face was cut and bruised. He is said to have told a relative he was in a fight Tuesday night. The police declared his story unsatisfactory.

Answers the Description.

"Schneider answers the description of the man we have been looking for," Chief of Police Heintz said. "The prisoner has been a member of the murdered man's congregation at St. John's Evangelical church, Tolleston, but is declared to have been his enemy. Rev. Mr. Kayser it is said, had incurred the displeasure of members of the Saxon-Verein because of his opposition to the plans of that organization."

Thomas E. Knotts, former mayor of this city, declared the murder was "the most dastardly crime ever committed in Gary. Mr. Kayser was very liberal. It is true he was pro-German and had no friendliness for President Wilson. However, he was strictly honest and upright, in fact, too honest for some people."

Planned to Visit Fort Wayne.

George Cummerow, counsel for Edmund Kayser, was shocked when he heard of the assassination of the Tolleston minister. "I was to meet Mr. Kayser yesterday morning in connection with church business affairs. We planned to go to Fort Wayne to attend the state convention of the German-American Alliance and it was our intention to boost Gary for the 1916 convention."

U. S. SOLDIERS GUARD STREETS OF EL PASO

El Paso, Texas, Aug. 26.—El Paso today awoke to find its streets bordering the Rio Grande guarded by United States soldiers as a result of a report circulated last night that an uprising of Huerta, Carranza and Orozco factions had been planned for the early hours of the morning.

Mexicans were not permitted to cross the international bridge from 11 o'clock last night until early today, and no American was allowed to cross to Juarez. Extra guards were ordered out at Fort Bliss, where Gen. Hueta is being held. Companies of infantry were posted at the international bridge, the railroad viaduct and all strategic points.

A conference of city and county officials, representatives of the department of justice, the federal marshal and General Pershing was held yesterday. After the conference General Pershing announced he was prepared to meet any uprising that might start. During the night soldiers were hurried to their camps by the provost marshal and rushed off to their posts in automobiles. The police halted and searched Mexicans in down town streets. There was no excitement in the city, although an under current of uneasiness was apparent.

Occasional shots were fired by the policemen in halting Mexicans found in the lower quarters of the city in order to search them.

Later, he went into business with Joseph Allgeier, conducting a fruit and confectionery store at Calhoun and Lewis streets. He left this city last year for his former home in Italy. The letter states that a splinter of a shell struck him, causing his death, and that he died decorated with three medals of valor. Soon after entering the army he was promoted to captain.

275 DEATH TOLL IN TEXAS STORM

Careful Checking Up Shows Frightful Total in the Disaster.

Houston, Texas, Aug. 26.—According to a careful checking up today of all published figures based on official statements from the cities and larger towns and localities involved and accounting for all persons living, as missing, who subsequently have been found safe, the tropical storm that visited the Texas coast ten days ago took 275 lives, 206 on land and 69 on water. In addition the same list showed 12 other persons still uncounted for.

The following list shows where the storm exacted the heaviest toll of dead: Galveston island, 42; city of Galveston, 10; Dredge Houston, 4; Texas City, 2; Dredge San Bernard, 19; Anahaus, 17; tug Helen Henderson, 16; Virginia Point, 11; surf side, 19; Houston, 3. In addition to these it is known that other persons lost their lives in small towns along the coast and in country districts swept by the storm. The complete list of dead probably never will be known, as scores of unidentified victims were buried.

LOCAL GARDENERS ARE HARD HIT THIS YEAR

They Never Before Experienced a Season Like This One.

While thousands and even millions of poor, unfortunate human beings are actually suffering from starvation and want in far corners of the earth and while thousands are lacking the necessities of life in Europe on account of the upheaval in the economic system brought about by the war, vegetable crops are so large in the Fort Wayne district that there is scarcely a market for them. In some localities it is reported that heads of cabbage as well as some other vegetables are being plowed under.

Gardeners and truck farmers near Fort Wayne never before experienced a season like the present one. Abundant rains have produced a record-breaking crop of vegetables. About all that was necessary this season was to plant the seeds and nature attended to the rest.

Gardeners report that the exceptionally low prices which they are receiving for produce this year together with the great loss which they have had on account of rains will make the present season the most unprofitable in the history of the gardening business.

FARMERS OF ADAMS TOWNSHIP TO MEET

A wheat production meeting will be held in the Center school Friday evening, August 27, under the auspices of the Adams Township Farmers' club at which time Clarence Henry, agricultural agent of the county, will be the principal speaker. About the middle of September, however, Mr. Henry expects to take a two weeks' vacation, the first he has had since taking charge of the work here. With his family he will visit in Ohio and Pennsylvania, probably making the trip in his automobile.

FIRST FIRE IN FORT WAYNE IN 248 HOURS

Department is Called to the Plant of the Central Furniture Co.

The first fire in 248 hours, or over ten days, was discovered at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the plant of the Central Furniture Manufacturing company in the rear of 215 West Main street. For over ten days not a single alarm of fire had been turned in.

The blaze threatened to do great damage. The loss is estimated at $100. No damage was done to the building, which is owned by Edward Helmke.

The Central Furniture company was recently incorporated with H. R. and A. W. Spurling and C. W. Sperry as members of the firm. Wednesday afternoon one of the Spurling brothers was engaged in taking out a partition on the second floor and, leaving a lighted blowtorch near a pile of lumber, had gone out for a few minutes. When he returned he found the entire second floor in a mass of flames. An alarm was immediately turned in and the prompt response of the fire department prevented what might have been a most serious conflagration.

The chemical from No. 3 engine house was called to the home of Miss Emily Wright Hood, 1229 West Wayne street, at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, but the services of the firemen were not needed. Miss Hood had set fire to some papers in the fireplace, causing a collection of wasps' nests which lined the chimney to ignite. No damage was done.

The fire department was summoned late Wednesday afternoon to a two-story frame residence at 752 West Superior street owned by Willis Pearse and occupied by W. F. Patton. Sparks from the chimney had set fire to the roof, causing a damage estimated at $10.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

WETS TO HELP THE DRYS IN CONTEST

Will Sign Remonstrances Against Saloons in Outskirts of Hartford City as Threatened.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 26.—The meeting of the dry forces which was held last evening at the United Brethren church, proved to be a very successful one and there were a large number of those present who signed the remonstrance at that time.

There seems to be a changing of sentiment in Hartford City in favor of the dry cause. This is because there are many persons who voted wet last time who believe now that the city has gone dry, it should remain dry. These persons are planning to sign the remonstrance. A number of manufacturers have taken a stand against the saloons in the out township. B. A. Van Winkle, manager of the Hartford City Paper mills and president of the Taxpayers' league at the last election, today announced that he was opposed to saloons in the outskirts of the city and that, if to keep them out it was necessary to do so, he would sign the remonstrance. Other manufacturers have sent for copies of the remonstrance and will do all they can to assist in getting their men to sign. Besides the remonstrance, an election will also be called. The purpose of having both is that the granting of the license may be temporarily stopped by the remonstrance route and permanently stopped by the petition.

FORTIETH ANNUAL MEETING.

Old Settlers of Maumee Valley to Assemble in Hicksville Sept. 3.

Hicksville, O., Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the program committee of the Old Settlers of the Maumee Valley association it was decided to hold the fortieth annual meeting on Friday, September 3, 1915. The various committees were appointed. It was decided to hold the meeting in the forenoon at one of the churches. Dinner will be served at the fair grounds. Immediately after this various contests will be held for those so inclined. The regular afternoon program will be held in the grandstand. All old settlers and everyone invited to be there. Four bouquets will be awarded; one to the oldest lady and one to the oldest gentleman present; and one to the lady and one to the gentleman present residing in this section the greatest number of years. This organization is taking steps to incorporate itself into the Defiance County Historical society.

YOUTHFUL DRIVER TURNS AUTO.

Hicksville, O., Aug. 26.—Quite a serious accident occurred about a mile north of Six Corners near the home of David Deardorff, when Elder Humbarger with his son Randy were out in their Ford. The former was learning to drive and was running about fifteen miles per hour when he lost control and run into the ditch which is about three-foot deep at that point. The car was turned completely over against the fence. The son escaped but the father was pinned under the car, and it was necessary to lift it up before he could be taken out. He was injured about the head and his left arm was broken near the wrist. The top and windshield on the car were broken.

DIES IN HER SONS' ARMS.

Huntington, Ind., Aug. 26.—A sudden attack of heart trouble coming on suddenly caused the death of Mrs. Laura Emily Davis, 56 years old, wife of Superintendent Dillon Davis, of the county infirmary, in the family apartments in the infirmary building. Coroner R. S. Galbreath was called and pronounced it a case of death due to heart failure. Members of the family who happened to be near at the time noticed that Mrs. Davis seemed to be acting strangely. When they saw that she appeared to be fainting, two sons, Claude and Edson, picked her up and started for the porch thinking that the fresh air might revive her. It was the opinion of the elder brother, Claude, that his mother was dead before they reached the open air.

PIONEER PHYSICIAN DIES.

Waterloo, Ind., Aug. 26.—Dr. Almond S. Farrington, of this city, one of the pioneer physicians of DeKalb county, is dead at his home here, at the age of 83 years. He was born at Jamestown, N. Y., and came of ravolutionary ancestry. His parents came to DeKalb county in 1849. He was a student in Hiram college in Ohio at the time James A. Garfield, later president of the United States, was president of the institution of learning. He was graduated from a medical college in Cincinnati in 1860, practiced for a time in Norwalk, O., and then came to Waterloo, residing on a farm near here and combining agricultural pursuits with the practice of his profession.

CLOTH FOR ITALIAN ARMY.

Columbia City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Two looms at the woolen mill ran all night to get out a couple of pieces of cloth for the Italian army, and the cloth was put through the finishing processes immediately and shipped at once by express for final approval of the agents in this country before the mill here opens up full blast on the big order. While samples had been previously submitted and approved the mill managers felt that it would be better to send a couple of pieces before turning out any great quantity of the cloth. The contract of the mill here calls for the delivery of 20,000 yards by Oct. 6. The carding and spinning departments will run night and day until the order is completed.

MONTPELIER LADY A BRIDE.

Montpelier, Ind., Aug. 26.—Relatives in this city have received word of the announcement and the marriage of Miss Marguerite DeVore Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Turner to Mr. Edgar Curtis Parmenter. The marriage occurred Saturday, August 21, at Topeka, Kas. The announcement reads that the couple will be at home after September 15 at 642 South street, Springfield, Mo. The groom is not known extensively in this city, but the bride formerly resided here with her parents. Several years ago, however, they moved west where they have since been located.

TUBERCULOSIS KILLS WOMAN.

Columbia City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Mrs. Mary Bentz, of Jefferson township, is dead at her home from tuberculosis of the stomach. Mrs. Bentz had been suffering from this ailment for a number of years, but took to her bed only ten days ago and never rallied thereafter. She was united in marriage December 25, 1905, to Marion Bentz, of Jefferson township, and they resided on a farm near Laud until her death. She had no children and only the husband survives. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hollenbaugh, both of whom survive, and was 32 years old.

NO INDICTMENT LIKELY.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Prosecutor Lee Sprague stated today that there probably will be no indictment brought against Mrs. Emma Baker, the Montpelier woman whose alleged complicity in the death of little Dena Baker who died last Wednesday, has been the subject of investigation by the authorities for the past few days. It was announced at Montpelier that the whereabouts of Myrtle Denny, the witness who is sought, had been found to be in Illinois and that she would be brought to Montpelier.

HOPE TO PREVENT FLOODS.

Portland, Ind., Aug. 26.—Initial steps looking to the changing of the course of the Miller branch, that causes much flood damage here annually, were taken by the city council, when a petition was filed under the flood prevention act asking that the council petition the circuit court to refer the matter to engineers to devise a means of obviating the necessity of the stream through the city. The council, not knowing the probable cost of the proposed plan, deferred action until the city engineer can make an estimate.

FORT WAYNE BAKER IS HURT.

Columbia City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Charles Jones, a baker from Fort Wayne, who was bumming his way to Valparaiso, where he says that he had a position in sight, was ejected from a Nickel Plate freight train on which he was riding at South Whitley and as he alighted on the ground his left leg was broken just above the ankle. Both bones were broken and one of them protruded through the flesh and one in the ankle was dislocated, thus making a complex fracture.

RUN DOWN BY THE CARS.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 26.—While working on the right of way of the Pennsylvania, James Ollie, an employe of the company came near losing his life. He was working on the tracks in the eastern part of the city when a switch engine backed a number of cars in on the siding on which he was working, knocking him down. The train knocked him off the tracks, only passing over his foot, which was crushed. He was taken to the Van Wert county hospital.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 26.—The United Brethren church, in this city, has completed the most successful year in its history. Rev. M. F. Dawson, pastor, has gone to the annual conference which will be held at University Heights, Indianapolis. The report which he takes to the conference shows that the membership of the church has been more than doubled during the past year and that the financial condition is also excellent.

PASTOR IS RETURNED.

Kendallville, Ind., Aug. 26.—Rev. I. M. McVey will remain as pastor of the Kendallville Methodist Protestant church for another year at least. The petition of his charge that he be returned was granted by the Indiana conference, which has just closed its annual session in Jonesboro. This will be welcome news to his congregation as well as the general public at large, for he has been an efficient pastor and an agreeable sort of a man to meet.

MAY HAVE BEEN LOST IN STORM.

Kendallville, Ind., Aug. 26.—Telegrams were sent to New Orleans yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Barnett, of this city, to inquire as to the safety of the United Fruit company's steamer Morrowijine, reported lost in the recent gulf storm, on which their son, John W. Barnett, sailed recently from Honduras, Central America. The steamer is now twelve days overdue at port and has practically been given up for lost.

The attending physician said Tuesday afternoon she will recover in a few weeks.

Pritchard and Rev. and Mrs. Millard Pell, departed Wednesday for Twin Lakes, near Howe, where they will spend a ten days' outing. With them they took a half carload of baggage including cots, tents, and a complete camping outfit. This is the third successive season the boys have spent at these lakes and they anticipate the usual good time.

Edison, while at work in one of his laboratories at Silver Lake, near Newark, was painfully, though not seriously burned about the eyes by the accidental splash of a potash solution yesterday. Mr. Edison was leaning over a filter when his assistant opened the wrong stop cock and the solution was thrown into his face. IN AUTOMOBILE SMASHUP.

It Whirled Into the Ditch.

THE INCREASING number of automobiles brings also increased probability of accidents, both to the pedestrian and to the occupant of the car.

Do you carry accident insurance? If not, why not?

The Fort Wayne Mercantile Accident Association offers you splendid protection at a small cost—not to exceed $10 per year. Among those who are automobile accident victims and who are mighty glad they had portection in the Mercantile is John A. Kalbfleisch, traveling representative of the International Business College. Mr. Kalbfleisch met with his accident in July, 1914, while spinning over a country road in Ohio. His machine skidded, whirled into the ditch, turned turtle and pinned him underneath. When rescued from the wreck, Mr. Kalbfleisch was found to have suffered from a bad break of the bone of the right forearm close to the shoulder joint. He was disabled several weeks and received from the Mercantile $321.42 indemnity.

Another auto victim was J. R. Hafstrom, of Morocco, Ind., whose accident was almost a duplicate of that of Mr. Kalbfleisch. There were no broken bones, however, though Mr. Hafstrom received $140 from the Mercantile.

Any reader of this paper who does not carry accident insurance should apply at once for membership in the Mercantile. Phone 2494 or call at the office in the People's Trust Building. The safe way to do it, is to do it now. Tomorrow may be your unfortunate day.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Mark 9:35-50.

35 And he sat down and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them,

37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

38 And John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us; and we forbade him, because he followeth not us.

39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me.

40 For he that is not against us is on our part.

41 For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanging about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

43 And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off; it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched.

44 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45 And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

47 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire;

48 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

50 Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his saltness, wherewith will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

Crowding the Procession a Bit

The action of the federal parole board in declining to at present grant freedom to nine of the Terre Haute election conspirators at Fort Leavenworth prison will, we think, be very generally commended. While under the law the nine may be eligible to parole, they are crowding the procession a bit to press their claims at so early a date. The vote conspiracy under which these men and their associates were convicted was not in any sense an ordinary case. It involved not an isolated individual, but scores of them, leagued as the evidence showed, in a plot at wholesale corruption of election. Their act wronged not an individual, but the entire public. The theory of parole which might make its appeal effective were but a single individual involved does not apply with equal force here. The crime of the Terre Haute conspirators was far too serious to be expiated by a few brief months of incarceration. It would neither satisfy the public's sense of outraged justice nor be sufficiently impressive as a deterrent against those whose impulses might lead them to attempt an emulation of the example of the convicted conspirators under the impression that the worst that could follow detection would be a few weeks in prison.

It is said that in the present instance the federal board has overridden powerful influences, political and otherwise, which have been throwing the weight of their effort toward the early liberation of the men. Some such situation is almost invariably present in the case of men of either wealth or former prominence who are convicted of wrong-doing. They are able to enlist the interest of powerful friends who besiege the pardoning authorities in their behalf, and often a mighty fine sort of moral courage is required to hold out against appeals of this character. The federal parole board, however, appears to possess this variety of stamina, and, for the present, at least, the convicted men will remain where, after a fair trial, outraged law and justice and civic decency decreed they must go.

It is almost inconceivable that with the general desire for road improvement in Allen county, and the vast sums of money now being expended on this enterprise, there should be vandals who almost ruin the new highways by overthrowing blockades and traversing the new roads before they are in condition for use. Yet County Surveyor Guenther finds that precisely that has happened in a number of instances. Consulting merely their own convenience, drivers have plunged over a number of the new roads before they have had time to "set" firmly, and the damage has been extensive. An example of a few of the offenders in court is perhaps the most efficacious method of dealing with the problem, and it is to be hoped Surveyor Guenther will shortly be able to supply it.

An Elkhart man who has been sued for damages by a woman who charges that her nose was broken by a blow from the man's fist sets up in defense the allegation that he mistook the plaintiff in the case for his wife. It will be interesting to note just how far a defense of that sort will go with a jury. Perhaps it is considered perfectly justifiable at Elkhart to smash one's own wife on the nose, while such treatment accorded another woman would be held highly impolite if not actually improper. In any event, the question is one which seems to cry aloud for a definite ruling as to the legal status of the thing.

New thorns are now appearing in the pathway of the gay and festive cabaret performances which are thriving in a good many Indiana cafes. The United States decrees that theaters and similar institutions of amusement pay a special tax during the strigency in national revenues occasioned by the European war. Peter Kruyer, United States internal revenue collector for Indiana, has taken a casual glance at a number of these cabaret performances and decrees that they are "amusements." The obvious answer is likely to be the conclusion on the part of the cafe proprietors that they can manage somehow to struggle along without the cabarets.

It is made reasonably clear by Colonel Roosevelt's Plattsburg speech in which he mercilessly flayed the Wilson administration for its attitude regarding the European war that T. R. has in mind at least one shy, retiring individual who could handle the situation in a much more satisfactory manner. We have suspected as much all along.

Vermilion county will be asked to pay a bill of $3,019.50 as costs of a murder trial sent to an adjoining county on a change of venue, the defendant incidentally being tried as a pauper and finally freed of the charge. Inasmuch as $2,250 of the sum is for attorney's fees, we take it that Vermilion county certainly provides legal counsel of the gilt-edged variety to its unfortunates.

BOOMS IN AUGUST.

(Toledo Blade.)

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript has been looking at the teeth of a number of the republican presidential booms. In most cases he found it hard even to get a glimpse of the teeth, so firmly are jaws set. In other instances the booms masqueraded under other names. Their proprietors were not prepared to acknowledge that they were interested in the presidency. For all they had to say, it might have been gathered they were unaware that the thing existed.

The game appears to be one of watchful waiting. No one feels compelled to come forth and expose the secret longing of his soul. A sort of shyness, a lover-like diffidence, has wreathed the booms with silence. The lot hold back in the hope that some one of them, his patience worn out, will step out and proclaim himself captain. Then the light will begin.

It is the correspondent's belief that the republican contest will be after the manner of that which resulted in the nomination of Harrison in 1888. "The leaders and the rank and file * * * are opposed to having the selection made by any man or group of men in advance of the assembling of the delegates. The candidates themselves seem to have recognized that sentiment."

It is not the custom for candidates to recognize any other sentiment except their own personal ambitions. An exception to that rule would be astonishing. Much as we might enjoy the spectacle of an army of candidates marching tongue-tied right up to the day of the convention, we fear it is to be denied us.

THOSE CROP REPORTS.

(Indiana Daily Times.)

Many Indiana farmers declare the wheat crop estimates put out by the federal government are not based with proper accuracy on the actual crop facts. Especially is this true, they say, since the prolonged rains and since the wet spell has had time to produce such evil effects as the preventing of harvest, the delay of thrashing, and sprouting and rotting in the shock. Not only the yield, but the quality of the grain has been affected seriously by the general rains, and those rains, it is pointed out, have been common to an immense territory.

Yet in face of the facts, optimists putting out sets of figures, persist in shouting aloud the assertion that the country is bringing forth a billion bushel wheat crop for 1915. The direct effect on the producer of these figures is a cut in the price he gets for his wheat. If the price paid for wheat is cut in face of an inaccurate or misleading government crop estimate; if the billion bushel story proves to be untrue and misleading, and if the American farmer loses thereby, the agencies that put out the over-optimistic yarns will be liable to suffer discredit for some seasons to come.

It would be pleasant to join the optimists in telling a story of a billion bushel wheat crop, in the cheerful three billion bushel corn crop estimate, and in the tale of a billion and a half bushels of oats for 1915, but so far as we are able to judge by reports in Indiana, the prevailing estimates are too large. It seems to us there is danger in misleading the public.

COMPENSATION LAW EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1

Employes Not Compelled to Work Under New Indiana Statute.

Indianapolis, Aug. 26.—Discussing the workmen's compensation act which becomes effective September 1, the industrial board of Indiana has issued the following statement:

The act, as to compensation, covers all forms of employment except:

1. Casual laborers.
2. Farm or agricultural laborers.
3. Domestic servants.
4. Interstate or foreign commerce, in case the laws of the United States provide for compensation, or for liability for injury or death, by accident, of the employes engaged therein.

Notwithstanding the fact that casual laborers, farm or agricultural laborers and domestic servants and their employers are expressly excepted from the compensation provisions of the act, yet such employes and their employers are authorized to voluntarily elect to be bound by such provisions.

Many people have the impression that the act applies only to the employers of five or more persons, and that it does not cover the employer of fewer than five workmen. This impression is wholly erroneous. The application of the act does not to any extent depend upon the number of workmen. It applies to the employer of one workman as fully as it does to the employer of one hundred.

Employer and Employe.

"Employer" shall include the state and any municipal corporation within the state or any political division thereof, and any individual, firm, association or corporation or the receiver or trustee of the same, or the legal representatives of a deceased employer, using the services of another for pay.

"Employe" shall include every person, including a minor, in the service of another under any contract of hire or apprenticeship, written or implied, except one whose employment is both casual and not in the usual course of the trade, business, occupation or profession of the employer.

The act is optional or elective with both employers and employes.

In other words, both employers and employes, by giving the notice provided for in the act, may reject its provisions.

In order to make the rejection effective, the notice must be given either at the time of the employment or at least thirty days prior to the injury. No affirmative action is required on the part of either employers or employes in order to come under the provisions of the act. In the absence of an express rejection in the manner specified in the act, acceptance is presumed. No rejection is the equivalent of an express acceptance.

Grounds for Defense.

Every employer who elects not to operate under the act shall not in any suit at law by an employe to recover damages for personal injury or death by accident be permitted to defend any such suit at law upon any one or all of the following grounds:

a. That the employe was negligent.
b. That the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow employe.
c. That the employe had assumed the risk of injury.

Every employe who elects not to operate under the act shall, in any action to recover damages for personal injury or death brought against an employer accepting the compensation provisions of this act, proceed at common law, and the employer may avail himself of the defenses of contributory negligence, negligence of a fellow servant and assumption of risk, as such defenses exist at common law.

At common law, an employe, suing for an injury, and his administrator suing for his death, were required to allege and prove his freedom from contributory negligence.

The rejection of the act by an employe probably restores this common law burden.

Basis of Compensation.

Compensation is based alone upon injuries caused by accident and arising out of and in the course of the employment. It is allowed for death only when the death of the employe is the result of such an injury. It is never allowed for disease in any form except as the disease shall result from such an injury.

No compensation shall be allowed for an injury or death due to the employe's wilful misconduct, including intentional self-inflicted injury, intoxication, and wilful failure or refusal to use a safety appliance or perform a duty required by statute.

The rate of compensation is 55 per cent. of the average weekly wages.

The period of compensation for partial disability cannot exceed 300 weeks; for total disability it cannot exceed 500 weeks; for death not to exceed 300 weeks and burial expenses, not to exceed $100 for certain permanent injuries, enumerated in Section 31, for the periods therein specified, ranging from fifteen to 200 weeks, and in all other cases of permanent partial disability for such period as the board may fix, not exceeding 200 weeks.

Average weekly wages are to be considered not more than $24 nor less than $10. This makes the maximum weekly compensation $13.20, and the minimum $5.50.

The total compensation, in any case, cannot exceed $5,000.

No compensation is payable for the first fourteen days of disability. The compensation period begins with the fifteenth day of disability. During the first thirty days after the injury of an employe, the employer is required to furnish, at his own expense, a physician and suitable hospital services and supplies.

Subject to the approval of the industrial board, the employer and the injured employe, or, in case of his death, his dependents, may agree in writing as to the compensation payable.

In case of a dispute as to the compensation payable, the matter must be submitted to and be determined by the industrial board.

Any party in interest may file in the circuit or superior court of the county in which the injury occurred a certified copy of any agreement approved by the board or of any order, decision or award made by it, and such court shall render judgment thereon in accordance with the terms thereof.

Such judgment shall then be enforced as an original judgment of such court.

Notice of the injury must be given in writing to the employer, immediately upon the occurrence of the injury or as soon thereafter as is practicable, by the injured employe or some one in his behalf, and, in case of his death, by one or more of his dependents, or by some one in their behalf.

The notice must state the name and address of the injured employe, the time, place, nature and cause of the injury or death.

No compensation is collectible if such written notice is not given within thirty days after the occurrence of the injury or death, unless reasonable excuse for the failure to give it is made to the satisfaction of the industrial board.

All employers of the state, whether under the compensation provisions of the act or not, are required to keep a record of all injuries to their employes and to report in writing to the industrial board within one week after the occurrance and knowledge thereof every injury to an employe causing his absence from work for more than one day, and to make a supplementary report upon the termination of the disability unless it extends beyond sixty days, in which event the supplementary report shall be made at the expiration of the sixty days' period.

The penalty for the failure to make such reports is $25 in each case.

The act requires the employer to secure his compensation liability in full, if that liability is to be his exclusive obligation for injuries to his employes. That is, without securing his compensation liability, the employer is liable for either compensation or damages, at the option of the employe after injury. The refusal or neglect of the employer to secure his compensation liability also renders him liable to a fine of ten cents for each employe, but not less than $1 or more than $50 for each day of such neglect or refusal.

The employer may secure his compensation liability by either of the following methods:

1. By insuring such liability in some corporation, association or organization authorized to transact the business of workmen's compensation insurance in this state.

2. By furnishing to the industrial board satisfactory proof of his financial ability to pay direct the compensation in the amount and manner and when due, as provided in the act, and by depositing with the board such security, indemnity or bond, as the board may require, if any.

3. By the proof of membership in and the payments of premiums due in a mutual or reciprocal insurance association, formed under the conditions and restrictions fixed by the industrial board.

4. By a substitute system of compensation as provided in Section 72 of the act.

Accident Prevention.

The compensation provisions of "The Indiana Workmen's Compensation Act" are the provisions of secondary importance. These provisions are based upon the established fact that a large per cent. of industrial accidents are wholly unavoidable; that they happen without the fault of any one, and are the inherent risks of industrial employments. Such accidents, being natural and inevitable, are logically incidents of the industry in which they occur.

While experience justly recognizes this class of inevitable accidents, it just as certainly recognizes the fact that a much greater per cent. of industrial accidents may be prevented.

It may be said that the purposes of "The Indiana Workmen's Compensation Act" are:

1. To eliminate or reduce to the minimum preventable accidents.

2. To provide a certain and sure compensation in all cases of inevitable accident and injury.

That accident prevention is the primary object of the measure is clearly manifested by the first clause of the title, which is "An act to promote the prevention of industrial accidents." To the end that this dominant purpose of the act may be carried into execution the duties and powers of the bureau of inspection were transferred to the industrial board, and said board is charged with the administration of the inspection laws of the state.

The industrial board, therefore, is deeply impressed with the view that its primary duty is to promote the prevention of industrial accidents, and to the extent of its ability it intends to discharge this obligation.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the Rev. Mr. Wagenhals, the Moose lodge, the Daughters of Workmen and other friends for their kindness and floral offerings during the illness and death of our sister and daughter, Mrs. Grace Niebergall.

Fame And Fortune In A Funny Walk

Do You Know Who Is the Most Imitated Man In America? Yes, You've Guessed It—He's Charlie Chaplin of the Movies —But the Real Heroes—the Fellows Who Do the Daring Substitute Stunts Are Little Known to the Movie Fans Who Delight In Their Thrilling Acts

The United States has "gone crazy" about Charlie Chaplin, and while there is but one and only one Charlie Chaplin he has thousands of imitators from Maine to Oregon. It seems that every man with a black mustache, or a stiff hat or a cane or black curly hair is out to imitate the comedian of the films.

And have you noticed the latest—the Charlie Chaplin walk?

Even in little old staid New York, Charlie Chaplin has imitators by the score. Not merely men of the sandwich-board class who go about dressed to appear as Charlie Chaplin and to attract the crowds to some theater where pictures of the comedian are to be shown, but men of ordinary every day life are doing Charlie Chaplin for their friends. The man known to writers as "the life of the party" is winning a laugh with his imitation.

The so-called bar-room humorist is "pulling" Charlie Chaplin stuff in every pool hall you will see someone at it and not a big office in the country is without a little dark mustached man, who has remained humbly in retirement never talking above a whisper until his remote likeness to Charlie Chaplin brought him forth from obscurity, and even the stenographers that once hated him have been compelled to admit he is funny.

NUMEROUS IMITATIONS.

Of course, this imitating business was a boon to sandwich men and they must be excused for appearing as Charlie Chaplin. Before these sad-eyed wrecks as most of them are, earned $1 a day carrying a sign with the So-and-So dental parlors' ad. on it, or "go to McDuffy's restaurant," but now anyone of them who has dark curly hair or can wear a dark curly wig and a stubby black mustache and can walk with his feet turned at an angle at almost 80 degrees from each other, that man can earn $5 a day by walking the streets. All that is necessary is old clothes, with which most of them have been supplied ever since their twenty-first birthday, a dirty collar that is not a stranger to men of the bowery, a cane that can be bought for 25 cents, a mustache and black curly hair. Peculiarly no matter how little the man may look like Chaplin before he dons this make-up, his friends will remark he is a perfect picture of the comedian.

Of course, Charlie himself might look at his imitators and say with other actors and actresses, who have been credited with the statement by the humorists, "One of us is rotten," but that would have no effect upon the man who thinks he looks more like Charlie Chaplin than Charlie does himself.

With this epidemic of imitations, with statues of plaster of paris being sold, and the comedian's pictures appearing on many screens through the country and his photographs being printed in newspapers and magazines, it must be conceded that Chaplin is the most popular man in the country just now—that is from a comical viewpoint.

DEMAND FOR FILMS.

It is said that the demand for new films of him is such that he is compelled to work practically every hour of daylight to fill it. Of course, there are the usual rumors about his receiving several thousand dollars a week, and there is also the same skeptisism in the matter, born principally of the fact that most actors supposed to receive enormous salaries die and leave little but their insurance.

Chaplin succeeded John Bunny as the most humorous man in the films. Their form of humor is as different as night and day. Chaplin's is the slap-stick kind, Bunny showed real art and ability.

Until toward the last of Bunny's ---- his acts were devoid of all vulgarity and he presented a clean and high-class form of humor, based most on his ability to make people laugh through his comical control of his features. Bunny was credited with receiving a large salary, yet when he died the value of his estate was estimated at $8,000.

Chaplin uses but little facial expression, other than an occasional smile or look of surprise or dismay—occasionally also a comic look of pain. His art is entirely in his ability to walk funny. Probably one of his most humorous films is where he joins a prize-fighting camp as a trainer. The thousands who have seen this film will recall its comic opening—Charlie seated in a doorway, sad, disgusted and out of a job. He draws a frankfurter sandwich—apparently his last morsel of food—from his bosom and proceeds to eat it alternately offering a bite to a bull dog that sits beside him.

After the meal he and the dog start up the street and Charle sees a sign, "Sparring Partners Wanted." He enters and is given a job. He sees men in line before him enter the prize-fighter's training quarters only to be carried out a few minutes later on a stretcher.

He awaits his turn with trembling until a means of defense suggests itself to him. He finds a horseshoe on the ground and slips it between the padding of the boxing glove on his right hand.

His turn comes and he walks with confidence into the ring. One blow and the prizefighter falls unconscious. Charlie then proceeds to knockout the remainder of the sparring partners and attendants.

The next scene shows him actually in the ring. He is getting the worst of it when the bulldog joins him. The animal fastens its teeth to the region of the prize-fighter's hip pocket and the two proceed to down the ring-artist.

OTHERS SHARE HONORS.

While such plays are written to give the center of the stage to Charlie Chaplin, in other scenes he shares the honors with other actors of great power as comedians. Roscoe Arbuckle, known to the film-fans as "Fatty," never fails to win his share of the laugh. He will be recalled as the fat man with a sort of an innocent, what may be termed a "baby face." He and Ford Sterling are real fun makers. Sterling is the man of German appearance, hair pompadoured in front and a little black goatee. When he is surprised he wrinkles his nose as if some odor had offended him and this grimace is his chief asset for getting a laugh.

He and Arbuckle have appeared recently in a scene similar to one in which Arbuckle and Chaplin appeared several months ago. Both scenes are based on the plot of two men going to a cabaret with other women and being discovered there by their wives.

Yet with these men drawing the fat salaries in the moving picture game, there are those who do the hard work and get but little of the applause. If there were a scene where Charlie Chaplin had to fall into the lake, or Roscoe Arbuckle fall from a cliff or Ford Sterling had to descend from a large building by climbing its exterior, it would not be Chaplin, Arbucle or Sterling but a substitute who would risk his life in the scene.

SOME DAREDEVILS.

The two who have made themselves most useful at this work, yet have never received public acclaim, are Eddie Gordon and Jack Austin. The two started out as balloon-pilots, exhibiting at the country fairs. When the balloon reached the right height both descended in a parachute. Austin used to come down hanging by his teeth, while Gordon won the name of a daredevil by hanging to the bar of the parachute by his toes.

When the moving picture business offered an element of hazard, the two engaged in this new work. At one time while rehearsing a play in New York, the director found the plot such that his star would have to ride over a cliff on a bicycle and land many feet below in the river. This the star refused to do. After much arguing Gordon was sent for and successfully performed the stunt.

At the upper end of the Harlem Ship Canal is the Hudson river. Broadway and Two hundred and twenty-fifth street is a high cliff. The cliff is 50 feet high and the water in the river is not more than six feet deep. Gordon approached the cliff at a good speed and man and bicycle hurtled over it. Gordon landed safely. The camera, however, was out of focus and the dare-devil had to repeat his thrilling dive.

In 1913, when pictures were a little bit more thrilling than they are now, an actress was suppose to drop from a ship. An aviator was to come along and pick her up after he had dived from his aeroplane. Now the star in this scene did not wish to take the risk of jumping from an aeroplane going at 50 miles an hour. Austin was called upon and did the stunt successfully.

A year or so ago the two undertook their most thrilling act. A motorcyclist was being chased by a policeman in the scene and the writer or perhaps the stage director, for a thrilling effect, wanted the two to jump an opening in a jack-knife bridge. Of course the stars in the case wouldn't take the risk, but Austin and Gordon did and succeeded. The bridge was so lifted that ---enty feet intervened between its two spans. Up one incline the two raced on motorcycles, hurtled out into the air, struck the floor of the other span and after skidding for fifteen feet, righted their machines and continued on their journey. This was considered their most daring stunt.

JUMPING FROM CLIFF.

On one occasion Gordon jumped from a cliff, 30 feet high, to the back of a horse waiting below. Although he landed astride he was uninjured. But the horse suffered a broken back and had to be shot.

Austin won another record descending the 40 stories of the Equitable building in New York on a rope, hand over hand. Last winter he was employed in a scene where a convict jumps from a ferry boat and floats away on a cake of ice. Although the day was bitter cold and the thermometer down around zero, he performed this feat with success.

Another scene shown this summer is where an axman falls in a mountain stream and his body is washed down past boulders and jagged rocks. Manifestly the ordinary man would be torn to pieces trying such a performance. Yet Gordon did it and came through unscathed.

This summer also was shown perhaps the most realistic fire picture in the history of the films. A fireman falls in love with a girl employed in a department store. The store catches afire. The fireman climbs to the department where he knows the girl was stationed. He finds her and a millionaire's daughter, who had been trapped in the store, cringing on the floor, all means of escape cut off.

Men from an adjoining building throw him a rope which he makes fast. They secure it at the other end. His sweetheart refuses to go before the other girl. The fireman lifts what appears to be the other girl in his arm and swings out on the rope. With one hand he crosses the rope and reaches safety just as the rope is burned in two. That fireman is Austin and that figure in his arms is a dummy, made as light as possible, so that his feat may be performed. Yet he makes that one-hand crossing of the rope a hundred feet above the ground while the miss who is drawing the big salary watches as her substitute is "rescued."

Thus are these two heroes of the movies performing the risks at small salaries while the big actors refuse to do anything that might impair their earning capacity.

These are the two real heroes of the moving picture world.

Snyder—Noll.

A home wedding that was a quiet, but none the less pretty one took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Noll, of 1607 East Creighton avenue, when their daughter, Miss Ruth E. Noll, and Mr. Arthur L. Snyder, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder, of 1509 Green street, were married. The wedding ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. F. H. Cremean, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church. A few intimate friends and relatives to the number of about forty were present. The bride had one bridesmaid, her sister, Miss Marie Noll, and Mr. Ray Snyder, a brother, was groomsman. The bride presented a sweet and charming appearance in a beautiful gown of white charmeuse that was trimmed with handsome silk lace. There was a bolero of the lace and the sleeves and skirt of the dress were trimmed with it. The bride wore a wreath of white roses and smilax on her head. The bridesmaid wore a white crepe de chine dress with blue taffeta silk bolero jacket. Her flowers were white roses and the bride's bouquet was shower of bride roses. Miss Lois Grimmel played the wedding music from "Lohengrin" as the bridal party took their stand before the minister. The house was decorated with garden flowers and palms. Gladioli, asters and zinnias formed a very pretty decoration of the rooms. The bride's table at the elegant dinner served the company was in white roses and smilax. After being showered with congratulations and good wishes at a later hour, the bride and groom went to their own home at 1505 East Creighton avenue, where they are going to housekeeping. The bride is a capable and sensible young woman with many friends, who are very fond of her. Mr. Snyder is an employe at the Bowser plant and is a fine young man.

AT THE TEMPLE.

A THREE-YEAR LEASE.

Temple Stock Company Management Signs for Theater.

John E. Snyder, representing the Temple Theater Players, the crack stock company organization which is just completing its summer run and which will open its winter season next week in the great drama, "The Blindness of Virtue," has closed a three-year lease for the Temple theater. The lease was signed by Mr. Snyder and the Associated Masonic Trustees and conveys the theater to the Temple Stock Players for three years. When the stock company first came to Fort Wayne it was under a six weeks' leave with an option for another year. So successful has been the venture that the management has decided that instead of exercising the option for but twelve months the institution would be made permanent.

The company this week is presenting an engaging farce-comedy, "The Wrong Mr. Wright," a laugh hit that is proving a general favorite. Next week the players will essay the more pretentious forms of drama opening in "The Blindness of Virtue" and playing a list of the highest class offerings that are released to stock. Maurice Jenkins now is in New York arranging for several additional artists who will join the company after next week.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Majestic Friday and Saturday.

Among the notable scenes of Wm. H. Kibble's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which is to be at the Majestic Friday and Saturday is the St. Claire home, showing the tropical garden with its fragrant magnolia and orange trees, among which nestles the typical southern plantation residence, the home of Little Eva; Legree's cotton plantation on the Red river with the cotton in full bloom; the wild rocky pass in southern Ohio, and the ice choking Ohio river by moonlight. The transformation entitled "The Celestial City" is said to be the most magnificent tableau ever conceived. In offering his revival to our city Wm. H. Kibble not only claims that the scenic effects are superior to any ever attempted but honestly assures prospective patrons that the company is composed of the most capable talent obtainable.

AT THT EMPRESS

"Monte Carlo Girls" at Empress Friday and Saturday.

Harry Welsh and his "Monte Carlo Girls" are coming back to Fort Wayne, but this time to the Empress theater, where this high grade burlesque attraction will be seen on Friday and Saturday of this week with matinee daily. Harry Welsh and his funny slide is well known in this city and he is surrounded by an unusually strong company of performers, all of whom are prominent and important factors in the musical comedy and vaudeville fields. The entire performance is a merry-go-round of pleasure, with abundance of fun, action and a spectacular dazzle in all of the dance numbers. Princess Kyra is the extra feature act and the press of other cities credit her work as just a little different and of a higher class than many of the other dancers.

Matinees will be given daily during the engagement.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

THE BIGGEST FILM EVENT.

Coming of "The Eternal City" to Jefferson" Is Premier Screen Event.

Eclipsing in every way any other photodramatic attraction that has ever been exhibited in this city, "The Eternal City," that master achievement of the Famous Players company, seen at the Jefferson today and tomorrow, will give local motion picture lovers an opportunity of witnessing an epochal film play that has aroused the highest admiration of every authority in the country. The story of "The Eternal City" is taken from Hall Caine's powerful novel of that title, and in order to lend an undeniable kind of realism to all the scenes, the producers of the pictures, Edwin Porter and Hughe Ford, took an entire company of American stage stars, including Pauline Frederick, to England, and subsequently to Rome, Italy, in which environments Mr. Caine laid his story.

The photoplay comes in eight inspiring parts, involving over eighty-five hundred feet of film. It was erroneously stated in the morning paper that the prices for admission were normal. The correct prices are 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

Soft as Moonlight is This Dance Dress

AT THE ORPHEUM.

"THE SCARLET SIN."

Remarkable Broadway-Universal Film Hit at Orpheum Tomorrow.

Hobart Bosworth, the most cosmopolitan habitant of the movie universe, is the latest famous star to be featured in the brilliant feature dramas issued by the Broadway-Universal company, and which are being shown on Thursdays at the Orpheum theater. This celebrated figure, who acts and directs with equal facility, assumes the titanic leading role in "The Scarlet Sin," a powerful morality drama of five parts.

Jane Novak, acknowledged to be one of the most beautiful women in the silent drama, plays the part of the erring wife, and gives fine shading to a role difficult in every way. The balance of the cast is very large, hundreds of supernumeraries being used in some of the scenes. Some of the settings, particularly the ones showing the explosion at the mine and the fist fight between the minister and the town bully, are convincingly realistic.

Proud of Her Feet is Outdoor Girl.

The outdoor girl is very particular about her feet this summer. The slip shod, rubber soled canvas shoe is seldom seen where girls play tennis, golf or croquet.

The new sport shoes are natty things in white calf trimmed with blue or black or green leather. The outdoor girl has discovered that low shoes means stocky, spreading ankles so she encases her feet in laced boots that keep the ankle slim and graceful.

CORONER CONDUCTS INQUEST.

No One Blamed for Death of Frederick William Baird.

No blame is attached to anyone for the death of Frederick William Baird, of Heustis avenue, who was instantly killed Sunday morning while walking on the Wabash tracks by a fast train, which hurled his mangled body eighty feet from the elevation at the Thompson avenue crossing. Such will be the verdict of Coroner Edward H. Kruse, who conducted the inquest Wednesday afternoon, at which time several witnesses were heard. The evidence showed that Engineer Baugher, of eastbound fast train No. 2, of the Wabash, which struck Baird, had his whistle going sufficiently to have given the young man plenty of warning. The coroner will find that Baird was a trespasser on the company's right of way and that the fault was his own.

COBB'S TEN YEARS AS MAJOR LEAGUER

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, referred to as the greatest ball player in the world, today celebrated the tenth anniversary of his debut as a major league player. No special ceremony was planned by Detroit fans to mark the occasion but it was expected that Cobb would receive an unusual demonstration—and probably something more substantial—from his friends this afternoon when he stepped to the plate in the last game of the important series with Boston. Cobb's path of fame which he blazed for himself has probably never been equalled in the history of baseball. For five successive seasons he has been champion batsman of the American league. His average for the present season is about .380 and it seems a human impossibility for any of his rivals to wrest the crown from him this year. No batter has ever made such a record.

On August 26, 1905, a tall, nervous appearing boy of 19 years from the Augusta Ga., club in a class C league donned a Detroit uniform and was sent to Centerfielder Manager Bill Armour to replace Dick Cooley. The player was Cobb; Cooley never got his job back. Cobb became a regular player that afternoon. Only once in these ten years has the mighty Tyrus been replaced by a pinch hitter. When Cobb was a youngster, "Doc" White, of the Chicago club, was his nemesis. Catcher Freddie Hayne was sent to bat for Cobb against White on the single occasion. In 1906, his first full season, Cobb hit .320. That has since been his low mark.

IN WARTIME MONTREAL.

Montreal is making a bid for the pugilistic spotlight. Twenty-round battles to a decision are going to be allowed there before it comes time to put on your heavies.

Word from Walter Burke, formerly manager of several fighters, was that he had secured permission from the city authorities to stage marathon events and he has taken over the Hochelaga A. A. there, with prospects for a good season.

Montreal in wartime, with most of the men at the front, doesn't look like an especially alluring field, but Burke is confident he can put it over. The club could draw some patronage from New York for a championship affair, but it's too far away for Gotham sports to travel to see the smaller fry, especially if they're going to see decision fights here.

NATIONAL LINE-UP IS NOW COMPLETED

The following is the line-up for the National league representative team that will tour the northwest with the American team after the big league seasons close, the announcement being made in Chicago Thursday:

Pitchers—Jack Coombs, Christy Mathewson, Grover Alexander and Jim Vaughn; catchers—Bill Killifer, Frank Snyder or Otto Miller; first base—Jake Daubert, second base—John Miller; third base—Heine Groh; shortstop—Hans Wagner; outfielders—Wade Killifer, Cosy Dolan and George Burns.

The team will be piloted by Frank Vancroft, business manager of the Reds.

Hughey Jennings, who will direct the American stars, has not announced his roster. Games will be played through the Northwest, with a probable windup at San Francisco.

WIVES AND MOTHERS TRY FOR HONORS ON THE GOLF COURSE.

Left, Mrs. D. W. Widney; center, Mrs. Kenneth Duffield, Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Harry D. Hammond, Indianapolis, present title holder among married women in tournament for women's western golf championship.

Wives and mothers have left household duties at their homes in various parts of the middle west to try for honors on the golf course. They entered a tournament at Chicago in which the women's western championship is at stake.

The drawings show youth pitted against age in many cases with heads of households playing against athletic young sprites, like Miss Marjorie Dodd, of Cincinnati, and others who, without home affairs to manage, spend a good deal of their time at golf, tennis and other outdoor sports.

The married women were picked at the outset to win top honors. One, Mrs. Harry D. Hammond, of Indianapolis, won the championship last year and entered to defend the title.

Other married women entered: Mrs. Kenneth Duffield, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. D. W. Widney, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Lyman Bournique, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. Sain Welty, Bloomington; Mrs. C. G. Powers, Decatur; Mrs. Abbott Thorndyke, Sioux City, Ia.; Mrs. F. H. Newcomb, Wheaton, Ill.; Mrs. E. R. Morris, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. G. D. Smith, Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. T. L. Wann, of White Bear Lake, Minn.; Mrs. Melvin Jones, Cleveland, O.

WILL MEAN A REAL MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMP

New York, Aug. 26.—All things come to those who wait. It's an aged wheeze; apparently one that has a little truth concealed about its person.

The pugilistic world has been waiting these many years for the clouds to roll away from the middle weight tangle and reveal a champion. In a seemingly unending procession Eddie McGoorty, Jimmy Clabby, Mike Gibbons, Jack Dillon, Al McCoy, George Chip, Young Ahearn and scores of dimmer lights have passed before the assembled multitude and then faded, bickering and quarreling, into the background.

But by this time next month there should be a middle weight champion for the public to shove its shekels through the wicker gate to see. According to the old reliable dope the championship lies between three men—Mike Gibbons, Packey McFarland and Les Darcey. Who is that guy? He's the guy that put the sleep-kiss on Eddie McGoorty's chin down in Australia not long since, thereby winning for himself at least consideration.

There won't be much dispute about the winner of the McFarland-Gibbons quarrel being considered the classiest thing on the middle weight shelf. But how he's going to get away from a meeting with this Darcey person hardly is visible. McGoorty for a long time has been considered one of the few real claimants to the championship, and in some parts of Wisconsin he has been considered "the champion." Therefore, the man who can put him away should not be considered lightly.

TABER TELLS HOW TO TRAIN FOR MILE RUN

World's Record Holder is Certain It's a Scientific Study.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 26.—Training for the mile run has been given the most scientific study by Norman S. Taber, world's record holder for that distance, and in explaining his methods he shatters many approved tenets still clung to by his less speedy competitors.

He believes, for instance, that an athlete training for the mile may eat practically anything that agrees with him.

"To run a mile," he says, "a man must maintain his strength by eating solid food that will build up endurance. The old way of training on toast and light foods would not suit the athlete of today."

The miler of today is not trained as a plodder, but rather a combination of plodder and sprinter, according to Taber's system.

"I think," declares Taber, "that men training for the mile will find it best to arrange their practice runs to come at the time of day when the actual race is to be run."

Cross-country work, to begin with; a steady application to the process of developing endurance; then sprinting at intervals, and finally a daily combination of distance running and sprinting, is Taber's advice for men training for the mile.

A long siege of cross-country work is not desirable, he maintains. It should, however, be indulged in for a week or more to strengthen the legs and the wind. A three-mile slow run on the track is about the limit of the endurance training, he says.

Taber was a member of the Oxford relay team that competed at the Pennsylvania games last year, and a student at Brown university prior to that. In 1913 he won the national mile championship.

RUBE MARQUARD COMES BACK TO THE MINORS.

New York, Aug. 26.—Pitcher Rube Marquard, who cost the New York Giants $11,000 six years ago, has been sent to the minors, where he came from. No one in the National or the American league considered Rube worth $1,500, the waiver price, and that is why he is now a member of the Toronto International league ball club. Manager McGraw, of the Giants, announced this afternoon that Marquard has been sold to the Canadian club—but probably for a good deal less than $1,500.

Catcher Chief Meyers, it is rumored, will be the next to go. Right in line with this report came the announcement today that Catcher Bob Schang had been purchased from Pittsburgh.

The acquisition of Rube Benton by McGraw cleared the way for the exit of Marquard, and it is certain that some more of the creaking timbers will be dislodged from the Giants' structure shortly.

Marquard was considered the iron man of the league when he first joined the Giants. The late John T. Brush was the man who bought Rube from the Indianapolis American association team for the reported price of $11,000. That was the high-water mark for a pitcher in those days, but Rube more than earned it by some great performances for the Giants. His record of nineteen straight wins is still a big league record.

Rube began to go back last year and McGraw has tried several times to dispose of him in trades, but the pitcher's disposition, as well as his erratic work, militated against any transfer, and now he will have to start all over again.

Marquard declared he was not willing to go to Toronto and said he would ask for an unconditional release. Under the terms of the transaction as announced by Manager McGraw the Giants are to get a pitcher named Herbert from Toronto in part payment for Marquard.

MERELY BY ABILITY AND SQUARE DEALING

Woman Made "Go" of Business She Knew Nothing at All About.

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.—Five years ago a nervous little woman, dressed in widow's weeds, walked into a small room of a big building.

The strangest feeling came when she looked for the first time, since his death, on the little place where her deceased had worked for years to earn a livelihood.

The big "I will" surged in her heart when she thought of the two fatherless children at home that she had promised herself to bring up with the very best in the land.

The workshop was rather dingy. Things didn't look in the apple-pie order they might have done, for the husband-proprietor had been obliged to be away from it for nearly a year before he died.

"This is a queer business for a woman to go into," the little widow thought, as she surveyed the metal and the newspaper "cuts" and the presses, and machines. "But, I believe I can do it. Why shouldn't I? I will!"

And that's how it happens Los Angeles now possesses an up-to-date, thriving, fast growing, service-giving engraving company headed and operated by a woman!

This woman, one of a little coterie, all of whom are classed among the most successful women of Los Angeles, is Mrs. Virginia Thomson.

There is no sign of fear in her manner now. She doesn't quiver and quake, tremblingly, when "business" comes her way. Her eyes snap and shine. Her face wreathes in smiles. Her movements are quick and alert. Everything about her indicates prosperity.

"When I first took up the business," Mrs. Thomson said, "I had debts to face. Believing that being square is the very best policy, I went to each one of the creditors and told them I would pay them just as soon as I could. They were lovely to me, everyone.

"It took me a year to clear those obligations, and since then I've been steadily forging ahead.

"A short while ago I secured a fourteen-year lease on uptown property and the owner has built a structure to suit me. My aim is to have the greatest quality and service shop in the city. Give me just about three years more and I'll have it."

Mrs. Thomson has a foreman, to whom she gives all her directions. "I never 'nag' my men," she said. "And I give them the very best surroundings I know. It pays. They would rather work for me than in any other shop in town, though I don't pay the highest wages always."

There are fourteen men in the shop. A day and a night force runs all the time.

Mrs. Thomson hasn't any solicitors. She gets all the business herself. "I just go after the regular customers," she laughed. "And then I keep them," which is probably the pith of successful business principles.

Asked what she thought of the wisdom of women entering the business world, Mrs. Thomson replied:

"I think the home is the place for the women. But if she has to go out into it, she will get good treatment. We often hear stories about how hard it is for a woman to work in competition with men. On the contrary, I have found them fair and agreeable."

Mrs. Thomson's daughter, a girl just in her teens, is following her mother's footsteps instead of her advice, and has taken charge of the office. "I do the outside work and daughter attends to the inside."

"Do you like business as well as home life?" I asked.

"I was a housekeeper for twenty-five years," she replied, "and though I had a happy home and enjoyed it, I wouldn't go back to housekeeping for everything in the world. There may be some restless nights when we wonder how in the world we are going to meet obligations and shoulder responsibilities. But there's a fascination about business that I love."

HAS FUN WITHOUT MONEY.

Elizabeth Hansen Arrested After Gay Time in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 26.—Elizabeth Hansen, said to have posed as a Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald, is in custody on a charge of having overlooked a $20 obligation at the Hotel Wisconsin.

The police say she has been having a lot of fun without any money. Among other things she is said to have purchased a $2,200 automobile, giving in part payment a check for $1,000 drawn on a Chicago bank. The check proved worthless. She also is said to have negotiated for the $12,000 suburban home of Joseph Schumacher, shoe dealer.

Landaus were originally made in a town named Landau, in Germany.

The greatest known depth of the sea is eight and three-quarters miles.

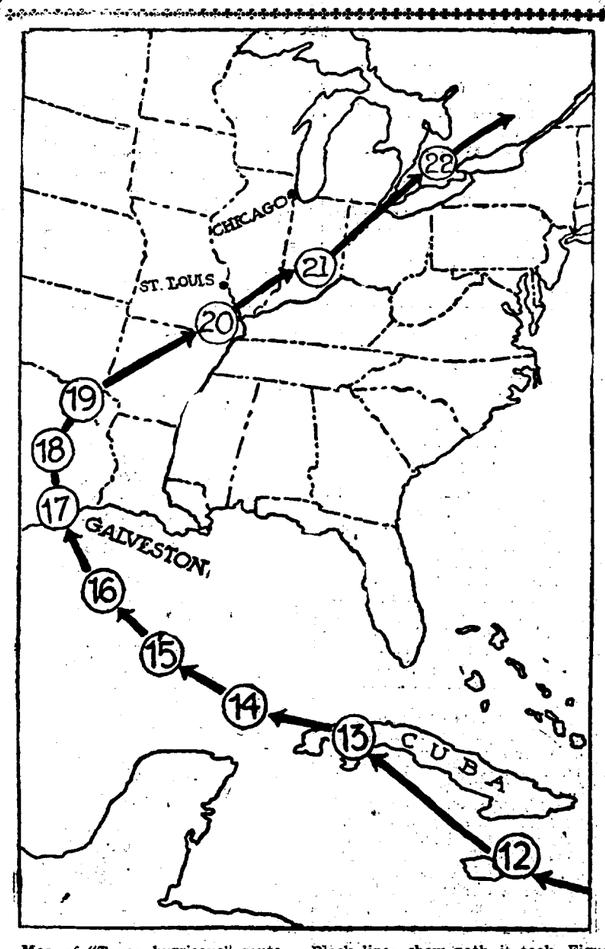
TRAIL OF THE TEXAS HURRICANE.



Map of "Texas hurricane" route. Black lines show path it took. Figures show where storm center was at different dates.

TERRIBLE DEATH DEALING STORM TRAVELS ALONG WIDE CIRCLE BEGINNING AND ENDING IN ATLANTIC.

The storm which did so much damage in Texas, causing the deaths of hundreds and a huge property loss, traveled in a wide half-circle.

It first appeared near the central portion of the Windward islands, just north of Trinidad in the West Indies, on Monday, August 9. Considerable property damage was done at Kingstown on the island of St. Vincent in the Windward group; and by Tuesday, the storm center had reached the island of St. Croix, just south of Porto Rico.

At that time, the wind at San Juan reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour, as the center moved west-northwest at about eighteen or twenty miles an hour. After passing near Haiti and Jamaica and across the western portion of Cuba, the disturbance swept across the gulf of Mexico to the eastern coast of Texas, reaching Galveston early last Monday morning, just a week after its first appearance in the Windward islands. At Galveston, the velocity of the wind reached seventy miles an hour.

Early Tuesday morning the storm center passed just south of Houston; and then, after remaining practically stationary all day Wednesday, the disturbance swung about and headed northeastward across Texas.

On Thursday and Friday the storm continued to move northeastward, passing Cairo, Ill., and at night, according to reports reaching the weather bureau, the center of the disturbance was at Evansville.

By Saturday morning it had reached the center of Indiana traveling northeastward to reach the "storm center route"——the St. Lawrence valley into the Atlantic ocean.

BLOCKS PAROLE FOR TERRE HAUTE CROWD

Federal Board Says Nay to Powerful Political Influences.

Washington, Aug. 26.—It was learned today that the federal board of parole has nullified the efforts to obtain the release of nine of the Terre Haute election violators from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., by acting adversely on the applications for parole. In taking this course, the board of parole, in several instances, has overridden powerful political and other influences.

Nine of the men who are "doing time" under sentences of one year and a day, imposed in famous election case, were eligible to parole last Thursday, having served one-third of their sentences. The nine who are denied clemency are John Masselink, Arthur Gillis, Joseph Strauss, Charles Houghton, Edward Holler, Alexander Aczel, Joseph O'Mara, George Sovern and Maurice Walsh.

The friends of John Masselink had been specially active in his behalf.

The board of parole has consented to take up some or all of these cases again when it meets at the penitentiary about Sept. 10. In no event will the board grant clemency without consulting District Attorney Frank C. Dailey, who prosecuted the men into the penitentiary.

The board will give out no statement whatever for refusing clemency in its first report, but back of it all is believed to be a desire to avoid putting the democratic party in a hole. The party has assumed a good deal of credit for virtuous party housecleaning by the prosecution and conviction of the men and it was believed by many politicians that their release at the first opportunity would have worked serious party injury.

U. S. TROOPER IS POISONED.

Thinks He Ate Mushroom, But Doctor Says It Was Toadstool.

Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 26.—When Troop B, Fifth United States cavalry, from Ft. Sheridan, left here yesterday for Indianapolis, where the troop is to take part in the military maneuvers at Ft Benjamin Harrison, H. H. Byington, first sergeant, was left behind, a patient at the Palmer hospital.

While in the fair ground, Byington found what he thought was a mushroom and ate a part of it. He became ill and was removed to the hospital. Byington believes he ate a part of a mushroom which was decayed, but the belief of the physician is that he ate part of a toadstool. He expects to be able to join his troop within three days. The troop will reach Indianapolis tonight.

PAINT IT FOLIAGE GREEN.

New Treatment of Barbed Wire Makes It Almost Invisible.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 26.—Barbed wire painted a foliage green, is now being manufactured for use of the armies in Europe. Barbed wire is ordinarily galvanized but because of the scarcity and high prices of spelter, a local manufacturer devised a scheme to paint it. Steel men say that reports from abroad show that a short distance away it is impossible to see the green wire.

RABBIT ARISTOCRATS AT FORT WAYNE FAIR

Will Be Among Novel Exhibits Provided for Coming Event.

Blue, red, pink, checkered and even green rabbits, big and little rabbits, but all of them aristocrats from the tips of their wriggling noses to the tips of their twinkling tails will be a novel show to be given by the Fort Wayne Pet Stock association in the poultry and pet stock department at Fort Wayne's Great Fair, September 14 to 18 inclusive. Don't sniff so superiorly. Maybe you know something about rabbits and maybe you don't. The chances are very much against it. Of course you know the American cotton tail, and maybe you have heard of the real Angora rabbit, but did you ever know that the pure bred Belgian hare is as red as the sinking sun? Did you ever know the New Zealand king rabbit is a cherry red, and one of the giant rabbits pure black, while another is a checkered pattern? Did you ever know that there are scores of rabbits in this country worth from $100 to $500 each and that $1,000 is no unheard of price for a single rabbit? If you knew all these things and had seen these royal representatives of the rabbit family then there won't be much to interest you in this portion of the fair except that Fort Wayne breeders own some of the best rabbits in the entire country.

The Fort Wayne Pet Stock association is a local of a national organization and is officered as follows: Charles Harris, president; Roy Evans, vice president; Frank A. Devillbiss, secretary, and Oscar I. Luentberger, treasurer. In addition to rabbits this association will exhibit harmless skunk, guiena pigs, squirrel, fox and other fur bearing animals.

Any one desiring to enter this exhibit should communicate with the secretary, 2803 Oliver street, phone 7632 Black.

VETERAN CHECKMAN GOES TO HOSPITAL

George W. Bearinger Very Ill With Stomach Trouble—Shop News.

George W. Bearinger, of 122 West Creighton avenue, has gone to the Wabash railway hospital at Peru, where he may have to submit to a surgical operation for relief from stomach trouble. He has been afflicted for a year or so, but was able to work at the company's freight house, where he is a checkman, until a week or two ago. Mr. Bearinger, in point of service, is one of the oldest of the employes at the Wabash freight house and he is held in great esteem by the other employes.

CROP REPORTS MORE FAVORABLE.

Corn Will Be Heaviest in History in Some Parts.

The weekly crop report of General Traffic Manager W. C. Maxwell, of the Wabash, covering the seven days prior to August 24, shows crop condition in the territory touched by the Wabash lines to be better than reported last week. In Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, under favorable weather conditions during a part of the week, from 50 to 60 per cent. of the crop of wheat was threshed. Quality off grade; 80 per cent. of the oats crop was harvested, but very little threshed. Damage about 25 per cent. Corn prospects good and warm weather will ripen it quickly.

Missouri—Rains delayed farm work and there was very little wheat threshing done during the week; the oats crop was nearly all destroyed north of Pattonburg and but little threshed elsewhere on account of the rain. Corn in good condition, but growth retarded by cold nights.

Iowa—Wheat threshing delayed by the rains; estimated yield 25 bushels to the acre, black and sprouting and will grade low; oats damaged considerably and yield will be about 45 bushels to the acre; on the Omaha line this grain was nearly all destroyed; corn, while backward, is doing fine and with favorable weather will be a good crop.

Illnois—Heavy rains during the week delayed wheat threshing, 10 to 15 per cent. being stacked for later threshing; sprouting in many places and will be off grade; about 50 per cent. of the crop of oats has been threshed; badly stained and off grade in some sections; in some fields the crop was beaten down by storm and was not cut; the corn is looking good, except in low lands; some damage by wind and rain, but extent cannot yet be estimated; the hay crop is light and not of good quality; about 30 per cent. not yet cut on account of the rains; the apple crop prospect was never better.

BUSINESS GETTING BETTER.

Nickel Plate Recalls Some Furloughed Trainmen.

The improvement in the freight business on the Nickel Plate which set in a few days ago, appears to be permanent. More crews are necessary to handle it and some furloughed men are being recalled. Among these are Firemen R. T. Smith, R. J. Leatherman, J. F. Frederickson and G. H. Aigler and Brakemen T. J. Conners, F. H. Showers and P. V. Duncan. More will be recalled next week if the traffic continues to increase in volume.

TRAIN OF GASOLENE

Is Being Rushed East for Export to Europe.

An ususual freight, size of consignment considered, to pass over the Nickel Plate last night, was a train of thirty-six tank cars loaded with gasolene. It came from some western oil field and was delivered to the Nickel Plate at Osborne by one of the western roads. This is said to be one of the largest shipments of gasolene to pass through this city for many months.

IN THE CHURCHES

CELEBRATE TWENTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Rev. W. A. Griest and Wife Are Given Reception at Logansport.

In observance of the twentieth anniversary of their married life, a grand reception was recently given for Rev. W. A. Griest and wife at the Market street M. E. church, Logansport, where he is now in charge. Rev. Griest will be remembered by many Fort Wayne people, having been pastor of Simpson M. E. church, of this city. A Logansport newspaper has the following to say about the affair:

"One of the most pleasant social affairs ever given in the city was that given last evening at the Market Street M. E. church in honor of Rev. W. A. Griest and wife. It was in the nature of a reception and also a celebration of the twentieth wedding anniversary of the pastor and his wife.

The church was a bower of beauty with palms, vines and cut flowers completely decorated for a church wedding. As Mr. Griest and wife entered the church they were met at the door by four little flower girls, six years of age, daintily gowned in white who scattered flowers before them on the way to the altar. Rev. E. C. Dunn gave the address of welcome and the pastor and his wife responded. The couple were then escorted to the diningroom, which was also artistically decorated with flowers and greenery where light refreshments were served and Dr. M. B. Stewart acted as toastmaster. Responses were given."

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

In a Belgian Loft: A War Incident

There is a graphic little sketch in the United Free Church "Record" of a Sunday morning in a Belgian loft. There had been a sharp engagement, and the British troops holding a village had been hurriedly forced by great masses of the enemy to retire. In the confusion three Scottish privates and a corporal had been cut off in the streets and had backed into the first open door they came to. The occupants had fled, and they made their way up a long staircase, intending to find the roof and watch events from there. But it ended in an empty loft, where there was only a skylight beyond their reach. "Better lie low for a while," suggested the corporal as they stood listening to the terrible sounds outside. The Germans were evidently burning, looting and killing. Now and again they heard screams and the discharge of rifles; sometimes an explosion would shake the building; while the smell of burning wood penetrated to their retreat. This went on for hours. The soldiers knew they would be discovered sooner or later, and expected no mercy.

Suddenly the corporal said: "Lads, it's time for church parade; let's have a wee bit service here; it may be our last." The soldiers looked a little astonished, but they piled their rifles in a corner and came and stood at attention. The corporal took a small Testament from his breast pocket and turned over the pages. "Canna we sing something first? Try ye're hand at the 23rd Psalm. Quiet, noo-very quiet."

"Yea, though I walk in death's dark vale.
Yet will I fear none ill;
For Thou art with me; and Thy rod
And staff comfort me still."

There wasn't much melody about the tune, but the words came from the heart.

Then the corporal began: "Fear not them which kill the body but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear Him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not, therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows." As he read, there were loud shouts below; doors banged, and glass was smashed. But he went on: "He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for My sake shall find it." He ended, and his grave face took on a wry smile. "I'm no' a gude hand at this job," he said, "but we maun finish it off. Let us pray."

The corporal stood, with the book in his hand, and the others knelt and bowed their heads. A little haltingly, but very simply, he committed their way to God and asked for strength to meet their coming fate like men. While he prayed a heavy hand thrust open the door, and they heard an exultant exclamation and then a gasp of surprise. Not a man moved, and the corporal went calmly on. After a pause he began, with great reverence, to repeat the Lord's Prayer. That a German officer or private was standing there they realized; they did not see, but they felt, what was taking place. They heard the click of his heels, and they knew that he also was standing at attention. For a moment the suspense lasted and then came the soft closing of the door and his footsteps dying away. The tumult in the house gradually ceased, and soon afterwards the storm of war retreated like the ebb of the tide. At dusk four men ventured forth, and by making a wide detour worked round the flank of the enemy and reached the British outposts in safety.—George M. Graham.

Debt Carries You for Awhile, But, Groaning and Swea ting, You Carry Debt in the End

"WHAT A COMFORTABLE RIDE I AM HAVING!"

Several million young men are saying this now as they "CHARGE IT."

It is wonderful how comfortable life is while the charging process lasts.

You see what you want, you get it—and CHARGE IT.

One dollar suddenly becomes five dollars—any number of dollars—for you spend and you still have the one dollar.

Old Father Debt carries you along patiently for a little while. On he goes and carries the load, but then—

"CURSED BE THIS LOAD!"

Very different when the thing changes, when debt ceases to carry you and YOU begin to carry the heavy load of debt.

A picture is worth ten thousand words.

If you can't SEE the truth in these pictures you are among the vast majority that must learn only by experience. YOU WILL LEARN. When you feel the weight on your back that the man is carrying in this second picture you will wish that you had looked at the pictures more carefully.—San Francisco Call.

Five Reasons Worth Learning

Dr. Henry Smith Williams, of New York, an eminent specialist in nervous and mental diseases, summing up his investigations concerning alcohol and its effects, says:

"I am bound to believe, on the evidence, that if you take alcohol habitually in any quantity whatever, it is to some extent a menace to you. If you do this, I am bound to believe, in the light of what science has revealed:

"1. That you are tangibly threatening the physical structures of your stomach, your liver, your kidneys, your heart, your blood vessels, your nerves, your brain;

"2. That you are unequivocally decreasing your capacity for work in any field, be it physical, intellectual, or artistic.

"3. That you are in some measure lowering the grade of your mind, dulling your higher esthetic sense, and taking the finer edge off your morals.

"4. That you are distinctly lessening your chances of maintaining health and attaining long life; and,

"5. That you are entailing upon your descendants yet unborn a bond of incalculable misery."

Too bad that these five reasons may not be so impressed upon men and women that they be given the same horror of alcohol as they have been taught to feel toward the germs of tuberculosis—men will turn in horror from the thought of drinking tuberculosis germs in their milk, yet drink liquor that is more deadly!—The Miami (Fla.) Metropolis.

Personal Liberty Has Its Limits

"A man may not even do with his own body what he pleases," says Mr Charles Stelzle.

"Suppose he tries to kill it—to commit suicide. If he succeeds, Billy Sunday says he will go to hell. If he fails he will go to jail. And yet if the United States government should decide to go to war it assumes the right, if necessary, to send him to the front to be shot down. He belongs to the state as well as to himself. We have recently passed most stringent laws against the sale and use of certain kinds of drugs, because of the great injury which their use inflicts upon the human mind and body.

"If the state should decide that the saloon is a menace and that it dispenses poison, then society has a right to say that the saloon must go, no matter how it may affect anybody's personal liberty. We accept the restriction which the state imposes upon us in other relationships. Why not accept it with regard to the saloon, especially since it has been so clearly demonstrated that the interests of the saloon are always opposed to the interests of the workingman?"

OUR THREE FRIENDS

Friendship of the right sort means freedom of the best sort. The best thing that we can do for any man is to get him into touch with the right sort of friends; and our own life is never what it should be until our friends are what they should be. Fortunately we can all have exactly the friends that we most need. They are the heavenly Father, His Son, and the Holy Spirit. The way in which these friends prove their friendship for us has been revealingly suggested in the statement that God wills, Jesus works, and the Holy Spirit witnesses. It is God's will that men should be saved; our salvation originates in His loving purpose for us. Having willed this, he committed to His only Son the working out and the completing of our salvation. And the Holy Spirit is in the world today to make known to men the wonders of the work that is already done and that is yet to be done, for them, by Jesus Christ. It is as though an earthly king of absolute power assigned to his mightiest representative the work of providing for every need in the life of all his subjects, and then assigned to another equally mighty representative the mission of making known to his subjects the sufficiency of the provision that was made for them. Are we resting joyously in the friendship of our three friends?—S. S. Times.

LITTLE GREAT MEN

Jesus never mentioned any of earth's great men, so called, with words of praise. There had been great conquerors before his time, like Alexander the Great, but He never spoke of them. Rich men had received the notice of their fellow men, but He never mentioned one of them by name. None of those of whom human history speaks most largely came in for a word of commendation from Him or from his apostles in later years.

This should bid us pause and make us stop and think whether our human judgments are not totally faulty. Have we not put the seal of greatness where it does not belong? In what respect is the world better today for the existence of rich men like Croesus, of conquerors like Alexander, of philosophers like Plato, of authors like Cicero? What really valuable thing should we lose had such men never existed? Gather all the conquerors of the world together, and say whether they have been as useful to this world as one John Bunyan or one John Wesley. Put all your philosophical books together, and declare whether they have accomplished as much for humanity as the Epistle of Paul to the Galatians. Match Bismarck and Luther, and judge whether politician or preacher has the best of it in the long run. On the other hand, if you blot out Abraham, Joseph, Moses, David the singer (not David the king), Elijah, Isaiah, John the Baptist, Paul, from human history, you usher in blackness of darkness.—A. F. Schauffler in Sunday School Times.

DAVID'S SORROW OVER ABSALOM.

How David suffered for his sins! How greatly his sins found him out! He robbed Uriah of his heart's desire and was robbed of the hearts of his people. He deceived an honest soldier and was deceived by a dishonest son! He sent Uriah to his death and was condemned to mourn the death of his beloved Absalom. Pity him, the old man in his heavy sorrows! But be sure to learn the lesson: "The wages of sin is death."

ACTS AND RESOLUTIONS

Horace Mann once remarked: "I have never heard anything about the resolutions of the apostles, but a good deal about the acts of the apostles." It was a keen criticism, which every Christian will do well to remember. The boy who wrote, in an examination, that "resolution" meant "something that melted down" was not as far wide of the mark as he might have been. That is what happens to every resolution that does not get into action; and without action, resolution is not only worthless, but harmful, since it accustoms the mind to decide and then stop short of action.

Modern psychology declares, indeed, that action will produce feeling, if it is kept up. The act of smiling, persisted in, will evolve a cheerful feeling. The act seems to be the important thing, and to draw the mental processes after it. When a young man or woman desires to be a Christian, the doing of Christian acts will help along more than any amount of anxious meditation or excited feeling. Any man who wants to find Christ, and who will take the Beatitudes and go doggedly to work to act them out, will find himself a Christian disciple before he knows it, ready to accept Christ, needing Him with a personal need, understanding His words better every hour. "If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching," were the Savior's own words, and they remain as true as when spoken in Galilee. The way to God is through the gate of action.

Prayer is a stumbling-block to many Christians, who ought to know better, because of the tendency to make prayer unreal by separating it from action. A Christian who prays, to prepare himself for action, and then acts in the spirit of prayer, never needs to be argued with on the efficacy of prayer. He knows its power. The girl to whom prayer seems unreal and hard is making it a dream, a feeling, not linked to the realities of her daily life. Obedient action, yoked to prayer, is the answer to such difficulty—the true secret of the apostles.—Unknown.

GREED

Some of you may have read Tolstoi's fable, "How Much Land Does a Man Require?" In that striking story a Russian peasant is smitten with greed of land. Unable to obtain as much as he wishes from his old landlord, he seeks a new one, who in a freakish mood tells him he can have as much land for his money as he can walk round before sunset. The peasant joyfully agrees, and the owner lays his cap on a knoll and bids him walk round in a circle and return to the cap before the sun sinks. At first our gratified peasant walks leisurely, but presently he sees a desirable bit of land, the very patch for corn, and widens his circle to include it. A little further on he spies a piece that cries out for a potato crop and increases his pace to include that also. Another splendid piece of land comes to his view, and another, and yet another. To include them all he must run, and run he does; first slowly, then with all his might. At last he thinks he has enough, and notes with apprehension that the sun is very low in the sky, and the cap not yet in sight. He tries to increase his pace, but his feet are torn and bleeding, his head aches, his lungs work like a blacksmith's bellows, his veins are tense and swollen, his heart thumps like an iron hammer against his ribs. Still he makes an effort, and at last the cap is in sight. He is all but spent, every sinew is strained to snapping point, his head swims, there is a red mist before his eyes. But suddenly the loud cheering of the spectators bursts upon the humming ears, and with superhuman efforts he reaches the cap. As he reaches it he falls down dead, the sun goes down, and he lies dead.

This is not an old story. It happens every day. Men still drop dead in the cruel race in which greed holds the whip. Any doctor will confirm this, if you ask him. But the death of the soul comes first. When, do you think, did our peasant really die the only death that matters? Was it at the end of the race, when he sank down beside his prize? Was it during the race, or even at the beginning? In the deepest sense he was dead when he started—only a dead soul could run in such a race.—E. Hermann.

UP AND AT IT.

We are all liable to mishaps, errors and defeats. We undertake to do things which are beyond our power, and we often fail in our undertakings. Things do not turn out as we expected; we become discouraged, and are inclined to despond; but this is not the way of wisdom. A temporary failure may be a real and permanent blessing; there may have been a lesson which we have been slow to learn, which is emphasized by defeat. We have possibly trusted too much in our own strength, and needed to learn more about our weakness and helplessness; and now when the lesson is learned, we may be better fitted than ever before for activity, usefulness and success. It is a great thing to learn our weakness, to be made acquainted with our infirmities and our faults, and to understand wherein our strength lies. If we can only learn the lesson soon enough, if we are not too dull of hearing, we may gain instruction from the chastenings of the heavenly Father, and may say, "It is good for me that I have been afflicted; before I was afflicted I went astray, but now have I learned Thy law."

Trusting in God though we fall we shall not be utterly cast down. We have failed once, let us try again. We may have suffered defeat through disobedience, but if we follow Christ we are sure of victory.

LINCOLN ON TEMPERANCE.

On September 28, 1863, a delegation of the Sons of Temperance waited on President Lincoln. In an address to them, Mr. Lincoln said:

"If I were better known than I am you would not need to be told that in the advocacy of the cause of temperance you have in me a friend and sympathizer. When I was a young man I, in a humble way, made temperance speeches and I think I may say to this day I have never, by my example, belied what I then said.

"I think that the most reasonable men of the world have long since agreed that intemperance is one of the greatest if not the greatest of the evils among mankind."

This is the man that the liquor interests advertise as a saloonkeeper, a drinker of beer and an opposer of prohibition.

LOVE EFFACES.

Alexander the Great had an ugly scar on his forehead, received in battle. An artist who undertook his portrait hit upon the happy expedient of sketching the emperor leaning upon his elbow with his forefinger upon his forehead and thus covering the scar. So love finds a way to cover the defects of others.

How to Promote Peace in the Home

I.—Let each person remember that there are others in the house beside themselves.

II.—That all, be they old or young, have a right to be considered as well as yourself.

III.—That as there are differences of temper, disposition, and judgment amongst you, there should be bearing and forbearing.

IV.—Learn each other's tender point or peculiarity, and do all you can to avoid touching it.

V.—When angry or cross, count ten before you speak, and then only in a whisper.

VI.—If others are put out, do all you can to soothe; provoke not, reply not.

VII.—Enter into one another's trials, sickness, pleasures or plans, and seek to share them.

VIII.—Let sunshine into all your ways, works and words.

IX.—Provoke not the children to wrath; soothe, cheer, guide them aright.

X.—Praise when you can, and when you cannot, say nothing to wound or irritate.

XI.—Speak kindly to servants—do not lord it over those under you.

XII.—Let the servants do what is to be done, without waiting to be told to do it.

XIII.—Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. Phil. II. 2-8.

KEEP BUSY.

If you expect God to choose you for a great work, be busy; He seldom selects idlers. When He wished a deliverer for Israel, He went into the wilderness for Moses, who was watching sheep; when He wanted a man to save His people from the Midianites, He sent for Gideon, who was threshing wheat; when He wanted a man after His own heart to be king of Israel, He sent for David who was keeping sheep. Idlers do not suit; the Lord wishes those who are not only willing to work, but who are hard at it. Idlers are too often lazy, and that may be the cause of their idleness. Such seldom have enough ambition to take care of themselves, let alone caring for the Lord's work. But idlers suit Satan exactly. He likes such as have no ambition, for they make the best slaves. The devil wants slaves for his work, but God wants something better. He wishes men and women who have ambition, who take an interest in their work; He wishes servants who are anxious to rise, for He means to promote them some day. From servants He adopts them into His family, and makes them His children.—Forward.

FAMILY PRAYER

There is one mark of a household in which God is known, which is too often wanting in our day—I mean the practice of family prayer. Depend upon it, the worth of a practice of that kind can only be measured by its effects during a long period of time, and family prayers, though only occupying a few minutes, do make a difference to any household at the end of a year. How, indeed, can it be otherwise when each morning, and perhaps each evening, too, all the members of the family—the old and the young, the parents and the children, the master and the servants—meet on a footing of perfect equality before the Eternal One, in whose presence each is as nothing or less than nothing, yet to whom each is so infinitely dear that He has redeemed by His blood each and all of them? How must not the bad spirits that are enemies of pure and bright family life, flee away—the spirits of envy and pride and untruthfulness and sloth, and the whole tribe of evil thoughts—and make way for His gracious presence in the hearts of old and young alike, who, as He brings us, one by one, nearer to the true end of our existence.

HOT WEATHER HEALTH HINTS

SUN BATHS.

Prolonged exposure of the human body to bright sunlight in those not accustomed to its rays is dangerous. The damage is more than the sunburn which results, for physicians have shown that headache and symptoms of meningitis have developed after youths under their observation had been lying several hours in the sunlight with unprotected head and no clothing but bathing trunks.

The symptoms shown by these patients demonstrated that the sun's rays had evidently penetrated the skull, this indicating that sunstroke is the consequence of direct exposure to the sun, says the Journal of the American Medical association.

Sun baths are most popular with anemic and nervous city indoor workers, but too much sun is most apt to harm the nerve system of nervous people.

Instead of being benefited by long exposure to the sun the nervous are rendered more nervous, and when the summer is over they are tanned but otherwise in poorer condition than in spring.

No one welcomes more than the physician the "back to nature" tendency of recent years, but they are now being careful to warn against excesses and abuses in the "enjoyment of nature."

A knowledge of the law of immunity teaches that when our health is at its best our resisting power is at its best. Hence we say we are immune to disease. While it is wise and necessary to avoid, control and destroy disease-producing germs whenever found, it is very necessary to render the body as nearly immune as possible and then keep it in that condition.

SUMMER UNDERCLOTHING.

What sort of underclothing is best for one to wear in summer time? It's an important question from the health standpoint as well as from the point of comfort.

The man who works in the broiling sun or the woman especially should wear "woolens" even in summer. A shirt with a weave open enough to admit air to his body so that he will be cooled by evaporation is best.

The man who works in an office or who does not work his muscles hard enough to generate a great amount of heat, will find they are more comfortable if they wear cotton or linen underwear.

The office worker usually works where the atmosphere is low enough to offset the heat generated by his body.

As the office worker does not sweat excessively, cotton or linen underwear with an open weave, permitting access of air, can easily take care of the body's moisture.

In what sort of a position is your body when you work? Do you know that working bent over causes the body to adjust itself—bones, muscles and joints—to the unnatural position? Try to see that you have exercise in recreation hours which will offset the bent-over tendency.

MEAT.

Those who are careful of their health eat but little meat during the real hot days of mid-summer. The superabundance of nourishment, combined with the hot weather, throws too much of a strain on the organs.

Office men, men who, as a rule, do not get enough outdoor exercise, invariably eat too much meat the year round, and particularly during the mid-summer season.

Meat is bad for people suffering from a fever, not so much on account of digestion, but because meat has a tendency to increase the fever.

Meat is also bad in its effect on the general nervous system. A little meat is all right, but the danger lies in making it the principal part of one's diet.

Pain is felt in certain nerve areas in many cases of chronic constipation, which indicates that the sore nerves are poisoned. This poison is generated in the large intestine and the disturbance disappears quickly when the abnormal intestinal decomposition, often caused by an excess of meat and proteid,

A TEMPERANCE LESSON WITHOUT WORDS

BEGINNING THE DAY WITH GOD

Every day should be commenced with God and upon the knees. He begins the day unwisely who leaves his chamber without a secret conference with his heavenly Friend. The true Christian goes to his closet both for his panoply and his "rations" for the day's march and its inevitable conflicts. As the Oriental traveler sets out for the sultry journey by loading up his camel under the palm tree's shade, and by filling his flagons from the cool fountain that sparkles at its roots, so does God's wayfarer draw his fresh supplies from the unexhausted spring. Morning is the golden time for devotion. The mercies of the night provoke to thankfulness. The buoyant heart, that is in love with God, makes its earliest flight, like the lark, toward the gates of heaven. Gratitude, faith, dependent trust, all prompt to early interviews with Him who never slumbering Himself, waits on His throne for our morning orisons. We all remember Bunyan's beautiful description of his Pilgrim's lodging over night in the "Chamber of Peace," which looked toward the sunrising, and at daybreak he "awoke and sang." If stony Egyptian "Memnon" made music when the first rays kindled on his flinty brow, a devout heart should not be mute when God causes the outgoings of His mornings to rejoice. No pressure of business or household duties should crowd out prayer.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

TWO HURT IN AUTO SMASH

dangerous curves at Devil's Hollow, causing the machine to plunge down an embankment a distance of several feet. The other occupants of the car fell clear of the machine, while Miss Burtnett was pinioned beneath it, the heavy car having to be lifted from off her body by the other members of the party before she could be rescued. Al Schnorr, residing at 2011 Maumee avenue, was slightly injured about the leg. The other members of the party escaped with only a few minor scratches.

Although the accident occurred at 2 o'clock it was not until after 5 o'clock that Miss Burtnett was brought to the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Burtnett, 333 East Main street, with whom she has been making her home. Later she was removed to Hope hospital and late Thursday morning was unable to give any information except her name and place of residence. The car was badly damaged and had to be brought to the city on a hay wagon.

May Have Been Intoxicated.

"My granddaughter could give but little information when she was brought home," Mrs. Burtnett told a Sentinel reporter. "They may have all been intoxicated or the accident would never have occurred. I did not want her to go, but she insisted and bade me goodby with the remark that if she did not get killed she would be back."

Miss Burtnett is 20 years old and pretty. Up to a couple of months ago she had been working in Auburn. When a child both her parents died nine months apart from the effects of tuberculosis.

Her injuries were attended Thursday morning by Dr. Dean Metcalf, who found her right arm badly crushed and a bad cut extending from the middle of her forehead to her nose, besides a number of bruises all over her body.

Reports to the Sheriff.

Ertel reported the accident at the sheriff's office shortly after noon, and explained that on account of a dense fog he could not see his way and consequently went over the embankment. He said the party was composed of Miss Burtnett and two girls whose names he did not know, Lloyd Erwin, Al Schnorr and himself. One of the girls was known as Marie. She lives on the Lincoln highway. The damaged car was the property of Ertel's brother-in-law.

LAKE AVENUE PAVING MATTER TO COME UP

Board Will Give Hearing to Project Once Killed by Remonstrance.

In a big mass of improvement resolutions upon which the board will give final hearings Thursday evening the most important is that for the paving of Lake avenue from Anthony boulevard to the east line of Lakeside park place addition. This is that part of Lake avenue that is unpaved and makes an ugly gap between the paved portion and the Maysville road, which has been given a tarvia pavement. The project was up several months ago and was killed by remonstrance of resident property owners, who want the grade of that portion of the street changed before it is paved, a condition which the board will not acquiesce in. It is understood that if this resolution is killed by remonstrance the city council will pass an ordinance ordering the pavement, a power that is vested in that body. That there will again be remonstrance against the resolution is expected.

Other resolutions upon which hearings will be given are the following:

To grade Spring street to a width of twenty-six feet from Short to Barthold and sidewalks on the north side.

Sidewalks—Both sides of Lafayette street, Columbia to Holman; both sides of Clay street, Washington to Holman; east side of Gay street, Horace to Buchanan; west side of Bowser avenue, Emily to Pontiac; east side of Webster street, Wildwood to Packard; north side of Savilla avenue, Broadway to Indiana; both sides of Poplar street, Hoagland to Fairfield; east side of Hoagland avenue, Williams to Butler; south side of Wilt street, College to Nelson; south side of Putnam street, Warsaw to Sherman.

Local sewers—Along line between lots 52 and 53 of Newhaus addition, from Sherman street to the alley between Sherman and Oakland from Archer to Margaret; in alley between Alexander and Abbott streets from a point 25 feet north of the north line of Abbott's outlots numbered 67 to the alley south of Pontiac and in the alley south of Pontiac from Alexander to Abbott; in and along Wayne street from Francis to Harmar.

NO MONEY FOR RUDISILL.

Board of Works Not Likely to Advance Cash to Park Board.

As matters now stand, it is probable that the board of works will not advance to the park board the money needed by the latter to pay for the city's share of putting Rudisill boulevard in condition from Calhoun street to Broadway. The board does not believe that in view of the numerous demands it is unable to meet for the paving of streets that it can deplete its funds or ask an appropriation to carry on park board improvements. The outlook is that the park board will have to find its own means or let the improvement of the street go over to next year when its own appropriations will become available. It was for a time thought the board of works might advance the money so that the street may be graded and given a broken stone surface that would last until a re-appraisement of the property on Rudisill would bring it up to a valuation that would permit legal assessment for a pavement. The board of works will make arrangements to repave East Creighton avenue as early as possible next spring.

PEOPLE MUST SHOW INTEREST.

In a conference with Mayor W. J. Hosey, Wednesday afternoon, Congressman Cyrus Cline stated that if the city of Fort Wayne expected federal aid in establishing means of flood prevention they must show their desire for it by giving signature to the petitions for a drainage district to be created by the courts under the flood prevention law passed for the relief of this city. Mr. Cline approved the mayor's suggestion that the federal government widen and deepen the channel of the Maumee river from Fort Wayne to Toledo and will take it up with members of congress at an early day.

become sufficiently aroused to investigate, and dropped to sleep again.

That no volatile drugs that would produce sleep were used is indicated by the absence from the room of any trace of odor and the concordant stories of the girls that they felt well when they awoke.

Miss Archer Shorn Close.

Both Miss Archer and Miss Ott had luxurious growths of hair, Miss Archer's brown and Miss Ott's raven black. Miss Archer's strands fell to her waist and Miss Ott's almost to her knees. The hair-cutter trimmed Miss Archer's tresses in ragged fashion quite close to her scalp, while he considerately left enough of the other girl's braids to reach half-way down her back.

On the floor of the chamber occupied by the girls was found a heavy lock of Miss Archer's hair that had been dropped by the nocturnal tonsorialist.

That the outrage was committed hurriedly is shown by the ragged manner in which the hair was cut off, the work on Miss Archer's head being strikingly so.

Kitchen Door Was Open.

When the Archer family arose for the day Thursday morning the door from the kitchen to the back porch was found open and the key gone. The outside cellar door was not fastened, but the door communicating from the kitchen to the inside cellar-way was locked. Members of the family are positive the rear kitchen door was fastened Wednesday night before they retired and all seem equally positive as to the front door.

There is a rear stairway that leads to the second floor, landing at the corridor near the door to the room occupied by the young ladies.

No one in the household can recall having been disturbed during the night by any noises and no one was aroused at all save Miss Ott, when she thought Miss Archer had taken hold of her hair.

Find a Clue in Back Yard.

Near a peach tree at the lower end of the back yard of the Archer premises there was picked up Thursday morning a life insurance rate book that may prove to be a clue when the owner of it is identified. So far the police have not gained anything definite.

All the members of the Archer family and of the Ott family say they cannot think of anyone who would have a vengeful motive in such an outrage. They are on friendly terms with their neighbors and have no enemies that they know of.

The sale of specially fine strands of hair is frequently a motive in such outrages, but these crimes are usually committed on the street and housebreaking is seldom the means of such offenses.

It is doubtful if any mercenary motive prompted this outrage. The Archer family is large and with the guests in the house made forcible entry of the house and the cutting of the girls' hair a proceeding of extreme risk.

Intends to Become a Nurse.

W. S. Archer, father of Miss Gladys, is proprietor of a grocery at 1038 Wells street and his residence is the next structure to the north. Miss Gladys has been employed as a clerk in the store, but had arranged to enter the Lutheran hospital next week as a student nurse. She and Miss Ott were at first much grieved by the loss of their hair, but later became more philosophical and were disposed to make light of the outrage.

There is a theory that one or the other of the girls was the special object of the outrage and that the other was made also to suffer for the purpose of making detection of the perpetrator more difficult.

been instructed to sink no merchant vessels without warning.

Will Revive Proposal.

It is understood that Germany, at the same time, will revive her proposal for a modus vivendi for relaxation of British restrictions on neutral commerce. In German quarters it was said that this step, which had been in contemplation in Germany for some time, could now be announced because of the victories in Poland. German officials, it was explained, consider that the victories to their armies in the campaign against the Russians permit Germany to recede a step on the sea.

Count Bernstorff brought nothing to the state department to supplement his telegram of Tuesday or the overnight news dispatches containing the German chancellor's statement broadly inferring that a settlement of a character satisfactory to the United States probably would be made in the case of the Arabic. The ambassador however, reiterated his previous disclaimer of any intent that Americans should be harmed.

Better Face on Situation.

Count Bernstorff's visit to Secretary Lansing and the advices from Berlin containing the German chancellor's statement have put a much better face on the whole situation. There is a notable relaxation of tension at the white house and at the state department. It was made plain at both places today that while officials were much encouraged by the apparent desire of Germany to avoid a break with the United States, the president will not finally decide on his course until he has before him a definite statement of the Berlin government's intentions.

It seems certain now that there will be diplomatic exchanges in the Arabic case. In addition to satisfying the American government in that single instance they are expected to take on a general character of submarine warfare and the rights of neutrals on the seas.

HAD ADOPTED NEW PLAN.

Change in Berlin Policy Before the Arabic Was Sunk.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The Associated Press is in a position to state on the best authority that the Arabic incident may be considered as eliminated as a source of discord between Germany and America, or at least is regarded by the German government in that light.

Moreover Germany in its desire to continue its friendly relations with the United States, had adopted before the sinking of the Arabic a policy designed to settle completely the whole submarine problem affecting America on the basis of good will and mutual understanding.

This is shown clearly by the statement of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg last night to the Associated Press, particularly his concluding remark to the effect that not until the circumstances in connection with the sinking of the Arabic had been cleared up would it be possible to say "whether the commander of one of our submarines went beyond his instructions" in which case Germany would give complete satisfaction to the United States.

Furthermore, during the conversation, the chancellor twice again referred to the instructions given to submarine commanders. He did not specify in detail the nature of these instructions but it may be said that they are designed to prevent a repetition of the Lusitania case and to provide the opportunity for escape for American noncombatants upon torpedoed ships which the United States desires.

Having given these instructions, Germany asked suspension of judgment on the Arabic case until the facts were ascertained, being confident it will be shown that the sinking of the vessel was not an unprovoked attack without warning by a German submarine but was attributed either to a mine explosion or to some action of the vessel itself. Should it develop, however, that a submarine acted contrary to instructions, ample reparation will be offered.

Germany is still unable to understand why Americans in these troubled times travel on belligerent ships instead of taking American or other neutral steamers but since they in some instances insist upon taking passage on vessels belonging to belligerents, Germany will do its utmost to provide for their safety.

"It is not permissable to quote remarks made by the chancellor in the course of the conversation other than to the formal statement which he made. It may be said, however, that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg showed genuine interest in the state of feeling in the United States concerning the Arabic and expressed the hope that the American people would not form an opinion on the basis of conflicting statements giving only one side of the story. He spoke with emphasis of Germany's desire to maintain the friendship of America. The chancellor appeared to be in good health and spirits and greatly encouraged by the successes achieved by the Germans in the eastern campaign. The interview necessarily was of short duration as the chancellor was hurrying away for a conference with Emperor William at his field headquarters.

WAR'S BIGGEST AIR RAID.

French Air Squadron Hurls Shells on German Arms Factory.

Paris, Aug. 26.—Sixty-two French aviators on August 25 flew over a German arms factory to the north of Saarlouis, throwing down a total of more than 150 shells. Thirty of these were of large calibre.

Announcement of the aerial raid is made in the statement given out by the war office this afternoon. The statement reads:

"On August 25 an aerial squadron composed of four groups and including a total of sixty-two aviators flew over the heights of Dellingen. Here there is a factory where shells and armor plate are made. The location of this plant is to the north of Saarlouis, in Rheinish Prussia, thirty miles southeast of Treves. The aviators threw down with precision over 150 bombs, thirty of which were of large calibre."

So far as official reports have disclosed there never had been previously an air raid of such magnitude, so far as concerns the number of machines employed, as yesterday's attack by sixty-two aeroplanes. In a few earlier ventures of the kind thirty or more aeroplanes were used.

Press dispatches have indicated that the principal belligerents have built great numbers of aeroplanes and as a result of the development of this branch of the service since the outbreak of the war these machines are now sent forth in flotillas for organized assaults on a large scale instead of being dispatched singly or in pairs, chiefly for observation purposes.

Yesterday's raid was the third in this part of Germany during the last three weeks. On August 9 Saarbruecken was bombarded, and three days later the neighboring towns of Saint Ingenberg and Sweibruecken were attacked. Eight persons were killed in the latter raid.

H. R. FREEMAN IMPROVING.

Will Return Home Within the Next Three Weeks.

Most encouraging word is received from Rochester, Minn., concerning the condition of H. R. Freeman, cashier of the First National bank, who was recently operated upon at the Mayo Bros.' hospital for stomach trouble. He is improving nicely and will probably be brought home within the next three or four weeks.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

Miller Family Reunion.

The Jacob S. Miller family held its fifth annual reunion in Swinney park on Wednesday. There was an attendance of nearly 100 members and all had an enjoyable time. The address of the day was given by Rev. E. Q. Lauderman, pastor of the First Evangelical church. The forenoon was spent in renewing old acquaintances. The noon hour was enjoyed in the pavilion devouring chickens and other good things. The afternoon was taken up in various contests and games for all. The two feature games were playing duch stone and pitching horseshoes. The next reunion will be held in Goshen, on the third Saturday in August. Officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: President, V. C. Miller, vice president, Wm. Beck, Secretary-treasurer, C. W. Carrel.

James F. Beber, ticket agent at the interurban station, has gone to near Auburn with his family to spend a few days. During his absence his place is being taken by S. J. Rider, assistant ticket agent.

PUTRID DIVORCE SUIT IS ON TRIAL

Catherine and David Smith Each Fighting for a Decree.

For undiluted nastiness the testimony in the suit of Catherine Smith for divorce from David Smith, who is fighting with a cross complaint, is a little worse than anything heard recently in the superior court, where the cause is on trial. Each accuses the other of gross immoralities and has brought in testimony to prove it. Among the witnesses was the young daughter of the plaintiff. She is one of the girls who figured in the exposures made by the "scandal grand jury" in the spring of 1913, in which several prominent men were involved.

Didn't Show Her Bigamist.

When the superior court gave a hearing Thursday to the counter showing filed by Thomas Tomson against Mabel Tomson's demand that he be made to pay an allowance for her support while a divorce suit is pending, Thomas failed to sustain his allegation that his wife has living another husband from whom she never was divorced and Judge Yaple ordered him to pay her $15 a month, beginning August 28, until the divorce suit is disposed of. Mrs. Tomson denied his further complaint that he has been obliged to support his wife's father and her grown-up son. She says she has to work to earn her living and that her relatives living in her home pay board.

Notes of the Courts.

In the circuit court Harold N. and James P. Weller have brought suit against the D. M. Sears company for $2,500 on account.

In the suit of John G. Zimmer vs. Guy W. Pinkham, in the superior court, the parties agreed to the discharge of the receiver of the property involved and the mortgaged property was surrendered to the plaintiff, except such as has been found to be the property of the defendant and in consideration of this a credit of $735.93 is given the defendant on the judgment rendered against him.

Frank M. Hogan has begun suit in the superior court against the Standard Cooperage company for collection of $800 on note and account and for garnishment. Colerick & Hogan are the plaintiff's attorneys.

A. George Fiedler has applied to the superior court for admission to the bar of Allen county and Judge Yaple has appointed Phil B. Colerick, Frank A. Emrick and John H. Aiken a committee to examine the applicant.

John Bayer has brought suit in the superior court against Arthur F. Koons and his wife for possession of real estate and $100 damages. Barrett, Morris & Hoffman are the plaintiff's attorneys.

John C. Kohr, Fred W. Soest and George Soest have sued Julian Grosjean in the superior court in replevin proceedings for $175.

MUCH GRAIN ON THE NEW FARM.

Allen county will harvest this year from its new 800-acre farm north of the city 5,000 bushels of oats, 1,000 bushels of wheat, 500 bushels of rye, 6,000 bushels of corn and 800 bushels of potatoes. There was a threshing bee at the county farm Wednesday and Commissioners Butt, Schwier and Black and County Treasurer J. Herman Bueter and others were guests and had a friendly contest at pitching sheaves, in which the treasurer carried off the honors.

AFTER ROAD VANDALS.

County Surveyor Ralph W. Guenther will prosecute the vandals who have been breaking through the barricades on county highways under improvement and driving over them to the great damage of the roads, if he can identify the persons. Great damage has been wrought on the Scipio road in this manner lately.

New York Constitutional Convention Reverses Its Action.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 26.—By a vote of 77 to 67 the constitutional convention today reversed its action of yesterday and rejected the literacy test for voters. The action was taken on C. H. NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE FARMER

THE WAY TO PREVENT HOG CHOLERA

By J. KASTLE and R. GRAHAM

Hog cholera is the greatest menace to successful hog raising. It is by far the most contagious and fatal of any of the disease of swine. The disease is due to an ultra-microscopic virus which is present in the blood, the excreta and in the carcasses of all infected animals. The infection may be carried from infected to healthy herds by a number of agencies, such as running water, birds, dogs, new stock from infected sources, and also on the shoes of persons who have walked over infected areas. We can only hope to control, and ultimately eradicate hog cholera by honest, conscientious and painstaking efforts on the part of all farmers and hog raisers looking to the effective isolation of all animals having the disease, scrupulous cleanliness in the handling and care of hogs, disinfection of infected premises, the burning of all carcasses of hogs that have died of this disease, proper care in the selection of fresh stock and the careful and intelligent use of hog cholera serum.

Hogs should be fed a balanced ration consisting of such materials as corn and various corn products, bran, wheat middlings, oil meal, tankage and distillers' dried grains and, whenever possible, they should be supplied with forage crops, such as green alfalfa or alfalfa hay. Hogs should be supplied with an abundance of pure, clean water, plenty of shade in hot weather, dry bedding, and airy, light, well ventilated hog houses.

Great care should be exercised in the purchase of new stock in order to secure healthy, vigorous animals, free from disease. In this connection, it is well to bear in mind that hog cholera has an incubation period lasting from 5 to 20 days, during which time the animal may appear normal to all intents and purposes. Separate quarters should be provided for the isolation of all newly purchased animals, where they may be kept from the rest of the herd for a period of three weeks, and kept under observation for any symptom of the disease that may appear.

Following an outbreak of hog cholera in a herd, a thorough cleaning up and disinfection of hog lots and quarters must be resorted to. Fire and fresh air-slaked lime are the most efficient agents for the destruction of hog cholera virus. Scatter fresh air-slaked lime abundantly about the hog lots or disinfect with a 3 per cent solution of cresol compound and whitewash the hog houses and fences.

Sick hogs should not be sold; neither should they be driven along public highways or transported in cars from place to place, or placed in public stock yards or pens. In other words, the only way to properly control this disease is to isolate it, and though it may work a temporary hardship on the individual owner to do this ,it is certainly, ultimately ,to his interest and to the interest of the great body of hog raisers, to do all in his power to establish and maintain a rigid and effective quarantine with respect to this disease.

The only means of protecting the hog against cholera is by inoculation with hog cholera serum, or with hog cholera serum and virus.

The serum alone confers an immunity lasting from six to eight weeks, while the double treatment (inoculation of the hog on one side with serum and on the other side with virus), shows a lasting or permanent immunity to hog cholera.

KEEPING EGGS IN WATER GLASS.

There are several good methods of preserving eggs but the water glass method is best. Water glass can usually be purchased at a local drug store for less than $1 a gallon, making the cost about one cent for each dozen eggs.

The receptacle used should be an earthenware jar of from five to ten gallons. The eggs should be placed in the jar each day, when gathered, as the fresher the egg the better it will keep. Care should be exercised to see that none of the eggs is cracked, or the whole jar of eggs may be spoiled in a short time.

The jar should be placed in a cool cellar, a piece of oiled paper or some other water-proof cover should be placed over to prevent evaporation. If this is not done, any eggs that appear above the liquid will spoil rapidly. The eggs should be kept at least two inches below the surface of the liquid.

The solution recommended is one part of water glass to ten parts of pure water.

KEEP MILK AS COLD AS POSSIBLE

The colder milk is kept, the longer it will remain sweet. Bacteria are responsible for the changes which take place, and bacteria increase in numbers very slowly at low temperatures. Therefore, do not leave milk where it will get warm. If possible, put it directly against the ice. If this cannot be done, put it in the compartment of the ice box directly beneath the ice, for the air circulating through the ice chest is coldest directly after it passes over the ice. If no ice box is used, keep the milk as cool as possible by putting it in the cellar, or by wrapping the bottle in a damp cloth and setting it out of the direct sunlight in a current of air.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF THE SILO

By W. J. FRASER, Illinois

The digestive organs of animals that chew the cud are so formed as to require comparatively juicy and bulky food. The cow cannot, therefore, thrive on exclusively dry food so well as can the horse. The nearest an ideal food that can be obtained for the dairy cow is good pasture; but, in many sections, for more than six months in the year green pasture is not available. The best substitutes to use during this period are corn silage and such roots as mangels and turnips. Corn yields an average of twice as much dry matter per acre as do root crops, and since the latter require much more labor, which in this country is relatively expensive, silage is far more economical.

Making corn into silage is a means of preserving the grain as well as the stalk in the best possible condition for feeding and without the expense of shelling and grinding. In feeding whole corn, either in the ear or shelled, many of the kernels are not digested. With silage, the grain being eaten with the roughage, nearly all the kernels are broken during mastication, and, since they are somewhat soft, are practically all digested.

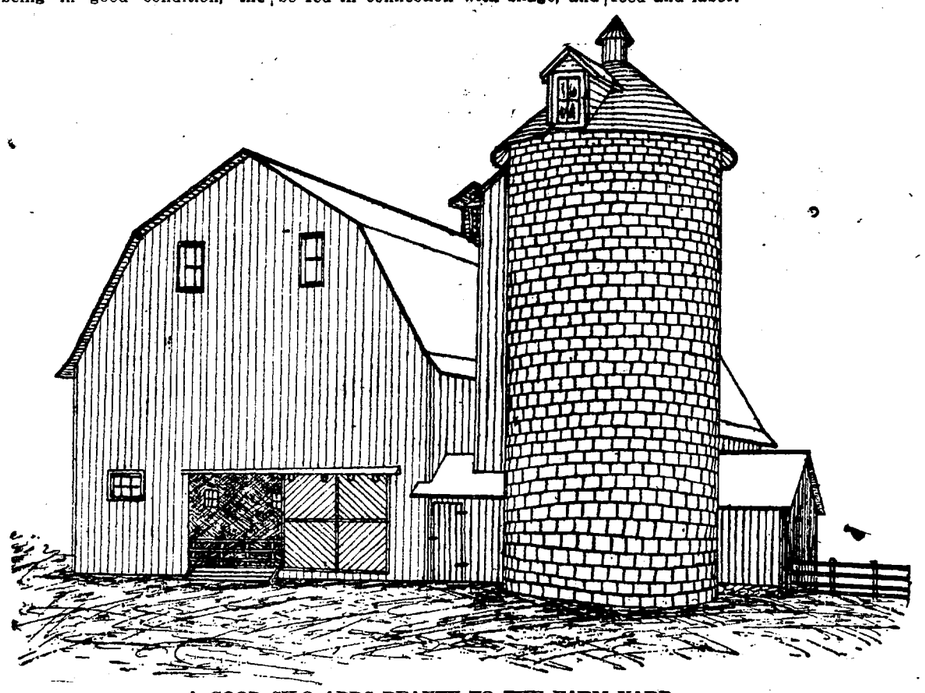
By the use of the silo the corn is removed from the field at a time when no injury is done the land by cutting it up while soft. As the corn is cut before the blades are dry enough to shatter, there is no waste from weathering and both stock and grain being in good condition, the whole crop is consumed by the stock, while with dry shock corn a large percentage of the leaves and butts of the stalk is wasted.

It has been determined that one cubic foot of hay in the mow contains about 4.3 pounds of dry matter, and that a cubic foot of silage in a thirty-six foot silo contains about 8.9 pounds of dry matter. From this it is evident that a cubic foot of space in a silo of proper depth will hold more than twice as much dry matter as the corresponding space in a mow. It is also true that on the average a larger amount of digestible feed can be obtained from an acre in the form of silage than in any other way at like expense. Making corn into silage is then both an economical and compact method of storing feed.

Much damage has been done to the cause of silage by the extravagant claims of its over-enthusiastic friends. Although corn silage is not a complete and balanced ration in itself, it is so well relished that large quantities are consumed. Being a succulent feed, it tends to heavy milk production, and should be given an important place in the ration of dairy cows. It has proved an important factor in steer feeding as well as in milk production, but a steer cannot be finished on silage alone, any more than a cow can produce her best yields of milk on such a ration. To obtain the most economical returns, some dry roughage should be fed in connection with silage, and a legume hay, as alfalfa, clover, or cowpeas, is the best for this purpose, particularly for young stock and cows. Economical milk can be produced from these feeds without the addition of grain, if the cows are not giving more than two gallons of milk a day, providing the corn was well eared and both the silage and the legume hay are of excellent quality. Cows giving a larger yield must have grain added to their ration.

A pasture will carry much more stock during spring, early summer, and fall, than it will through the hot, dry weather of midsummer. By helping the pasture out at this season with partial soiling, the cattle not only have better feed during this critical period, but more stock can be carried on a given area than by pasturing alone. As land increases in value and farming becomes more intensive, there is greater need for soiling, and the most satisfactory method of providing a substitute is by means of the silo. It requires too much labor to cut green crops every day and haul them to the cows, and besides there is necessarily a great loss in being obliged to feed the crops before they are fully mature and after they are over-ripe.

No crop furnishes more feed to the acre than corn, and with the silo it can be utilized for soiling, thus permitting the whole crop to be harvested when at the right stage of maturity and fed when needed, saving both feed and labor.



A GOOD SILO ADDS BEAUTY TO THE FARM YARD.

POPULARITY OF THE PERCHERONS

By E. E. HENDERSON

The Percheron has proven himself to be the breed most adapted to the demands of the user of the draft-horse, in all sections of the country.

They do well on the cotton fields of the south and in the wheat fields of Canada. They are popular in the east and in the west. On the farm they are the farmers' mainstay.

In the city they are able to withstand the hard work better than any other breed, witness the fact that dealers often pay as much as $20, in the hundred, for horses bearing that indelible Percheron color, gray, more than for horses of similar quality but lacking that trade mark.

The demand of today is for a horse that can stand the strain of long hours, pulling heavy loads over all kinds of roads. For a horse that is prompt and yet quiet, one that can move the heaviest of loads and yet, when the occasion demands it, can get up and go. The Percheron seems to be the one horse that can fully fill these requirements.

A thing that is much desired by the corn-belt farmer is economy of maintenance. The horse to be desired is not only one that can do a large day's work, but one that will do it on a minimum of feed. A case in point: We have in one of our teams a pure-bred Percheron mare of 1900 pounds.

Her team mate, carrying a large percentage of the blood of another popular breed, weighs about the same.

These two mares do exactly the same work, have the same attention and yet the grade mare eats 20 per cent more feed daily than does the pure-bred Percheron. Even then she is not in the condition of her mate. While the Percheron is smooth, and in fine condition, the other is thin and, to the eye, unlovely.

I have a communication from one of the leading importers in the United States, in which he states that he can keep his Percherons in show-yard condition on the same feed that it requires to keep his Shires and Clydesdales in good breeding condition.

Surely here is a subject worthy of consideration by the intending purchasers of draft horses.

The thing that most serves to arouse my admiration for the breed is their wonderful disposition. We find in them a combination of almost all the best traits of horseflesh.

They are ever on their mettle, yet not nervous or fretful. They are free, prompt workers and always willing. They always keep their "heads." It is very seldom we find one that is over-headstrong.

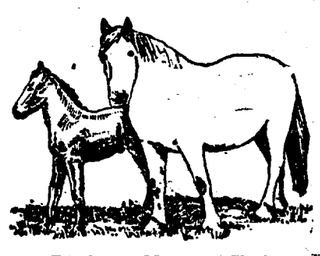
We have reached an age when the demands of the time are for the large, yet early maturing animal. The Percheron comes very near to filling this bill.

On our farm we breed our fillies as two-year-olds and work our stallions at the same age.

It is true that it takes a trifle more feed per year, to mature them at this early age, but, when we consider that we save one year's care and expense, the smallness of the extra feed is apparent.

I have in mind a mare that is a great-grandmother at nine years of age, yet her colts, bred as two-year-olds, are today larger than the mother, and the second generation has all that can be desired in the way of size.

We have colts produced by three-year-old fillies that will compare favorably with those of more mature mares. The same mares were worked the fall after they weaned the colt, while they were carrying the second foal.



Percheron Mare and Foal.

In these days of high-priced land the call is for "high pressure" operations; and the man that gets his horses to work for him the earliest, without dwarfing them, is the one who has the inside track.

In my opinion the working of male colts as two-year-olds and the breeding of fillies at the same age, not only cuts down the expensive feed bills, but the horses, both mares and stallions, are all the better breeders for having been put to a moderate amount of work at an early age.

These horses develop into big, strong animals, fully large enough for the needs of the most discriminating men. When I tell you that a four-horse team that is in the field every day plowed 35 acres of corn ground in one week, you can readily see that they are made to work, and these mares are breeders, too.

Every one of them raised a colt last year, and every one a good one. They are re-bred and we hope to do well this year. They are the kind that have made the Percheron the most popular in field, in the city streets or in the arena.

Big, rugged, strong-boned, well muscled and correctly built; strong backs, capable of sustaining any load; well sprung ribs, giving plenty of room to the vital organs; plenty of room to carry their dinners, and, best of all, they have strong, sensible heads. Heads that, when you examine, remind you of a broad-minded, intelligent man.

By far too many of us seem to think that after fruit trees or shade trees are once set out, they need neither care nor cultivation.

Children in their teens can care for bees and will enjoy doing it.

Next Year's Crop

In order to have the best of flowers and vegetables next year, the seed must be very carefully saved from this year's crop. Have bags containing seeds marked carefully and in detail. If the seed is of Mrs. Brown's pansies, write that on the bag; and any other information regarding the plant, the seed of which you desire to keep. Then hang the bags up out of reach of mice or other vermin.

FOREST FIRES.

An especially good showing was made by the Forest officers last year in extinguishing fires outside the National Forests before they reached the forest boundaries. Such fires constituted more than one-sixth of all fought by the Forest rangers and guards. About nine-tenths were extinguished before they touched the forests. Of the fires within the forest boundaries, more than 18 per cent were on lands in private ownership. Nearly one-fourth of the extra expenditures due to fighting fires—that is, expenditures outside the time of the regular forest force—was incurred in fighting these fires.

Lightning caused more fires than any other agency, followed by railroads, campers, and incendiaries, in the order given.

MOTHER NATURE.

Mother nature is generally very careful about how she treats her trees, plants and vines, and if given full permission to handle things as she likes, will pull them through seasons of rain and cold, heat and drought and bring them out in full leaf and free blossom when the right time for new dresses arrives; and where foliage and bloom bedeck the trees and plants, fruits will form and mature, to surprise the predictors of evil and gladden the hearts of the tillers of the earth.

During the season of fruit stains, it is well to look carefully to the table linen. If there is a sign of a stain, pour boiling water through it as soon as possible. This will remove all but the stain from peaches.

To reach a mountain top, the number of times we fall does not count; it is the picking up and going on that gains the pinnacle.

Ways to Fight Quack-Grass

Quack-grass can be exterminated. F. L. Kennard, of Minnesota, says that the principal requisite is a firm resolve to rid the farm of the pest.

The weed reproduces both from seed and from underground root stocks. It may be brought to a farm in the form of seed, but the spread is usually by scattering root stocks about with the harrow or other farm implement.

Mr. Kennard recommends two methods of attack: Growing a cultural crop, and summer-fallowing.

Where the land is badly infested the former will require a great deal of hard labor. If the pest is to be exterminated no green portion must be allowed to show itself and that means eternal vigilance on the part of the farmer. It is not enough to keep the soil clean between the rows. None of the grass must be permitted to grow in the hills. Two years of this treatment is recommended.

When land is partly occupied, the summer fallow method is probably most economical. One crop is lost but the additional yield the succeeding year will usually offset this when the low cost of cultivating fallow land as compared with corn land is considered. The field should be plowed in the fall and again in the spring to a depth of six or eight inches. A good mulch three inches deep should be prepared with disk and harrow and this mulch kept cultivated with sufficient frequency to prevent any growth above the surface of the ground. By preventing this part from developing the roots are simply starved to death.

ANXIOUS TO LEARN.

The steadily increasing attendance at existing Schools of Agriculture, and the demand for more such schools in addition to the demand for agricultural instruction in the common schools, show that farmers are awake, as never before in history, to the fact that the size of their incomes from the soil is largely a matter of education. The man who knows when to plow, and why; when to plant, and why; when to reap, and why, is seen to have a decided advantage over him to whom the time for each of these functions is a mere "happenstance" and who never concerns himself with the "Why?" Scientific exactness is becoming the rule on the farm as well as in the laboratory and the machine shop; and exactness comes only with the mastery of principles.—C. R. B.

The largest orange tree in the south is a gigantic specimen which grows out of the rich soil in Terrebonne Parish, La. It is fifty feet high and fifteen feet in circumference at the base.

Take a receipt for all bills paid. It may save a second payment of hard-earned dollars. This is business every time.

Successful Rat Trap

A trap which has been known to catch the rodents by the dozens is called the barrel trap. Procure a water-tight barrel, put a rock in the bottom that will reach up about a foot high, and pour in sufficient water to nearly cover the rock, leaving just the upper point sticking out, and it should be about large enough to hold a single rat.

In place of the upper head, stretch a piece of very thick wrapping-paper over the top of the barrel and fasten it securely, by means of the top hoop or a cord.

Dampen the paper slightly with a moist sponge, and it will become tight when dry. Feed the rats on this paper head, with cheese-parings and other things that they like, for several nights in succession, so as to get the rats accustomed to coming without fear or suspicion.

After you have gained their confidence, cut a cross slit in the middle of the paper and spread the feed as before.

The first rat that comes will drop through into the water and get on the rock; the next one drops through and there is a fight for a foothold, and they argue the point with such squeals that all the rats in the neighborhood hasten in to find out what the trouble is.

LOOK OUT FOR BORERS.

Peach and plum trees should be carefully examined for any indications of borers. Be certain to look for both kinds, the one boring into the trunks and working under the bark just at the collar of the tree at the surface of the ground and underground, also those which work into the wood at the crotches of the trees higher up. They should all be dug out and destroyed. This is the appointed time—before they have a chance to mature and produce adults, which get out and escape.

Pullets hatched in May can be brought to laying by November, if they are properly fed and cared for and crowded as fast as possible. It cannot be done however, if they are half fed, tormented with lice, short of fresh water or allowed to become stunted for any other reason.

All animal life must have sunshine, and poultry is no exception.

Chicken Lice

The common hen louse is pale dull yellow in color; rather slender and about 1-20 of an inch long, and is always without wings. It is provided with six legs, and the head is broadly rounded in front.

The lice are very active, and move about in the feathers of an infested fowl quickly, apparently looking for something new, as any one who handles an infested hen will soon discover. They keep close to the host, and complete their entire transformations on its body. During the night they move from the body of one fowl to another so that they may soon spread from one infested hen throughout the whole flock.

The eggs of the common hen louse are small and oval and are laid in small clusters or "nits." Each egg is attached by one end to the vanes and barbs of the feathers. They hatch in about eight days under favorable conditions. However, they may remain unhatched for several months in a cool place without losing their vitality.

The young lice hatching from the eggs resemble the adults in most respects, except in size. Two or three weeks are required under ordinary conditions for the young louse to become mature. Under favorable conditions the lice may multiply so rapidly that an uninfested flock may become badly infested in a comparatively short time.

COWS HARD TO MILK.

Some cows are naturally hard to milk; others are made hard by weak-handed milking. A woman or child with hands not strong enough for milking causes a cow to become hard for anyone to milk. To cure such a cow, oil the teat freely before starting to milk, so that the oil will work into and soften the skin. Then milk the cow with as much force as possible, squeezing hard. This treatment will usually cure an ordinarily hard milker. Once in a great while it is necessary to cut the muscle surrounding the inside of the teat with a lance-like knife. This, however, is very likely to ruin the cow if not done with great care to avoid cutting too much and causing permanent leakage. It also makes a sore which is painful to the cow at the time of milking, and if done when the cow is not giving milk, the wound grows together and the muscle becomes tighter than before.—R. M. Washburn.

Water-glass eggs are practically as good as fresh eggs for most cooking purposes. If it is desired to boil them, prick a small hole through the large end of the shell before placing them into the water. The pores of the shell have been sealed with the water-glass solution and without this pin hole the expanding air within the shell would burst it.

Mulching breaks the force of rains, and prevents compacting the soil.

Recleaning Alfalfa Seed

Alfalfa seed as it comes from the machine is not usually in marketable condition. It contains small stones, clods, pieces of stems and pods, and often a considerable quantity of weed seeds as well as more or less shriveled alfalfa seed. These impurities must be removed before the seed can be sold to advantage. A good fanning mill or other cleaning device will remove the lighter seeds as well as most of the portions of pods and stems, while a special set of seives will remove the weed seeds and small stones and clods wihch differ in size from the alfalfa seed.

A BOLD THIEF.

The bad-road thief forces you to haul small loads; drive slowly; wrench and twist the life out of your horse, harness and vehicle, often breaking and damaging the latter until great and expensive delays are occasioned. It also steals your opportunity to dispose of your farm when you wish to sell, for no man will pay as much for a farm bordered by a poor-road system as he will for one with a well kept highway, and some will not buy a farm at all when the road system is poor. The loss of time and money, where the above named conditions exist, makes it imperative that you open all the drain ditches along the road, drag this silent, notorious thief to death with the King road-drag.

PLANT LICE ABUNDANT.

This season plant lice or aphids on trees and shrubs are more abundant than in many years. Weather conditions have been very favorable for their reproduction and very unfavorable for the reproduction of their parasitic enemies. Many of the aphids in normal years attracted very little attention. In abnormal years artificial methods of control must be used to keep them within bounds.

Keep the sod about the flower-beds and shrubs nicely edged. It adds much to the appearance.

There are books and tables telling the feeding value of every feedstuff the cow eats, and it will pay every dairy farmer to study them.

Fish Oil For Flies

Fish oil may usually be bought by the barrel at about 45 cents per gallon or in ten-gallon lots at 60 cents per gallon. It is a good repellant for flies and similar insects and may be used in the following mixtures:

(1) Fish oil, 3 parts,
Kerosene, 1 part.

(2) Fish oil, 100 parts,
Oil of tar, 50 parts,
Crude carbolic acid, 1 part.

(3) Fish oil, 1½ pints,
Kerosene, 1½ pints,
Resin, 1½ pounds,
Laundry soap, 2 cakes.
Mix thoroughly and add enough water to make 3 gallons.

(4) Fish oil, linseed oil, or kerosene, 1 pint,
Coal tar dip, 1 pint,
Laundry soap, ¼ bar,
Hot water, 15 pints.
Mix thoroughly so as to form an emulsion.

Any of these mixtures may be applied thinly to the animals with such a brush as can be purchased for ten or fifteen cents, or they may be sprayed on with a small hand-sprayer such as can be purchased for forty or fifty cents.—C. C. Lipp.

WILL RAISE MORE SHEEP.

The American Stockman says that the time is not far distant when the western range states will turn out fewer feeding sheep and lambs and more fat ones for the eastern market. This is equivalent to saying that the days of free range sheep raising are about over, and that sheep will soon be raised under farm conditions in the far west. It also means the equalizing of opportunities for the eastern sheep keeper. The cheap hill pasture lands of the east afford excellent advantages for the raising of sheep.

SEVEN THOUSAND IN COMPETITION.

Seven thousand boys and girls in Minnesota are taking part in some form of farm or home-making project this year. They are engaged in corn growing, pig raising, bread making, gardening and canning, poultry, calf and other contests. In the corn contest alone 3,000 boys are enrolled. Of girls engaged in bread making there are 2,000. More than 55 counties have already held bread making "field days." Five hundred Minnesota boys and girls have entered the pork production contest.

The California poppy is one of the most satisfactory small annuals. Its yellow flowers furnish color for a garden border almost through the summer.

It is very poor business policy to loan money without security. Your friend may be strictly honest, but he may drop dead.

Protect the Birds

In order to increase the number of birds in any area, they must be protected, not only against every form of persecution by human kind, but we must defend them from various natural foes. Guards should be placed about the trees or poles which contain the birds' nests. These guards should be placed six feet or more above the ground, and they should be made of sheet metal. This will prevent cats and all such marauders from climbing to the nests.

THE FAITHFUL HEN.

That the poultry business has now become a leading industry in our country is proven by the fact that in one year the value of eggs and poultry brought into Boston, was $12,216,556.20, and multiplying these figures by 3, so as to include New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, and only with the same figures for each, though all are larger, and we have the startling financial sum of $36,649,668.60; that the 200-egg hen has come at last, with more to follow, is our encouragement for us to keep close to the line of progress.

GLAD TO HAVE THE BEES BROUGHT BACK

A story is told of orchardists in a far western state who brought suit against a bee man to compel him to remove his bees on the ground that bees in their work damaged fruit prospects. But the bee man successfully combatted the suit, and afterward the same horticulturists were glad to get the bees back on account of acknowledged valuable work in aiding pollination.

The duck that lays ten dozen eggs in a year is a good one for laying. Indian Runners are claimed to lay 300 eggs in that time.

GOVERNMENT COPIES METHODS OF CIRCUS

Uncle Sam's Officials Study System of Hagenbeck-Wallace Show.

Beneath the pomp and glitter and amidst the odor of sawdust and naphtha is a system of government and management whose scope and scale are stupendous and staggering. No human institution is more perfect in operation than the circus. Surely no more flattering tribute could be paid the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus than that officially given by the United States government. Officers from the army department, veterans in their profession, carefully observed the rapid sequence of proceedings when the big show was in Washington.

The naval officers were in the railroad yards to watch the arrival of the trains, the process of debarkation, and on the show grounds they marveled at the manner in which the monster Aladdin-like palaces were raised in the air. They critically observed the manner in which the two-mile-long street parade was lined up. They marveled at the haste and precision in which hundreds of their employes hastened about their work. General Evans surveyed the marvelous scenes and he was dumfounded. He asked Mr. Wallace to permit several members of his staff to travel with the show a fortnight that they might grasp a few of the advanced ideas as to how so great an institution is moved with apparently so little effort. General Evans confessed that the army department had always loaded their wagons on flat cars by hoisting them over the sides, not rolling on them from the end.

The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus is the most wonderful tented organization in the world. In reality there are two separate shows, Carl Hagenbeck's collection of trained animals and the great Wallace circus. Several years ago the two shows were combined, yet one ticket admits to everything. The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus will come to Fort Wayne Labor day, Monday, September 6, for performances at 2 and 8 p. m. The monster, all new, street pageant will leave the grounds at 10 o'clock on the day of the exhibition.

ADAIR TALKS TO CORN CLUB.

Tells Delaware County Boys of Government's Interest in Farmers.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 26.—John A. M. Adair, congressman, addressed the boys of the Delaware County Corn club. It was a part of a three days' outing and inspection trip of the hundred or more boys of the club.

Mr. Adair explained the relations of the national department of agriculture to the farmer and outlined the methods of the department in the promotion of all ideas tending to the betterment of the crops. He dwelt on the fact that the government now is taking a greater interest in the home and community life of the farmer; that it is seeking to relieve the tedium of farm labor by encouraging the things that tend to make the boy on the farm satisfied.

The boys of the corn club are spending their days in the inspection of some of Delaware county's model farms, where they devote their time in grading farm products and judging stock.

THE MARKETS

23 CENTS DIFFERENCE IN OLD AND NEW OATS

According to the prices received by farmers on the street market Thursday morning, there remains a difference of twehty-three cents in the prices paid for new and old oats. The new grain which is very variable in quality brought thirty-seven cent a bushel while the old sold for sixty cents. Only one load of old oats appeared on the market and that was quickly bought by grain dealers.

With the wheat market remaining firm another day and receipts very light, all other markets followed its example. Trading was low in grains although the Barr street market was the scene of lively business and enough produce was offered to fill the baskets of all those who came to buy.

Thirteen loads of hay were weighed at the city scales and prices varied from $12 to $14, one dollar higher than the previous day. Corn prices remained at the high figure of ninety cents. Four loads appeared on the street. Nine loads of oats tipped the scales.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Aug. 26.—War shares were again the dominant feature at the opening of today's market, gaining 2 to almost 5 points. Lackawanna Steel scored the new high price of 68 on a further gain of 3½ and New York Air Brake rose 4½ to 51 while Studebaker advanced 3. Other issues to record further improvement included General Motors, General Electric, Westinghouse and Willys-Overland. U. S. Steel held its leadership with an opening sale of 8,000 shares at 75⅝ to 76, a rise of 1 point with a similar gain for the preferred at 112⅜. Among miscellaneous issues General Chemical was prominent for its ten point advance.

Coppers rivaled war specialties later, their activity resulting largely from London advices reporting a substantial overnight rise in the metal there. Anaconda, Utah and American Smelting rose 2 to almost 3 points over yesterday's close, and Tennessee Copper also advanced only 1¼ and made the new high record of 55. As an offset, however, there were reactions of 1 to 2½ points in the war stocks and steel while the standard railways, notably Union Pacific, Reading and Pennsylvania were lower, Chicago and Alton preferred, an inactive issue, sold at 22 against its last quotation of 11½. Bonds were irregular.

SUFFRAGISTS AFTER STREET RAILWAY MEN

Whirlwind Campaign to Get New York Employes Won Over.

New York, Aug. 26.—Speakers for the woman suffrage party made a tour of the car barns today to hold a series of meetings in which they hoped to reach every conductor and motorman with an appeal to vote for woman suffrage in the fall election. The automobiles in which they were hurried about the city were loaded with bouquets, campaign buttons and suffrage ribbons.

After inducing a conductor or motorman to promise to vote for suffrage the women planned to put a bouquet in the lapel of his coat, pin a campaign button to his cap and attach to his coat a ribbon bearing the inscription, "Vote for woman suffrage amendment on Nov. 2."

Posters were distributed at all the car barns reading as follows: "Conductors! Motormen! Forget your grouch at us. Give us the vote and we will try to never fall off the car backward, never to climb on in front while in motion, never to forget our transfers, and never to say Johnnie is three when he is ten."

ROOSEVELT FLAYS WILSON POLICIES

Condemns the President for Country's Attitude in War Situation.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 25.—"Don't applaud unless you feel a burning sense of shame because the United States has not stood up for Belgium."

Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, snapped out these words last night at a crowd at the military instruction camp during a speech in which he censured the administration for its attitude in the European war. As he paused after uttering the sentence his audience, consisting of about 1,200 members of the camp and more than 2,000 other persons, burst into wild and prolonged applause.

"The surest way for a nation to invite disaster is to be rich, aggressive and unarmed," the former president said at another time in speaking of preparedness. In a statement made at the railway station shortly before leaving for New York, Colonel Roosevelt defended his criticism of the administration's course in the present situation.

"I wish to make one comment on the statement so frequently made that we must stand by the president," he said. "I heartily subscribe to this on condition, and only on condition that it is followed by the statement 'so long as the president stands by the country.'"

Colonel Roosevelt started to speak shortly before dark. He was introduced by Major General Leonard Wood. Ere the colonel was fairly launched in his address it became too dark for him to see his manuscript and a lantern was brought for him to read by. Several times he digressed from his written address.

"No man is fitted," he said once, looking away from the printed page, "to be a citizen of a free country unless he is willing to defend that country," and loud applause followed.

The former president condemned the government for having "not taken the smallest step in the way of preparedness to defend our own rights." Germany he condemned as "utterly brutal and ruthless in its disregard of international morality," and declared that it "would be a base abandonment of morality" for American manufacturers of munitions of war to refuse to make shipments "for the use of the armies that are striving to restore Belgium to its own people."

Munition makers who refused to make such shipments should be put, he said, on a "roll of dishonor." He added that they should be encouraged "so that we may abe able to hold our own when the hour of peril comes to us in our turn."

OSTEOPATHY IS DIFFERENT

IS BETTER—IS A DISTINCT ADVANCEMENT OVER MEDICAL TREATMENT IN STOMACH DISORDERS.

(State Educational Bureau.)

The stomach is, perhaps, the most abused organ of the body. Not only is it made the receptacle of every imaginable food mixture, but it is also insulted by being called upon to receive the nauseating, irritating and poisonous concoctions administered as medical agents by well-meaning, though misguided, individuals.

If your mind has been biased by medical teaching, the fact that disorder in the upper dorsal region of your spine can, and does, affect the stomach may seem impossible. But truth has always seemed queer to the stranger, or when she has been revealed to mankind, she has invariably met with bitter opposition and derision. Familiarity, however, does not breed contempt when Truth is concerned. Therefore, upon careful and thoughtful consideration, the truths of Osteopathy meet with a ready acceptance on the part of every conscientious investigator. Osteopathy gives the stomach a square deal. It does not add to its burdens.

The Osteopath does not close his eyes to any of the factors that may be operative in any case of stomach disorder. On the contrary he studies the diet and habits of the patient, and, above all, gives special attention to any possible handicaps that may exist in the body interfering with the circulation or nervous energy to the stomach. By adjusting all such handicaps the organ is given adequate opportunity to utilize its own resources in fighting its own battles, and the natural result is Health.

Another point ought to be mentioned here, and that is the permanency of Osteopathic cures. The results of Osteopathic treatment are based upon removal of the cause, and it is obvious that when the cause of any disturbance is adjusted, there is no longer any basis for a continuance of such disturbance. Therefore, if your stomach is relieved by the ministrations of Osteopathy, this much is certain: It is as permanent as it is possible for any cure to be.

ATTACKS ACTRESS IN HOTEL CHAMBER

Sam Minor, Bellhop at a Hotel, Gets 150 Days at Penal Farm.

Sam Miner, aged 22 years, employed as a bellhop at a hotel, pleaded guilty in the city court Thursday morning, to a charge of assault and battery on Dolly West, aged 18, a burlesque actress who with several other young women of the same troupe, is stopping at that hotel. The attack was made on the young woman while she was asleep in her bedroom. In the city court Miss West, who is an exceedingly pretty young woman, said she was awakened from her sleep about 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning and found Miner on her bed. She screamed and fought her assailant who fled from the room. Patrolman Glen Johnson was called in and Miner was identified as the assailant and arrested. Two other girls of the burlesque troop testified that a short time prior to the attack on Miss West, Miner approached successively at their doors and inquired if they had called. Being told they had not the bellhop disappeared. Then the screams from Miss West's room aroused them. Miner said in his own defense that he had made a "date" with Miss West in her room. This story Miss West indignantly disputed. The other girls of the troupe say that Miss West was not gad the streets, makes no acquaintances and always retires at night soon after her work on the stage is completed and did so Wednesday evening, declining to attend a little gathering of the other women in the room of one of them. Miner only went to work at the hotel Wednesday evening and signalized his first night with a crime. Judge Kerr fined him $20 and costs and added 120 days at the penal farm, all of which will keep him there for the next five months. Miner's person and appearance do not indicate that any girl would pick him out for a "mash" even in the dark.

Bill Jacobs Gets His.

For the second time within a year Mabel Miller complained to the police that Bill Jacobs, for whom she is housekeeper at 126 Brackenridge street, had committed assault and battery on her. In the city court Thursday morning William pleaded in mitigation that he was thoroughly soused Wednesday evening when the assault took place and did not know what he did. He was found guilty and fined $20 and costs by Judge Kerr, who admonished the Miller woman that all things considered, it would be well for her to break away from William.

Other City Court Cases.

Jim Murphy, just in, staged a welcome-to-our-city function for the behoof and honor of himself and two hours later was found down and out at Berry street and Maiden Lane. He drew eleven days and will remain longer than was contemplated in his original plan.

William McDavitt, also a very recent arrival and a stranger in a strange land, put on his own reception and like unto (illegible) was picked up by the (illegible) dignation of a policeman, was picked from his bed in the street. He promised diligence in taking his departure and was given thirty minutes.

Frank Wilson, a loiterer, taken from a boxcar in the Lake Shore yards, had 85 cents and a liking for freedom. Thirty minutes was the limit put on his presence with immunity from arrest and he drilled.

Wesleyan Gray, an aged paralytic who is almost helpless, was continued a day on a loitering charge and an effort will be made to get him into the poor house.

Judge Kerr put Ralph Strebig, a 17-year-old lad, who had pleaded guilty to the theft of a bicycle, on probation for thirty days and let him go on his own recognizance.

Harry Shaffer, a drunk, was turned loose, and Isabel Wells, charged with drunkenness, was continued until Friday for trial under $25 bond.

Napoleon said, "Victory is on the side of the heaviest batallions." That is equally true upon the battlefields of business. Our great business wins over all competition by reason of its size and the completeness of its organization. Foster's.

BREST-LITOVSK FALLS BEFORE TEUTONIC ARMY

New and Important Victory for Austro-Germans in Drive Against Russians.

Squadron of 62 French Airmen Drop Shower of Big Shells on German Arms Factory.

Today's War News Given in Summary.

Brest-Litovsk, the great Russian stronghold, which has been the apparent chief goal of the Austro-Germans in their advance after the taking of Warsaw, has been captured by the Teutonic forces. The Russians gave up the fortress, the Berlin official statement says, after the works on the western and northwestern front had been stormed and the attacking forces had succeeded in entering the central defenses.

A great enveloping movement has been in progress for some time past, which threatened to cut off Brest-Litovsk from the east. Recent semi-official intimations from Petrograd have been that the Russians were preparing to give up the stronghold.

An air raid of unprecedented proportions so far as reported has been made by the French, who sent 62 aeroplanes over a German arms factory to the north of Saarlouis, in Rheinish, Prussia. More than 150 bombs, thirty of them of large calibre, were dropped "with precision," the French statement says:

Japan is to establish new factories for the manufacture of shells as part of her plan to give increased assistance to her allies in the war advices from Tokio state.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The Russian fortress of Brest-Litovsk has been captured by Teutonic forces. Announcement to this effect was made today by the German army headquarters staff.

German and Austro-Hungarian troops stormed the works on the western and northwestern front and succeeded last night in entering the center fortress. The Russians, the statement adds, then gave up the fortress.

The Russian fortress of Brest-Litovsk had been considered one of the strongest fortresses in Europe and was the southern base of the second Russian line of defenses to which the armies of Grand Duke Nicholas retreated after the fall of Warsaw. The citadel is situated on the Bug river and at the junction of several railways, 131 miles south of Grodno and 120 miles due east of the Polish capital.

The storming of Brest-Litovsk by the Teutonic forces is probably the most important military achievement since the fall of Warsaw three weeks ago today. The town, which had a population

OFFICER PETGEN WINS A FOOTRACE

Officer Nick Petgen, of the police department, won a hot footrace with Charlie Harkenrider, a police character, Thursday forenoon, when Harkenrider broke away at the corner of Jefferson and Clay streets, where the officer had him. John Van Allep, also a police character, and one other man in charge while Motorcycle Officer Young, who had arrested the trio, went to a patrol box to call the wagon. Harkenrider is big and rangy, while Officer Petgen is short and stocky. Harkenrider ran down Washington street to Clinton, where he was overhauled by the short-legged but high-geared copper. Harkenrider and the other two were drunk and were on an aimless campaign for work cleaning cisterns. At a residence on Clay street near Washington, Harkenrider's ruffianly conduct alarmed a young matron and he telephoned the police. Officer Young was dispatched and found the three men not far away and arrested them. He asked Officer Petgen, who was patrolling his beat near, to hold the men while he called the wagon and Harkenrider thought the opportunity good for a getaway.

Thanks Governors for Administration Support

Boston, Aug. 26.—The duty of the state in dealing with the inmates of its prisons was the general topic of discussion at today's session of the governors' conference. Two of the governors, E. F. Dunne, of Illinois, and W. P. Hunt, of Arizona, had prepared formal addresses on the abolition of capital punishment and former Governor Cole L. Blease, of South Carolina, spoke on the duty and responsibility of the governor in dealing with prisoners. A review of the state militia, seven thousand strong, was the feature of the afternoon.

The thanks of the administration for the resolution adopted by the governors on Thursday pledging support to President Wilson was extended to the conference today by Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory.

Mr. Gregory said that at the present time the administration felt the need of being in close touch with the states, and such an encouraging expression as was sent to the president was greatly appreciated, especially as it came from a body in which party lines had been eliminated.

German Ambassador Pays a Visit to State Department Chief.

BETTER FACE ON ARABIC SITUATION

New and Satisfactory Undersea Program Expected from Berlin.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, conferred with Secretary Lansing nearly an hour this morning and while both refused to discuss their meeting in any way, it was understood the ambassador reiterated that it was not the intent of the German government that any American lives should be lost on the Arabic.

Another communication, supplementing that which the American ambassador transmitted to the state department Tuesday is expected from Berlin and pending its receipt Count Bernstorff will remain at the embassy in Washington.

It is confidently believed the next word from Germany will be an announcement that pending further negotiations submarine warfare on passenger ships will be discontinued and that submarine commanders already have

HE FIRST LEARNS OF ACCIDENT IN PAPERS

C. F. Israel, 1447 Taylor street, reported to police headquarters Thursday that he is the owner of the automobile bearing Indiana license number 12061, by which John C. Reinhold was struck and badly injured at Washington and Calhoun streets Monday morning. Mr. Israel says he saw a man riding a bicycle north on Calhoun street as he drove east on Washington street across Calhoun and knew they came very close together, but asserted that he did not know there had been an accident until he read of it in the newspapers and saw that a car bearing his number was held responsible for the accident. He says that he reported as soon as the fact of the accident came to his knowledge. Reinhold was quite seriously injured.

HARVEY A. MILLER U. S. SOLDIER, DIES

Blood Poisoning Developing from Pimple Causes Local Boy's Death.

Harvey A. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Miller, of 415 Buchanan street and a member of Company E, Eleventh infantry of the United States regulars stationed along the Mexican border at Douglas, Arizona, died at a hospital in that city Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock from blood poison developing from a pimple on the nose. This information was received by telegram from Captain Clark by Mr. Miller, father of the deceased, Wednesday afternoon.

PRIVATE HARVEY A. MILLER.

Private Miller, who was twenty-two years of age, had been in the army nearly two and one-half years. On Easter day he took sick and was a patient at a hospital for nearly three months. After leaving the institution a pimple developed on his nose and kept growing larger each day. On August 19 he was taken back to the hospital at which time the doctor stated that there was little hopes for his recovery, the poison having gone through his entire system.

Born in Sheldon, he moved to Fort Wayne with his parents when he was yet quite young and attended school at St. Patrick's for a short time. He then took employment with the Independent Five and Ten Cents store where he worked for nearly a year. Previous to his enlistment he was employed by the Pennsylvania railroad for two years in the capacity of a fireman. Besides his grief stricken parents he is survived by three sisters and three brothers—Mrs.

New York, Aug. 26. Eighteen shots were fired today from the 12-inch mortars at Fort Totten at a moving target between six and seven miles distant. The result of the target practice was not made known. Officers at the fort, however, said the accuracy shown by the gunners was "most satisfactory." The firing tests will be resumed tonight when eighteen more shots will be fired at a moving target. The target will be illuminated by search lights. SHORN WHILE THEY SLEEP

Gladys Archer and Anna Ott Victim of Outrage in Their Home.

Mysterious Night Crime is Committed at Archer Home, Wells Street.

A mysterious outrage that the detective force of the police department is laboring hard to unravel, was committed at the home of W. S. Archer, 1040 Wells street, some time Wednesday night, when an unknown miscreant entered the bed chamber occupied by Miss Gladys Archer, aged 18, and Miss Anna Ott, aged 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ott, 435 Huffman street, and employed in the Archer home as a maid, and cut the hair from the heads of both young ladies.

Neither girl knew of the outrage of which they were the victims until they awoke at 6 o'clock Thursday morning.

The police were notified and Motorcycle Officer Elmer Young was detailed to make a preliminary investigation and later the case was turned over to Detective Sergeant Joseph Brennan. Some slight clues have been obtained, but the mystery of the affair is proving difficult.

Girls Slept Together.

There was company at the Archer home Wednesday night and to provide accommodations for all Gladys Archer and Miss Ott together occupied the same bed in an upstairs chamber in the northeast part of the house. They retired about 10 o'clock and were soon asleep. Miss Archer says she slept soundly throughout the night and was in no wise disturbed, but Miss Ott says that some time during the night she was partly awakened by the consciousness that her hair was being handled She thought Miss Archer had hold of it and drowsily wondered why, but did not

BUD GIBSON ENTERS A PLEA OF GUILTY

Special Venire of 200 to Get Jury for Trial of Mayor Bell.

Indianapolis, Aug. 26.—Bud Gibson, who was indicted with Thomas Taggart, democratic national committeeman for Indiana, Mayor Joseph E. Bell and others charged with election irregularities here in 1914, pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge today. His trial was set to begin next Monday.

James (Bud) Gibson had been represented by the same firm of attorneys, appearing for Mr. Taggart, but told Special Judge W. H. Eichhorn that he did not care to have them represent him further. A member of the firm appeared and withdrew as counsel for the defendant.

Gibson's bond was fixed at $5,000 and he was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

"I want to go to jail with the sheriff for protection, said Gibson, after the court had fixed his bond. "I do not want to be bothered by any one in connection with the case now."

Prosecutor A. J. Rucker announced after Gibson had pleaded guilty that he would move to dismiss the indictment charging Gibson with fraud in the primary of May 5, 1914, on which the defendant was to have gone to trial next Monday.

After the Gibson proceedings Special Judge W. H. Eichhorn announced that a special venire of 200 would be drawn tomorrow from which a jury to hear the trial of Mayor Bell would be selected. This action was taken after Prosecutor Rucker had stated that he was willing to leave the case in the hands of Judge Eichhorn without a jury. Judge Eichhorn said he did not wish to assume the responsibility. Mayor Bell's trial is set to begin Sept. 7.

Gibson is the seventh to plead guilty to the indictment, six having entered similar pleas when they were arraigned in July. Sentence in each case has been withheld.

ARREST IS MADE IN TOLLESTON MURDER

Slain Lutheran Pastor Was Preparing to Attend Convention in Fort Wayne Soon.

Gary, Ind., Aug. 26.—With the arrest today of George Schneider, a member of the Gary Saxon-Verein in connection with the murder of the Rev. Edmund Keyser, whose body was found near his parsonage in Tolleston, a suburb, Tuesday night, the police announced they practically had abandoned the theory that the German pastor may have been slain because of his pro-German utterances.

Schneider's face was cut and bruised. He is said to have told a relative he was in a fight Tuesday night. The police declared his story unsatisfactory.

Answers the Description.

"Schneider answers the description of the man we have been looking for," Chief of Police Heintz said. "The prisoner has been a member of the murdered man's congregation at St. John's Evangelical church, Tolleston, but is declared to have been his enemy. Rev. Mr. Kayser it is said, had incurred the displeasure of members of the Saxon-Verein because of his opposition to the plans of that organization."

Thomas E. Knotts, former mayor of this city, declared the murder was "the most dastardly crime ever committed in Gary. Mr. Kayser was very liberal. It is true he was pro-German and had no friendliness for President Wilson. However, he was strictly honest and upright, in fact, too honest for some people."

Planned to Visit Fort Wayne.

George Cummerow, counsel for Edmund Kayser, was shocked when he heard of the assassination of the Tolleston minister. "I was to meet Mr. Kayser yesterday morning in connection with church business affairs. We planned to go to Fort Wayne to attend the state convention of the German-American Alliance and it was our intention to boost Gary for the 1916 convention."

U. S. SOLDIERS GUARD STREETS OF EL PASO

El Paso, Texas, Aug. 26.—El Paso today awoke to find its streets bordering the Rio Grande guarded by United States soldiers as a result of a report circulated last night that an uprising of Huerta, Carranza and Orozco factions had been planned for the early hours of the morning.

Mexicans were not permitted to cross the international bridge from 11 o'clock last night until early today, and no American was allowed to cross to Juarez. Extra guards were ordered out at Fort Bliss, where Gen. Huerta is being held. Companies of infantry were posted at the international bridge, the railroad viaduct and all strategic points.

A conference of city and county officials, representatives of the department of justice, the federal marshal and General Pershing was held yesterday. After the conference General Pershing announced he was prepared to meet any uprising that might start. During the night soldiers were hurried to their camps by the provost marshal and rushed off to their posts in automobiles. The police halted and searched Mexicans in down town streets. There was no excitement in the city, although an under current of uneasiness was apparent.

Occasional shots were fired by the policemen in halting Mexicans found in the lower quarters of the city in order to search them.

FORT WAYNE MAN KILLED IN BATTLE

According to a letter received from Rev. Peter Staracc, of Italy, by Rev. Father Anthony Petrilli, pastor of St. Joseph's Italian Catholic church, Loretto Staracc, formerly of Fort Wayne, was shot and killed while at the front with the Italian army.

Mr. Staracc came to Fort Wayne five years ago and for some time was connected with the Kidd Medical company in the foreign correspondence department. Later, he went into business with Joseph Allgeier, conducting a fruit and confectionery store at Calhoun and Lewis streets. He left this city last year for his former home in Italy. The letter states that a splinter of a shell struck him, causing his death, and that he died decorated with three medals of valor. Soon after entering the army he was promoted to captain.

The American charge at Port Au Prince had set noon yesterday for the answer of the government, but the time was extended until tonight. Haitien Minister Menos, following a conference with Secretary Lansing, declared that his government was anxious to bring about a speedy understanding with the United States relative to the Washington government's efforts to restore peace in the island.

275 DEATH TOLL IN TEXAS STORM

Careful Checking Up Shows Frightful Total in the Disaster.

Houston, Texas, Aug. 26.—According to a careful checking up today of all published figures based on official statements from the cities and larger towns and localities involved and accounting for all persons living, as missing, who subsequently have been found safe, the tropical storm that visited the Texas coast ten days ago took 275 lives, 206 on land and 69 on water. In addition the same list showed 12 other persons still uncounted for.

The following list shows where the storm exacted the heaviest toll of dead: Galveston island, 42; city of Galveston, 10; Dredge Houston, 4; Texas City, 2; Dredge San Bernard, 19; Anahuac, 17; tug Helen Henderson, 16; Virginia Point, 11; surf side, 19; Houston, 3. In addition to these it is known that other persons lost their lives in small towns along the coast and in country districts swept by the storm. The complete list of dead probably never will be known, as scores of unidentified victims were buried.

In a multitude of unusual stories told is that Roy Riggs, 15 years old, who lost his life near Seabrook. He was born Sept. 8, 1900, coming into life with the worst storm known along the Texas coast and going out with the next worst.

LOCAL GARDENERS ARE HARD HIT THIS YEAR

They Never Before Experienced a Season Like This One.

While thousands and even millions of poor, unfortunate human beings are actually suffering from starvation and want in far corners of the earth and while thousands are lacking the necessities of life in Europe on account of the upheaval in the economic system brought about by the war, vegetable crops are so large in the Fort Wayne district that there is scarcely a market for them. In some localities it is reported that heads of cabbage as well as some other vegetables are being plowed under.

Gardeners and truck farmers near Fort Wayne never before experienced a season like the present one. Abundant rains have produced a record-breaking crop of vegetables. About all that was necessary this season was to plant the seeds and nature attended to the rest.

Gardeners report that the exceptionally low prices which they are receiving for produce this year together with the great loss which they have had on account of ruins will make the present season the most unprofitable in the history of the gardening business.

FARMERS OF ADAMS TOWNSHIP TO MEET

A wheat production meeting will be held in the Center school Friday evening, August 27, under the auspices of the Adams Township Farmers' club at which time Clarence Henry, agricultural agent of the county, will be the principal speaker. Mr. Henry's busy season is near at hand and a number of meetings have been scheduled to be held within the next few weeks. About the middle of September, however, Mr. Henry expects to take a two weeks' vacation, the first he has had since taking charge of the work here. With his family he will visit in Ohio and Pennsylvania, probably making the trip in his automobile.

GIVES HOME FOR HOSPITAL.

Shelbyville, Ind., Aug. 26. By the will of William S. Major, filed for probate today, his large stone house and its three acre grounds in the heart of the city are bequeathed to the city to be used as a hospital after the death of his widow, who is an invalid. FIRST FIRE IN FORT WAYNE IN 248 HOURS

Department is Called to the Plant of the Central Furniture Co.

The first fire in 248 hours, or over ten days, was discovered at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the plant of the Central Furniture Manufacturing company in the rear of 215 West Main street. For over ten days not a single alarm of fire had been turned in.

The blaze threatened to do great damage. The loss is estimated at $100. No damage was done to the building, which is owned by Edward Helmke.

The Central Furniture company was recently incorporated with H. R. and A. W. Spurling and C. W. Sperry as members of the firm. Wednesday afternoon one of the Spurling brothers was engaged in taking out a partition on the second floor and, leaving a lighted blow-torch near a pile of lumber, had gone out for a few minutes. When he returned he found the entire second floor in a mass of flames. An alarm was immediately turned in and the prompt response of the fire department prevented what might have been a most serious conflagration.

The chemical from No. 3 engine house was called to the home of Miss Emily Wright Hood, 1229 West Wayne street, at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, but the services of the firemen were not needed. Miss Hood had set fire to some papers in the fireplace, causing a collection of wasps' nests which lined the chimney to ignite. No damage was done.

The fire department was summoned late Wednesday afternoon to a two-story frame residence at 752 West Superior street owned by Willis Pearse and occupied by W. F. Patton. Sparks from the chimney had set fire to the roof, causing a damage estimated at $10.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

Will Sign Remonstrances Against Saloons in Outskirts of Hartford City as Threatened.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 26.—The meeting of the dry forces which was held last evening at the United Brethren church, proved to be a very successful one and there were a large number of those present who signed the remonstrance at that time.

There seems to be a changing of sentiment in Hartford City in favor of the dry cause. This is because there are many persons who voted wet last time who believe now that the city has gone dry, it should remain dry. These persons are planning to sign the remonstrance. A number of manufacturers have taken a stand against the saloons in the out township. B. A. Van Winkle, manager of the Hartford City Paper mills and president of the Taxpayers' league at the last election, today announced that he was opposed to saloons in the outskirts of the city and that, if to keep them out it was necessary to do so, he would sign the remonstrance. Other manufacturers have sent for copies of the remonstrance and will do all they can to assist in getting their men to sign. Besides the remonstrance, an election will also be called. The purpose of having both is that the granting of the license may be temporarily stopped by the remonstrance route and permanently stopped by the petition.

Hicksville, O., Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the program committee of the Old Settlers of the Maumee Valley association it was decided to hold the fortieth annual meeting on Friday, September 3, 1915. The various committees were appointed. It was decided to hold the meeting in the forenoon at one of the churches. Dinner will be served at the fair grounds. Immediately after this various contests will be held for those so inclined. The regular afternoon program will be held in the grandstand. All old settlers and everyone invited to be there. YOUTHFUL DRIVER TURNS AUTO.

Hicksville, O., Aug. 26.—Quite a serious accident occurred about a mile north of Six Corners near the home of David Deardorff, when Elder Humbarger with his son Randy were out in their Ford. The former was learning to drive and was running about fifteen miles per hour when he lost control and run into the ditch which is about three foot deep at that point. The car was turned completely over against the fence. The son escaped but the father was pinned under the car, and it was necessary to lift it up before he could be taken out. He was injured about the head and his left arm was broken near the wrist. The top and windshield on the car were broken.

DIES IN HER SONS' ARMS.

Huntington, Ind., Aug. 26.—A sudden attack of heart trouble coming on suddenly caused the death of Mrs. Laura Emily Davis, 56 years old, wife of Superintendent Dillon Davis, of the county infirmary, in the family apartments in the infirmary building. Coroner R. S. Galbreath was called and pronounced it a case of death due to heart failure. Members of the family who happened to be near at the time noticed that Mrs. Davis seemed to be acting strangely. When they saw that she appeared to be fainting, two sons, Claude and Edson, picked her up and started for the porch thinking that the fresh air might revive her. It was the opinion of the elder brother, Claude, that his mother was dead before they reached the open air.

PIONEER PHYSICIAN DIES.

Waterloo, Ind., Aug. 26.—Dr. Almond S. Farrington, of this city, one of the pioneer physicians of DeKalb county, is dead at his home here, at the age of 83 years. He was born at Jamestown, N. Y., and came of ravolutionary ancestry. His parents came to DeKalb county in 1849. He was a student in Hiram college in Ohio at the time James A. Garfield, later president of the United States, was president of the institution of learning. He was graduated from a medical college in Cincinnati in 1860, practiced for a time in Norwalk, O., and then came to Waterloo, residing on a farm near here and combining agricultural pursuits with the practice of his profession.

CLOTH FOR ITALIAN ARMY.

Columbia City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Two looms at the woolen mill ran all night to get out a couple of pieces of cloth for the Italian army, and the cloth was put through the finishing processes immediately and shipped at once by express for final approval of the agents in this country before the mill here opens up full blast on the big order. While samples had been previously submitted and approved the mill managers felt that it would be better to send a couple of pieces before turning out any great quantity of the cloth. The contract of the mill here calls for the delivery of 20,000 yards by Oct. 6. The carding and spinning departments will run night and day until the order is completed.

Montpelier, Ind., Aug. 26.—Relatives in this city have received word of the announcement and the marriage of Miss Marguerite DeVore Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Turner to Mr. Edgar Curtis Parmenter. The marriage occurred Saturday, August 21, at Topeka, Kas. The announcement reads that the couple will be at home after September 15 at 642 South street, Springfield, Mo. The groom is not known extensively in this city, but the bride formerly resided here with her parents. Several years ago, however, they moved west where they have since been located.

TUBERCULOSIS KILLS WOMAN.

Columbia City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Mrs. Mary Bentz, of Jefferson township, is dead at her home from tuberculosis of the stomach. Mrs. Bentz had been suffering from this ailment for a number of years, but took to her bed only ten days ago and never rallied thereafter. She was united in marriage December 25, 1905, to Marion Bentz, of Jefferson township, and they resided on a farm near Laud until her death. She had no children and only the husband survives. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hollenbaugh, both of whom survive, and was 32 years old.

NO INDICTMENT LIKELY.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Prosecutor Lee Sprague stated today that there probably will be no indictment brought against Mrs. Emma Baker, the Montpelier woman whose alleged complicity in the death of little Dena Baker who died last Wednesday, has been the subject of investigation by the authorities for the past few days. It was announced at Montpelier that the whereabouts of Myrtle Denny, the witness who is sought, had been found to be in Illinois and that she would be brought to Montpelier.

HOPE TO PREVENT FLOODS.

Portland, Ind., Aug. 26.—Initial steps looking to the changing of the course of the Miller branch, that causes much flood damage here annually, were taken by the city council, when a petition was filed under the flood prevention act asking that the council petition the circuit court to refer the matter to engineers to devise a means of obviating the necessity of the stream through the city. The council, not knowing the probable cost of the proposed plan, deferred action until the city engineer can make an estimate.

FORT WAYNE BAKER IS HURT.

Columbia City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Charles Jones, a baker from Fort Wayne, who was humming his way to Valparaiso, where he says that he had a position in sight, was ejected from a Nickel Plate freight train on which he was riding at South Whitley and as he alighted on the ground his left leg was broken just above the ankle. Both bones were broken and one of them protruded through the flesh and one in the ankle was dislocated, thus making a complex fracture.

RUN DOWN BY THE CARS.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 26.—While working on the right of way of the Pennsylvania, James Ollie, an employe of the company came near losing his life. He was working on the tracks in the eastern part of the city when a switch engine backed a number of cars in on the siding on which he was working, knocking him down. The train knocked him off the tracks, only passing over his foot, which was crushed. He was taken to the Van Wert county hospital.

PASTOR IS RETURNED.

Kendallville, Ind., Aug. 26.—Rev. I. M. McVey will remain as pastor of the Kendallville Methodist Protestant church for another year at least. The petition of his charge that he be returned was granted by the Indiana conference, which has just closed its annual session in Jonesboro. This will be welcome news to his congregation as well as the general public at large, for he has been an efficient pastor and an agreeable sort of a man to meet.

Pritchard and Rev. and Mrs. Millard Pell, departed Wednesday for Twin Lakes, near Howe, where they will spend a ten days' outing. With them they took a half carload of baggage including cots, tents, and a complete camping outfit. This is the third successive season the boys have spent at these lakes and they anticipate the usual good time.

Columbia City, Ind., Aug. 26.—Mrs. Henry Williamson, of Cleveland township, had her right collar bone broken when a cow crowded her in a stall. She was milking at the time and the animal pushed her against the side of the stall in such a way and with such force that the right clavicle was broken.

WOMAN WANTS ACCOUNTING.

Edison is Burned by Splash of Potash Solution.

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 26.—Thomas A. Edison, while at work in one of his laboratories at Silver Lake, near Newark, was painfully though not seriously burned about the eyes by the accidental splash of a potash solution yesterday. Mr. Edison was leaning over a filter when his assistant opened the wrong stop cock and the solution was thrown into his face. He quickly bathed his eyes and first aid was administered from a kit kept in the laboratory for emergencies. While his eyes were still smarting when he went home, Mr. Edison returned to work after dinner and it was stated at his home that he had felt no ill effects.

Labor Day at Robison Park

Sion S. Bass and Lawton Wayne Posts, the Ladies of the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps will be the special guests of Robison Park on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6th. There will be a grand parade of Veterans and their auxiliary organizations. The line-up, two abreast, will begin at 3:30 p. m. in front of the pavilion. Every veteran and every member of the Relief corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. will carry an American flag. Headed by the Elks' band, the beloved national heroes will march to the theater, where the exercises will be held. Every old soldier in Allen county is especially invited on Veterans' Day, Monday, Sept. 6th, as this is the golden anniversary of peace within the union. The parade last year was a wonderful spectacle. The sight of two hundred and fifty old soldiers, each one carrying a flag and bowed down with the weight of years, brought cheers and tears from thousands of spectators. The flag never meant more than when carried by these old heroes of ours and we never fully realized before how much we loved the men of the sixties. Manager Williams has personally invited every old soldier of whom he has knowledge. Should any veteran have been omitted let him send his name and address to Manager Williams, Robison Park, at once.

IN AUTOMOBILE SMASHUP.

It Whirled Into the Ditch.

THE INCREASING number of automobiles brings also increased probability of accidents, both to the pedestrian and to the occupant of the car.

Do you carry accident insurance?

If not, why not?

The Fort Wayne Mercantile Accident Association offers you splendid protection at a small cost—not to exceed $10 per year. Among those who are automobile accident victims and who are mighty glad they had portection in the Mercantile is John A. Kalbfleisch, traveling representative of the International Business College. Mr. Kalbfleisch met with his accident in July, 1914, while spinning over a country road in Ohio. His machine skidded, whirled into the ditch, turned turtle and pinned him underneath. When rescued from the wreck, Mr. Kalbfleisch was found to have suffered from a bad break of the bone of the right forearm close to the shoulder joint. He was disabled several weeks and received from the Mercantile $321.42 indemnity.

Another auto victim was J. R. Hafstrom, of Morocco, Ind., whose accident was almost a duplicate of that of Mr. Kalbfleisch. There were no broken bones, however, though Mr. Hafstrom received $140 from the Mercantile.

Any reader of this paper who does not carry accident insurance should apply at once for membership in the Mercantile. Phone 2494 or call at the office in the People's Trust Building. The safe way to do it, is to do it now. Tomorrow may be your unfortunate day.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Mark 9:35-50.

35 And he sat down and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them,

37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

38 And John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us; and we forbade him, because he followeth not us.

39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not: for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me.

40 For he that is not against us is on our part.

41 For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanging about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

43 And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off; it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched.

44 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45 And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched:

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

47 And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out: it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire;

48 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

50 Salt is good: but if the salt have lost his saltness, wherewith will ye season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

Crowding the Procession a Bit

The action of the federal parole board in declining to at present grant freedom to nine of the Terre Haute election conspirators at Fort Leavenworth prison will, we think, be very generally commended. While under the law the nine may be eligible to parole, they are crowding the procession a bit to press their claims at so early a date. The vote conspiracy under which these men and their associates were convicted was not in any sense an ordinary case. It involved not an isolated individual, but scores of them, leagued as the evidence showed, in a plot at wholesale corruption of election. Their act wronged not an individual, but the entire public. The theory of parole which might make its appeal effective were but a single individual involved does not apply with equal force here. The crime of the Terre Haute conspirators was far too serious to be expiated by a few brief months of incarceration. It would neither satisfy the public's sense of outraged justice nor be sufficiently impressive as a deterrent against those whose impulses might lead them to attempt an emulation of the example of the convicted conspirators under the impression that the worst that could follow detection would be a few weeks in prison.

It is said that in the present instance the federal board has overridden powerful influences, political and otherwise, which have been throwing the weight of their effort toward the early liberation of the men. Some such situation is almost invariably present in the case of men of either wealth or former prominence who are convicted of wrong-doing. They are able to enlist the interest of powerful friends who besiege the pardoning authorities in their behalf, and often a mighty fine sort of moral courage is required to hold out against appeals of this character. The federal parole board, however, appears to possess this variety of stamina, and, for the present, at least, the convicted men will remain where, after a fair trial, outraged law and justice and civic decency decreed they must go.

It is almost inconceivable that with the general desire for road improvement in Allen county, and the vast sums of money now being expended on this enterprise, there should be vandals who almost ruin the new highways by overthrowing blockades and traversing the new roads before they are in condition for use. Yet County Surveyor Guenther finds that precisely that has happened in a number of instances. Consulting merely their own convenience, drivers have plunged over a number of the new roads before they have had time to "set" firmly, and the damage has been extensive. An example of a few of the offenders in court is perhaps the most efficacious method of dealing with the problem, and it is to be hoped Surveyor Guenther will shortly be able to supply it.

An Elkhart man who has been sued for damages by a woman who charges that her nose was broken by a blow from the man's fist sets up in defense the allegation that he mistook the plaintiff in the case for his wife. It will be interesting to note just how far a defense of that sort will go with a jury. Perhaps it is considered perfectly justifiable at Elkhart to smash one's own wife on the nose, while such treatment accorded another woman would be held highly impolite if not actually improper. In any event, the question is one which seems to cry aloud for a definite ruling as to the legal status of the thing.

New thorns are now appearing in the pathway of the gay and festive cabaret performances which are thriving in a good many Indiana cafes. The United States decrees that theaters and similar institutions of amusement pay a special tax during the stringency in national revenues occasioned by the European war. Peter Kruyer, United States internal revenue collector for Indiana, has taken a casual glance at a number of these cabaret performances and decrees that they are "amusements." The obvious answer is likely to be the conclusion on the part of the cafe proprietors that they can manage somehow to struggle along without the cabarets.

It is made reasonably clear by Colonel Roosevelt's Plattsburg speech in which he mercilessly flayed the Wilson administration for its attitude regarding the European war that T. R. has in mind at least one shy, retiring individual who could handle the situation in a much more satisfactory manner. We have suspected as much all along.

Vermilion county will be asked to pay a bill of $3,019.50 as costs of a murder trial sent to an adjoining county on a change of venue, the defendant incidentally being tried as a pauper and finally freed of the charge. Inasmuch as $2,250 of the sum is for attorney's fees, we take it that Vermilion county certainly provides legal counsel of the gilt-edged variety to its unfortunates.

BOOMS IN AUGUST.

(Toledo Blade.)

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript has been looking at the teeth of a number of the republican presidential booms. In most cases he found it hard even to get a glimpse of the teeth, so firmly are jaws set. In other instances the booms masqueraded under other names. Their proprietors were not prepared to acknowledge that they were interested in the presidency. For all they had to say, it might have been gathered they were unaware that the thing existed.

The game appears to be one of watchful waiting. No one feels compelled to come forth and expose the secret longing of his soul. A sort of shyness, a lover-like diffidence, has wreathed the booms with silence. The lot hold back in the hope that some one of them, his patience worn out, will step out and proclaim himself captain. Then the fight will begin.

It is the correspondent's belief that the republican contest will be after the manner of that which resulted in the nomination of Harrison in 1888. "The leaders and the rank and file * * * are opposed to having the selection made by any man or group of men in advance of the assembling of the delegates. The candidates themselves seem to have recognized that sentiment."

It is not the custom for candidates to recognize any other sentiment except their own personal ambitions. An exception to that rule would be astonishing. Much as we might enjoy the spectacle of an army of candidates marching tongue-tied right up to the day of the convention, we fear it is to be denied us.

THOSE CROP REPORTS.

(Indiana Daily Times.)

Many Indiana farmers declare the wheat crop estimates put out by the federal government are not based with proper accuracy on the actual crop facts. Especially is this true, they say, since the prolonged rains and since the wet spell has had time to produce such evil effects as the preventing of harvest, the delay of thrashing, and sprouting and rotting in the shock. Not only the yield, but the quality of the grain has been affected seriously by the general rains, and those rains, it is pointed out, have been common to an immense territory.

Yet in face of the facts, optimists putting out sets of figures, persist in shouting aloud the assertion that the country is bringing forth a billion bushel wheat crop for 1915. The direct effect on the producer of these figures is a cut in the price he gets for his wheat. If the price paid for wheat is cut in face of an inaccurate or misleading government crop estimate; if the billion bushel story proves to be untrue and misleading, and if the American farmer loses thereby, the agencies that put out the over-optimistic yarns will be liable to suffer discredit for some seasons to come.

It would be pleasant to join the optimists in telling a story of a billion bushel wheat crop, in the cheerful three billion bushel corn crop estimate, and in the tale of a billion and a half bushels of oats for 1915, but so far as we are able to judge by reports in Indiana, the prevailing estimates are too large. It seems to us there is danger in misleading the public.

COMPENSATION LAW EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1

Employes Not Compelled to Work Under New Indiana Statute.

Indianapolis, Aug. 26.—Discussing the workmen's compensation act which becomes effective September 1, the industrial board of Indiana has issued the following statement:

The act, as to compensation, covers all forms of employment except:

1. Casual laborers.
2. Farm or agricultural laborers.
3. Domestic servants.
4. Interstate or foreign commerce, in case the laws of the United States provide for compensation, or for liability for injury or death, by accident, of the employes engaged therein.

Notwithstanding the fact that casual laborers, farm or agricultural laborers and domestic servants and their employers are expressly excepted from the compensation provisions of the act, yet such employes and their employers are authorized to voluntarily elect to be bound by such provisions.

Many people have the impression that the act applies only to the employers of five or more persons, and that it does not cover the employer of fewer than five workmen. This impression is wholly erroneous. The application of the act does not to any extent depend upon the number of workmen. It applies to the employer of one workman as fully as it does to the employer of one hundred.

Employer and Employe.

"Employer" shall include the state and any municipal corporation within the state or any political division thereof, and any individual, firm, association or corporation or the receiver or trustee of the same, or the legal representatives of a deceased employer, using the services of another for pay.

"Employe" shall include every person, including a minor, in the service of another under any contract of hire or apprenticeship, written or implied, except one whose employment is both casual and not in the usual course of the trade, business, occupation or profession of the employer.

The act is optional or elective with both employers and employes.

In other words, both employers and employes, by giving the notice provided for in the act, may reject its provisions.

In order to make the rejection effective, the notice must be given either at the time of the employment or at least thirty days prior to the injury. No affirmative action is required on the part of either employers or employes in order to come under the provisions of the act. In the absence of an express rejection in the manner specified in the act, acceptance is presumed. No rejection is the equivalent of an express acceptance.

Grounds for Defense.

Every employer who elects not to operate under the act shall not in any suit at law by an employe to recover damages for personal injury or death by accident be permitted to defend any such suit at law upon any one or all of the following grounds:

a. That the employe was negligent.

b. That the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow employe.

c. That the employe had assumed the risk of injury.

Every employe who elects not to operate under the act shall, in any action to recover damages for personal injury or death brought against an employer accepting the compensation provisions of this act, proceed at common law, and the employer may avail himself of the defenses of contributory negligence, negligence of a fellow servant and assumption of risk, as such defenses exist at common law.

At common law, an employe, suing for an injury, and his administrator suing for his death, were required to allege and prove his freedom from contributory negligence.

The rejection of the act by an employe probably restores this common law burden.

Basis of Compensation.

Compensation is based alone upon injuries caused by accident and arising out of and in the course of the employment. It is allowed for death only when the death of the employe is the result of such an injury. It is never allowed for disease in any form except as the disease shall result from such an injury.

No compensation shall be allowed for an injury or death due to the employe's wilful misconduct, including intentional self-inflicted injury, intoxication, and wilful failure or refusal to use a safety appliance or perform a duty required by statute.

The rate of compensation is 55 per cent. of the average weekly wages.

The period of compensation for partial disability cannot exceed 300 weeks; for total disability it cannot exceed 500 weeks; for death not to exceed 300 weeks and burial expenses, not to exceed $100 for certain permanent injuries, enumerated in Section 31, for the periods therein specified, ranging from fifteen to 200 weeks, and in all other cases of permanent partial disability for such period as the board may fix, not exceeding 200 weeks.

Average weekly wages are to be considered not more than $24 nor less than $10. This makes the maximum weekly compensation $13.20, and the minimum $5.50.

The total compensation, in any case, cannot exceed $5,000.

No compensation is payable for the first fourteen days of disability. The compensation period begins with the fifteenth day of disability. During the first thirty days after the injury of an employe, the employer is required to furnish, at his own expense, a physician and suitable hospital services and supplies.

Subject to the approval of the industrial board, the employer and the injured employe, or, in case of his death, his dependents, may agree in writing as to the compensation payable.

In case of a dispute as to the compensation payable, the matter must be submitted to and be determined by the industrial board.

Any party in interest may file in the circuit or superior court of the county in which the injury occurred a certified copy of any agreement approved by the board or of any order, decision or award made by it, and such court shall render judgment thereon in accordance with the terms thereof.

Such judgment shall then be enforced as an original judgment of such court.

Notice of the injury must be given in writing to the employer, immediately upon the occurrence of the injury or as soon thereafter as is practicable, by the injured employe or some one in his behalf, and, in case of his death, by one or more of his dependents, or by some one in their behalf.

The notice must state the name and address of the injured employe, the time, place, nature and cause of the injury or death.

No compensation is collectible if such written notice is not given within thirty days after the occurrence of the injury or death, unless reasonable excuse for the failure to give it is made to the satisfaction of the industrial board.

All employers of the state, whether under the compensation provisions of the act or not, are required to keep a record of all injuries to their employes and to report in writing to the industrial board within one week after the occurrance and knowledge thereof every injury to an employe causing his absence from work for more than one day, and to make a supplementary report upon the termination of the disability unless it extends beyond sixty days, in which event the supplementary report shall be made at the expiration of the sixty days' period.

The penalty for the failure to make such reports is $25 in each case.

The act requires the employer to secure his compensation liability in full, if that liability is to be his exclusive obligation for injuries to his employes. That is, without securing his compensation liability, the employer is liable for either compensation or damages, at the option of the employe after injury. The refusal or neglect of the employer to secure his compensation liability also renders him liable to a fine of ten cents for each employe, but not less than $1 or more than $50 for each day of such neglect or refusal.

The employer may secure his compensation liability by either of the following methods:

1. By insuring such liability in some corporation, association or organization authorized to transact the business of workmen's compensation insurance in this state.

2. By furnishing to the industrial board satisfactory proof of his financial ability to pay direct the compensation in the amount and manner and when due, as provided in the act, and by depositing with the board such security, indemnity or bond, as the board may require, if any.

3. By the proof of membership in and the payments of premiums due in a mutual or reciprocal insurance association, formed under the conditions and restrictions fixed by the industrial board.

4. By a substitute system of compensation as provided in Section 72 of the act.

Accident Prevention.

The compensation provisions of "The Indiana Workmen's Compensation Act" are the provisions of secondary importance. These provisions are based upon the established fact that a large per cent. of industrial accidents are wholly unavoidable; that they happen without the fault of any one, and are the inherent risks of industrial employments. Such accidents, being natural and inevitable, are logically incidents of the industry in which they occur.

While experience justly recognizes this class of inevitable accidents, it just as certainly recognizes the fact that a much greater per cent. of industrial accidents may be prevented.

It may be said that the purposes of "The Indiana Workmen's Compensation Act" are:

1. To eliminate or reduce to the minimum preventable accidents.

2. To provide a certain and sure compensation in all cases of inevitable accident and injury.

That accident prevention is the primary object of the measure is clearly manifested by the first clause of the title, which is "An act to promote the prevention of industrial accidents." To the end that this dominant purpose of the act may be carried into execution the duties and powers of the bureau of inspection were transferred to the industrial board, and said board is charged with the administration of the inspection laws of the state.

The industrial board, therefore, is deeply impressed with the view that its primary duty is to promote the prevention of industrial accidents, and to the extent of its ability it intends to discharge this obligation.

Fame And Fortune In A Funny Walk

Do You Know Who Is the Most Imitated Man In America? Yes, You've Guessed It—He's Charlie Chaplin of the Movies —But the Real Heroes—the Fellows Who Do the Daring Substitute Stunts Are Little Known to the Movie Fans Who Delight In Their Thrilling Acts

The United States has "gone crazy" about Charlie Chaplin, and while there is but one and only one Charlie Chaplin he has thousands of imitators from Maine to Oregon. It seems that every man with a black mustache, or a stiff hat or a cane or black curly hair is out to imitate the comedian of the films.

And have you noticed the latest—the Charlie Chaplin walk?

Even in little old staid New York, Charlie Chaplin has imitators by the score. Not merely men of the sandwich-board class who go about dressed to appear as Charlie Chaplin and to attract the crowds to some theater where pictures of the comedian are to be shown, but men of ordinary every day life are doing Charlie Chaplin for their friends. The man known to writers as "the life of the party" is winning a laugh with his imitation.

The so-called bar-room humorist is "pulling" Charlie Chaplin stuff In every pool hall you will see someone at it and not a big office in the country is without a little dark mustached man, who has remained humbly in retirement never talking above a whisper until his remote likeness to Charlie Chaplin brought him forth from obscurity and even the stenographers that once hated him have been compelled to admit he is funny.

NUMEROUS IMITATIONS.

Of course, this imitating business was a boon to sandwich men and they must be excused for appearing as Charlie Chaplin. Before these sad-eyed wrecks as most of them are, earned $1 a day carrying a sign with the So-and-So dental parlors' ad. on it, or "go to McDuffy's restaurant," but now anyone of them who has dark curly hair or can wear a dark curly wig and a stubby black mustache and can walk with his feet turned at an angle at almost 80 degrees from each other, that man can earn $5 a day by walking the streets. All that is necessary is old clothes, with which most of them have been supplied ever since their twenty-first birthday, a dirty collar that is not a stranger to men of the bowery, a cane that can be bought for 25 cents, a mustache and black curly hair. Peculiarly no matter how little the man may look like Chaplin before he dons this make-up, his friends will remark he is a perfect picture of the comedian.

Of course, Charlie himself might look at his imitators and say with other actors and actresses, who have been credited with the statement by the humorists, "One of us is rotten," but that would have no effect upon the man who thinks he looks more like Charlie Chaplin than Charlie does himself.

With this epidemic of imitations, with statues of plaster of paris being sold, and the comedian's pictures appearing on many screens through the country and his photographs being printed in newspapers and magazines, it must be conceded that Chaplin is the most popular man in the country just now—that is from a comical viewpoint.

DEMAND FOR FILMS.

It is said that the demand for new films of him is such that he is compelled to work practically every hour of daylight to fill it. Of course, there are the usual rumors about his receiving several thousand dollars a week, and there is also the same skeptisism in the matter, born principally of the fact that most actors supposed to receive enormous salaries die and leave little but their insurance.

Chaplin succeeded John Bunny as the most humorous man in the films. Their form of humor is as different as night and day. Chaplin's is the slap-stick kind; Bunny showed real art and ability.

Until toward the last of Bunny's career his acts were devoid of all vulgarity and he presented a clean and high-class form of humor, based most on his ability to make people laugh through his comical control of his features. Bunny was credited with receiving a large salary, yet when he died the value of his estate was estimated at $8,000.

Chaplin uses but little facial expression, other than an occasional smile or look of surprise or dismay —occasionally also a comic look of pain. His art is entirely in his ability to walk funny. Probably one of his most humorous films is where he joins a prize-fighting camp as a trainer. The thousands who have seen this film will recall its comic opening—Charlie seated in a doorway, sad, disgusted and out of a job. He draws a frankfurter sandwich—apparently his last morsel of food—from his bosom and proceeds to eat it alternately offering a bite to a bull dog that sits beside him.

After the meal he and the dog start up the street and Charlie sees a sign, "Sparring Partners Wanted." He enters and is given a job. He sees men in line before him enter the prize-fighter's training quarters only to be carried out a few minutes later on a stretcher.

He awaits his turn with trembling until a means of defense suggests itself to him. He finds a horseshoe on the ground and slips it between the padding of the boxing glove on his right hand.

His turn comes and he walks with confidence into the ring. One blow and the prizefighter falls unconscious. Charlie then proceeds to knockout the remainder of the sparring partners and attendants.

The next scene shows him actually in the ring. He is getting the worst of it when the bulldog joins him. The animal fastens its teeth to the region of the prize-fighter's hip pocket and the two proceed to down the ring-artist.

OTHERS SHARE HONORS.

While such plays are written to give the center of the stage to Charlie Chaplin, in other scenes he shares the honors with other actors of great power as comedians. Roscoe Arbuckle, known to the film-fans as "Fatty," never fails to win his share of the laugh. He will be recalled as the fat man with a sort of an innocent, what may be termed a "baby face." He and Ford Sterling are real fun makers. Sterling is the man of German appearance, hair pompadoured in front and a little black goatee. When he is surprised he wrinkles his nose as if some odor had offended him and this grimace is his chief asset for getting a laugh.

He and Arbuckle have appeared recently in a scene similar to one in which Arbuckle and Chaplin appeared several months ago. Both scenes are based on the plot of two men going to a cabaret with other women and being discovered there by their wives.

Yet with these men drawing the fat salaries in the moving picture game, there are those who do the hard work and get but little of the applause. If there were a scene where Charlie Chaplin had to fall into the lake, or Roscoe Arbuckle fall from a cliff or Ford Sterling had to descend from a large building by climbing its exterior, it would not be Chaplin, Arbucle or Sterling but a substitute who would risk his life in the scene.

SOME DAREDEVILS.

The two who have made themselves most useful at this work, yet have never received public acclaim, are Eddie Gordon and Jack Austin. The two started out as balloon pilots, exhibiting at the country fairs. When the balloon reached the right height both descended in a parachute. Austin used to come down hanging by his teeth, while Gordon won the name of a daredevil by hanging to the bar of the parachute by his toes.

When the moving picture business offered an element of hazard, the two engaged in this new work. At one time while rehearsing a play in New York, the director found the plot such that his star would have to ride over a cliff on a bicycle and land many feet below in the river. This the star refused to do. After much arguing Gordon was sent for and successfully performed the stunt.

At the upper end of the Harlem Ship Canal is the Hudson river. Broadway and Two hundred and twenty-fifth street is a high cliff. The cliff is 50 feet high and the water in the river is not more than six feet deep. Gordon approached the cliff at a good speed and man and bicycle hurtled over it. Gordon landed safely. The camera, however, was out of focus and the dare-devil had to repeat his thrilling dive.

In 1913, when pictures were a little bit more thrilling than they are now, an actress was suppose to drop from a ship. An aviator was to come along and pick her up after he had dived from his aeroplane. Now the star in this scene did not wish to take the risk of jumping from an aeroplane going at 50 miles an hour. Austin was called upon and did the stunt successfully.

A year or so ago the two undertook their most thrilling act. A motorcyclist was being chased by a policeman in the scene and the writer or perhaps the stage director, for a thrilling effect, wanted the two to jump an opening in a jack-knife bridge. Of course the stars in the case wouldn't take the risk, but Austin and Gordon did and succeeded. The bridge was so lifted that twenty feet intervened between its two spans. Up one incline the two raced on motorcycles, hurtled out into the air, struck the floor of the other span and after skidding for fifteen feet, righted their machines and continued on their journey. This was considered their most daring stunt.

JUMPING FROM CLIFF.

On one occasion Gordon jumped from a cliff, 30 feet high, to the back of a horse waiting below. Although he landed astride he was uninjured. But the horse suffered a broken back and had to be shot.

Austin won another record descending the 40 stories of the Equitable building in New York on a rope, hand over hand. Last winter he was employed in a scene where a convict jumps from a ferry boat and floats away on a cake of ice. Although the day was bitter cold and the thermometer down around zero, he performed this feat with success.

Another scene shown this summer is where an axman falls in a mountain stream and his body is washed down past boulders and jagged rocks. Manifestly the ordinary man would be torn to pieces trying such a performance. Yet Gordon did it and came through unscathed.

This summer also was shown perhaps the most realistic fire picture in the history of the films. A fireman falls in love with a girl employed in a department store. The store catches afire. The fireman climbs to the department where he knows the girl was stationed. He finds her and a millionaire's daughter, who had been trapped in the store, cringing on the floor, all means of escape cut off.

Men from an adjoining building throw him a rope which he makes fast. They secure it at the other end. His sweetheart refuses to go before the other girl. The fireman lifts what appears to be the other girl in his arm and swings out on the rope. With one hand he crosses the rope and reaches safety just as the rope is burned in two. That fireman is Austin and that figure in his arms is a dummy, made as light as possible, so that his feat may be performed. Yet he makes that one-hand crossing of the rope a hundred feet above the ground while the miss who is drawing the big salary watches as her substitute is "rescued."

Thus are these two heroes of the movies performing the risks at small salaries while the big actors refuse to do anything that might impair their earning capacity.

These are the two real heroes of the moving picture world.

AT THE TEMPLE.

A THREE-YEAR LEASE.

Temple Stock Company Management Signs for Theater.

John E. Snyder, representing the Temple Theater Players, the crack stock company organization which is just completing its summer run and which will open its winter season next week in the great drama, "The Blindness of Virtue," has closed a three-year lease for the Temple theater. The lease was signed by Mr. Snyder and the Associated Masonic Trustees and conveys the theater to the Temple Stock Players for three years. When the stock company first came to Fort Wayne it was under a six weeks' leave with an option for another year. So successful has been the venture that the management has decided that instead of exercising the option for but twelve months the institution would be made permanent.

The company this week is presenting an engaging farce-comedy, "The Wrong Mr. Wright," a laugh hit that is proving a general favorite. Next week the players will essay the more pretentious forms of drama opening in "The Blindness of Virtue" and playing a list of the highest class offerings that are released to stock. Maurice Jenkins now is in New York arranging for several additional artists who will join the company after next week.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Majestic Friday and Saturday.

Among the notable scenes of Wm. H. Kibble's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which is to be at the Majestic Friday and Saturday is the St. Claire home, showing the tropical garden with its fragrant magnolia and orange trees, among which nestles the typical southern plantation residence, the home of Little Eva; Legree's cotton plantation on the Red river with the cotton in full bloom; the wild rocky pass in southern Ohio, and the ice choking Ohio river by moonlight. The transformation entitled "The Celestial City" is said to be the most magnificent tableau ever conceived. In offering his revival to our city Wm. H. Kibble not only claims that the scenic effects are superior to any ever attempted but honestly assures prospective patrons that the company is composed of the most capable talent obtainable.

AT THT EMPRESS

"Monte Carlo Girls" at Empress Friday and Saturday.

Harry Welsh and his "Monte Carlo Girls" are coming back to Fort Wayne, but this time to the Empress theater, where this high grade burlesque attraction will be seen on Friday and Saturday of this week with matinee daily. Harry Welsh and his funny slide is well known in this city and he is surrounded by an unusually strong company of performers, all of whom are prominent and important factors in the musical comedy and vaudeville fields. The entire performance is a merry-go-round of pleasure, with abundance of fun, action and a spectacular dazzle in all of the dance numbers. Princess Kyra is the extra feature act and the press of other cities credit her work as just a little different and of a higher class than many of the other dancers.

Matinees will be given daily during the engagement.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

THE BIGGEST FILM EVENT.

Coming of "The Eternal City" to Jefferson" Is Premier Screen Event.

Eclipsing in every way any other photogramatic attraction that has ever been exhibited in this city, "The Eternal City," that master achievement of the Famous Players company, seen at the Jefferson today and tomorrow, will give local motion picture lovers an opportunity of witnessing an epochal film play that has aroused the highest admiration of every authority in the country. The story of "The Eternal City" is taken from Hall Caine's powerful novel of that title, and in order to lend an undeniable kind of realism to all the scenes, the producers of the pictures, Edwin Porter and Hughe Ford, took an entire company of American stage stars, including Pauline Frederick, to England, and subsequently to Rome, Italy, in which environments Mr. Caine laid his story.

The photoplay comes in eight inspiring parts, involving over eighty-five hundred feet of film. It was erroneously stated in the morning paper that the prices for admission were normal. The correct prices are 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

Soft as Moonlight is This Dance Dress

AT THE ORPHEUM.

"THE SCARLET SIN."

Remarkable Broadway-Universal Film Hit at Orpheum Tomorrow.

Hobart Bosworth, the most cosmopolitan habitant of the movie universe, is the latest famous star to be featured in the brilliant feature dramas issued by the Broadway-Universal company, and which are being shown on Thursdays at the Orpheum theater. This celebrated figure, who acts and directs with equal facility, assumes the titanic leading role in "The Scarlet Sin," a powerful morality drama of five parts.

Jane Novak, acknowledged to be one of the most beautiful women in the silent drama, plays the part of the erring wife, and gives fine shading to a role difficult in every way. The balance of the cast is very large, hundreds of supernumeraries being used in some of the scenes. Some of the settings, particularly the ones showing the explosion at the mine and the fist fight between the minister and the town bully, are convincingly realistic.

Proud of Her Feet is Outdoor Girl

The outdoor girl is very particular about her feet this summer. The slip shod, rubber soled canvas shoe is seldom seen where girls play tennis, golf or croquet.

The new sport shoes are natty things in white calf trimmed with blue or black or green leather. The outdoor girl has discovered that low shoes means stocky, spreading ankles so she encases her feet in laced boots that keep the ankle slim and graceful.

The voting is absolutely free and will be by number. You will have difficulty in deciding which one you prefer, because they are all equally charming and lovely. In order that all ages of girls attending Romp day may be represented, the ages of the contestants range from 5 to 14 years. Little Leona Klaren is the youngest. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Klaren at 533 LaSalle street. Mr. Klaren is an engine inspector at the Pennsylvania roundhouse. Miss Bessie Joyce is just entering high school and will be a freshman this year. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Joyce, of 1324 Hanna street. These six girls are the very embodiment of all that is sweet and lovely in innocent young girlhood. The only object of the Popularity Contest is entertainment and pleasure, not only for the girls themselves but for their friends. Each girl will receive a keepsake of the occasion. Every man, woman, girl and boy attending Romp day should show their interest by voting for one of the candidates. The voting is absolutely free.

CORONER CONDUCTS INQUEST.

No One Blamed for Death of Frederick William Baird.

No blame is attached to anyone for the death of Frederick William Baird, of Heustis avenue, who was instantly killed Sunday morning while walking on the Wabash tracks by a fast train, which hurled his mangled body eighty feet from the elevation at the Thompson avenue crossing. Such will be the verdict of Coroner Edward H. Kruse, who conducted the inquest Wednesday afternoon, at which time several witnesses were heard. The evidence showed that Engineer Baugher, of eastbound fast train No. 2, of the Wabash, which struck Baird, had his whistle going sufficiently to have given the young man plenty of warning. The coroner will find that Baird was a trespasser on the company's right of way and that the fault was his own.

COBB'S TEN YEARS AS MAJOR LEAGUER

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, referred to as the greatest ball player in the world, today celebrated the tenth anniversary of his debut as a major league player. No special ceremony was planned by Detroit fans to mark the occasion but it was expected that Cobb would receive an unusual demonstration—and probably something more substantial—from his friends this afternoon when he stepped to the plate in the last game of the important series with Boston. Cobb's path of fame which he blazed for himself has probably never been equalled in the history of baseball. For five successive seasons he has been champion batsman of the American league. His average for the present season is about .380 and it seems a human impossibility for any of his rivals to wrest the crown from him this year. No batter has ever made such a record.

On August 26, 1905, a tall, nervous appearing boy of 19 years from the Augusta Ga., club in a class C league donned a Detroit uniform and was sent to Centerfielder Manager Bill Armour to replace Dick Cooley. The player was Cobb; Cooley never got his job back. Cobb became a regular player that afternoon. Only once in these ten years has the mighty Tyrus been replaced by a pinch hitter. When Cobb was a youngster, "Doc" White, of the Chicago club, was his nemesis. Catcher Freddie Hayne was sent to bat for Cobb against White on the single occasion. In 1906, his first full season, Cobb hit .320. That has since been his low mark.

IN WARTIME MONTREAL.

Montreal is making a bid for the pugilistic spotlight. Twenty-round battles to a decision are going to be allowed there before it comes time to put on your heavies.

Word from Walter Burke, formerly manager of several fighters, was that he had secured permission from the city authorities to stage marathon events and he has taken over the Hochelaga A. A. there, with prospects for a good season.

Montreal in wartime, with most of the men at the front, doesn't look like an especially alluring field, but Burke is confident he can put it over. The club could draw some patronage from New York for a championship affair, but it's too far away for Gotham sports to travel to see the smaller fry, especially if they're going to see decision fights here.

NATIONAL LINE-UP IS NOW COMPLETED

The following is the line-up for the National league representative team that will tour the northwest with the American team after the big league seasons close, the announcement being made in Chicago Thursday:

Pitchers—Jack Coombs, Christy Mathewson, Grover Alexander and Jim Vaughn; catchers—Bill Killifer, Frank Snyder or Otto Miller; first base—Jake Daubert, second base—John Miller; third base—Heine Groh; shortstop—Hans Wagner; outfielders—Wade Killifer, Cosy Dolan and George Burns.

The team will be piloted by Frank Vancroft, business manager of the Reds.

Hughey Jennings, who will direct the American stars, has not announced his roster. Games will be played through the Northwest, with a probable windup at San Francisco.

WIVES AND MOTHERS TRY FOR HONORS ON THE GOLF COURSE.

Left, Mrs. D. W. Widney; center, Mrs. Kenneth Duffield, Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Harry D. Hammond, Indianapolis, present title holder among married women in tournament for women's western golf championship.

Wives and mothers have left household duties at their homes in various parts of the middle west to try for honors on the golf course. They entered a tournament at Chicago in which the women's western championship is at stake.

The drawings show youth pitted against age in many cases with heads of households playing against athletic young sprites, like Miss Marjorie Dodd, of Cincinnati, and others who, without home affairs to manage, spend a good deal of their time at golf, tennis and other outdoor sports.

The married women were picked at the outset to win top honors. One, Mrs. Harry D. Hammond, of Indianapolis, won the championship last year and entered to defend the title.

Other married women entered: Mrs. Kenneth Duffield, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. D. W. Widney, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Lyman Bournique, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. Sam Welty, Bloomington; Mrs. C. G. Powers, Decatur; Mrs. Abbott Thorndyke, Sioux City, Ia.; Mrs. F. H. Newcomb, Wheaton, Ill.; Mrs. E. R. Morris, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. G. D. Smith, Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. T. L. Wann, of White Bear Lake, Minn.; Mrs. Melvin Jones, Cleveland, O.

WILL MEAN A REAL MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMP

New York, Aug. 26.—All things come to those who wait. It's an aged wheeze; apparently one that has a little truth concealed about its person.

The pugilistic world has been waiting these many years for the clouds to roll away from the middle weight tangle and reveal a champion. In a seemingly unending procession Eddie McGoorty, Jimmy Clabby, Mike Gibbons, Jack Dillon, Al McCoy, George Chip, Young Ahearn and scores of dimmer lights have passed before the assembled multitude and then faded, bickering and quarreling, into the background.

But by this time next month there should be a middle weight champion for the public to shove its shekels through the wicker gate to see. According to the old reliable dope the championship lies between three men—Mike Gibbons, Packey McFarland and Les Darcey. Who is that guy? He's the guy that put the sleep-kiss on Eddie McGoorty's chin down in Australia not long since, thereby winning for himself at least consideration.

There won't be much dispute about the winner of the McFarland-Gibbons quarrel being considered the classiest thing on the middle weight shelf. But how he's going to get away from a meeting with this Darcey person hardly is visible. McGoorty for a long time has been considered one of the few real claimants to the championship, and in some parts of Wisconsin he has been considered "the champion." Therefore, the man who can put him away should not be considered lightly.

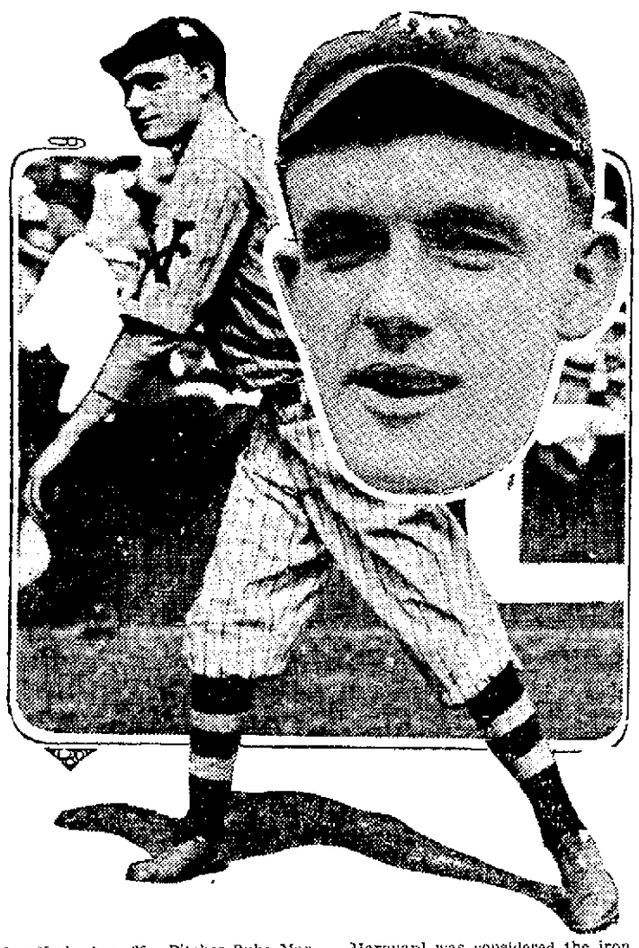
RUBE MARQUARD COMES BACK TO THE MINORS.



New York, Aug. 26.—Pitcher Rube Marquard, who cost the New York Giants $11,000 six years ago, has been sent to the minors, where he came from. No one in the National or the American league considered Rube worth $1,500, the waiver price, and that is why he is now a member of the Toronto International league ball club. Manager McGraw, of the Giants, announced this afternoon that Marquard has been sold to the Canadian club—but probably for a good deal less than $1,500.

Catcher Chief Meyers, it is rumored, will be the next to go. Right in line with this report came the announcement today that Catcher Bob Schang had been purchased from Pittsburgh.

The acquisition of Rube Benton by McGraw cleared the way for the exit of Marquard, and it is certain that some more of the creaking timbers will be dislodged from the Giants' structure shortly.

Marquard was considered the iron man of the league when he first joined the Giants. The late John T. Brush was the man who bought Rube from the Indianapolis American association team for the reported price of $11,000. That was the high-water mark for a pitcher in those days, but Rube more than earned it by some great performances for the Giants. His record of nineteen straight wins is still a big league record.

Rube began to go back last year and McGraw has tried several times to dispose of him in trades, but the pitcher's disposition, as well as his erratic work, militated against any transfer, and now he will have to start all over again.

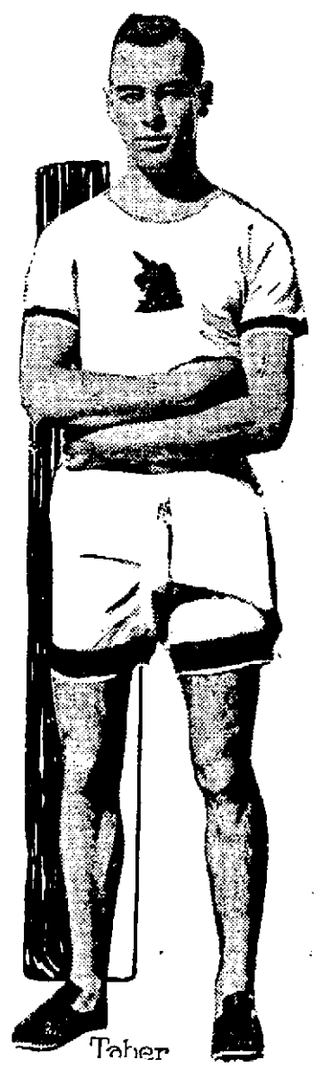
Marquard declared he was not willing to go to Toronto and said he would ask for an unconditional release. Under the terms of the transaction as announced by Manager McGraw the Giants are to get a pitcher named Herbert, from Toronto in part payment for Marquard.

TABER TELLS HOW TO TRAIN FOR MILE RUN

World's Record Holder is Certain It's a Scientific Study.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 26.—Training for the mile run has been given the most scientific study by Norman S. Taber, world's record holder for that distance, and in explaining his methods he shatters many approved tenets still clung to by his less speedy competitors.

He believes, for instance, that an athlete training for the mile may eat practically anything that agrees with him.



"To run a mile," he says, "a man must maintain his strength by eating solid food that will build up endurance. The old way of training on toast and light foods would not suit the athlete of today."

The miler of today is not trained as a plodder, but rather a combination of plodder and sprinter, according to Taber's system.

"I think," declares Taber, "that men training for the mile will find it best to arrange their practice runs to come at the time of day when the actual race is to be run."

Cross-country work, to begin with; a steady application to the process of developing endurance; then sprinting at intervals, and finally a daily combination of distance running and sprinting, is Taber's advice for men training for the mile.

A long siege of cross-country work is not desirable, he maintains. It should, however, be indulged in for a week or more to strengthen the legs and the wind. A three-mile slow run on the track is about the limit of the endurance training, he says.

Taber was a member of the Oxford relay team that competed at the Pennsylvania games last year, and a student at Brown university prior to that. In 1913 he won the national mile championship.

MERELY BY ABILITY AND SQUARE DEALING

Woman Made "Go" of Business She Knew Nothing at All About.

Los Angeles, Aug. 26.—Five years ago a nervous little woman, dressed in widow's weeds, walked into a small room of a big building.

The strangest feeling came when she looked for the first time, since his death, on the little place where her deceased had worked for years to earn a livelihood.

The big "I will" surged in her heart when she thought of the two fatherless children at home that she had promised herself to bring up with the very best in the land.

The workshop was rather dingy. Things didn't look in the apple-pie order they might have done, for the husband-proprietor had been obliged to be away from it for nearly a year before he died.

"This is a queer business for a woman to go into," the little widow thought, as she surveyed the metal and the newspaper "cuts" and the presses, and machines. "But, I believe I can do it. Why shouldn't I? I will!"

And that's how it happens Los Angeles now possesses an up-to-date, thriving, fast growing, service-giving engraving company headed and operated by a woman!

This woman, one of a little coterie, all of whom are classed among the most successful women of Los Angeles, is Mrs. Virginia Thomson.

There is no sign of fear in her manner now. She doesn't quiver and quake, tremblingly, when "business" comes her way. Her eyes snap and shine. Her face wreathes in smiles. Her movements are quick and alert. Everything about her indicates prosperity.

"When I first took up the business," Mrs. Thomson said, "I had debts to face. Believing that being square is the very best policy, I went to each one of the creditors and told them I would pay them just as soon as I could. They were lovely to me, everyone.

"It took me a year to clear those obligations, and since then I've been steadily forging ahead.

"A short while ago I secured a fourteen-year lease on uptown property and the owner has built a structure to suit me. My aim is to have the greatest quality and service shop in the city. Give me just about three years more and I'll have it."

Mrs. Thomson has a foreman, to whom she gives all her directions. "I never 'nag' my men," she said. "And I give them the very best surroundings I know. It pays. They would rather work for me than in any other shop in town, though I don't pay the highest wages always."

There are fourteen men in the shop. A day and a night force runs all the time.

Mrs. Thomson hasn't any solicitors. She gets all the business herself. "I just go after the regular customers," she laughed. "And then I keep them," which is probably the pith of successful business principles.

Asked what she thought of the wisdom of women entering the business world Mrs. Thomson replied:

"I think the home is the place for the women. But if she has to go out into it, she will get good treatment. We often hear stories about how hard it is for a woman to work in competition with men. On the contrary, I have found them fair and agreeable."

Mrs. Thomson's daughter, a girl just in her teens, is following her mother's footsteps instead of her advice, and has taken charge of the office. "I do the outside work and daughter attends to the inside."

"Do you like business as well as home life?" I asked.

"I was a housekeeper for twenty-five years," she replied, "and though I had a happy home and enjoyed it, I wouldn't go back to housekeeping for everything in the world. There may be some restless nights when we wonder how in the world we are going to meet obligations and shoulder responsibilities. But there's a fascination about business that I love."

HAS FUN WITHOUT MONEY.

Elizabeth Hansen Arrested After Gay Time in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 26.—Elizabeth Hansen, said to have posed as a Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald, is in custody on a charge of having overlooked a $29 obligation at the Hotel Wisconsin.

The police say she has been having a lot of fun without any money. Among other things she is said to have purchased a $2,200 automobile, giving in part payment a check for $1,000 drawn on a Chicago bank. The check proved worthless. She also is said to have negotiated for the $12,000 suburban home of Joseph Schumacher, shoe dealer.

Landaus were originally made in a town named Landau, in Germany.

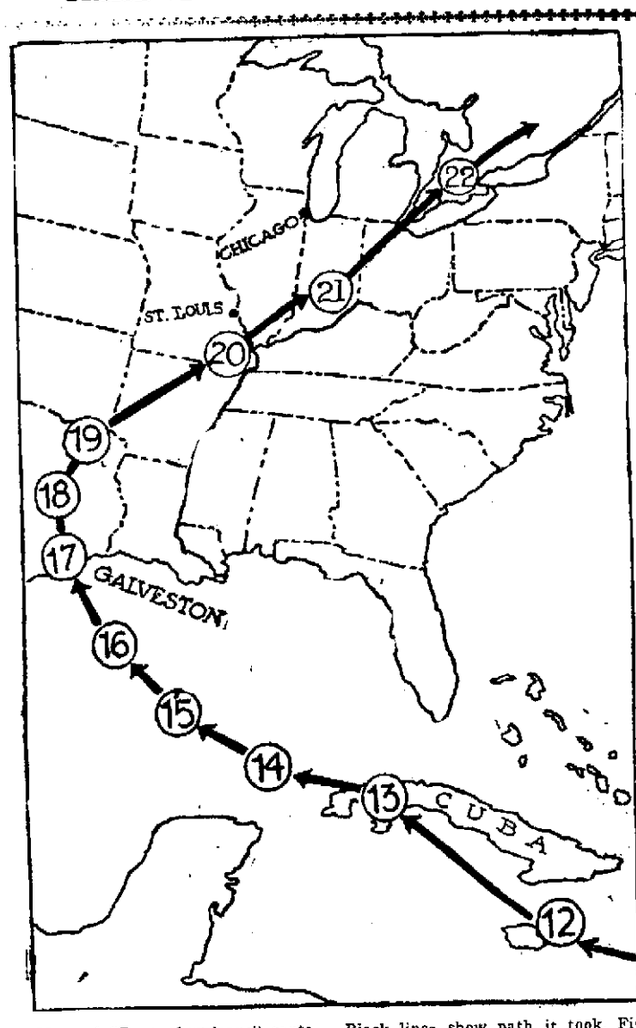
TRAIL OF THE TEXAS HURRICANE.



Map of "Texas hurricane" route. Black lines show path it took. Figures show where storm center was at different dates.

TERRIBLE DEATH DEALING STORM TRAVELS ALONG WIDE CIRCLE BEGINNING AND ENDING IN ATLANTIC.

The storm which did so much damage in Texas, causing the deaths of hundreds and a huge property loss, traveled in a wide half-circle.

It first appeared near the central portion of the Windward islands, just north of Trinidad in the West Indies, on Monday, August 9. Considerable property damage was done at Kingstown on the island of St. Vincent in the Windward group; and by Tuesday, the storm center had reached the island of St. Croix, just south of Porto Rico.

At that time, the wind at San Juan reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour, as the center moved west-northwest at about eighteen or twenty miles an hour. After passing near Haiti and Jamaica and across the western portion of Cuba, the disturbance swept across the gulf of Mexico to the eastern coast of Texas, reaching Galveston early last Monday morning, just a week after its first appearance in the Windward islands. At Galveston, the velocity of the wind reached seventy miles an hour.

Early Tuesday morning the storm center passed just south of Houston; and then, after remaining practically stationary all day Wednesday, the disturbance swung about and headed northeastward across Texas.

On Thursday and Friday the storm continued to move northeastward, passing Cairo, Ill., and at night, according to reports reaching the weather bureau, the center of the disturbance was at Evansville.

By Saturday morning it had reached the center of Indiana traveling northeastward to reach the "storm center route"—the St. Lawrence valley into the Atlantic ocean.

BLOCKS PAROLE FOR TERRE HAUTE CROWD

Federal Board Says Nay to Powerful Political Influences.

Washington, Aug. 26.—It was learned today that the federal board of parole has nullified the efforts to obtain the release of nine of the Terre Haute election violators from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., by acting adversely on the applications for parole. In taking this course, the board of parole, in several instances, has overridden powerful political and other influences.

Nine of the men who are "doing time" under sentences of one year and a day, imposed in famous election case, were eligible to parole last Thursday, having served one-third of their sentences. The nine who are denied clemency are John Masselink, Arthur Gillis, Joseph Strauss, Charles Boughton, Edward Holler, Alexander Aezel, Joseph O'Mara, George Sovern and Maurice Walsh.

The friends of John Masselink had been specially active in his behalf.

The board of parole has consented to take up some or all of these cases again when it meets at the penitentiary about Sept. 10. In no event will the board grant clemency without consulting District Attorney Frank C. Dailey, who prosecuted the men into the penitentiary.

The board will give out no statement whatever for refusing clemency in its first report, but back of it all is believed to be a desire to avoid putting the democratic party in a hole. The party has assumed a good deal of credit for virtuous party housecleaning by the prosecution and conviction of the men and it was believed by many politicians that their release at the first opportunity would have worked serious party injury.

U. S. TROOPER IS POISONED.

Thinks He Ate Mushroom, But Doctor Says It Was Toadstool.

Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 26.—When Troop B, Fifth United States cavalry, from Ft. Sheridan, left here yesterday for Indianapolis, where the troop is to take part in the military maneuvers at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, H. H. Byington, first sergeant, was left behind, a patient at the Palmer hospital.

While in the fair ground, Byington found what he thought was a mushroom and ate a part of it. He became ill and was removed to the hospital. Byington believes he ate a part of a mushroom which was decayed, but the belief of the physician is that he ate part of a toadstool. He expects to be able to join his troop within three days. The troop will reach Indianapolis tonight.

PAINT IT FOLIAGE GREEN.

New Treatment of Barbed Wire Makes It Almost Invisible.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 26.—Barbed wire painted a foliage green, is now being manufactured for use of the armies in Europe. Barbed wire is ordinarily galvanized but because of the scarcity and high prices of spelter, a local manufacturer devised a scheme to paint it. Steel men say that reports from abroad show that a short distance away it is impossible to see the green wire.

RABBIT ARISTOCRATS AT FORT WAYNE FAIR

Will Be Among Novel Exhibits Provided for Coming Event.

Blue, red, pink, checkered and even green rabbits, big and little rabbits, but all of them aristocrats from the tips of their wriggling noses to the tips of their twinkling tails will be a novel show to be given by the Fort Wayne Pet Stock association in the poultry and pet stock department at Fort Wayne's Great Fair, September 14 to 18 inclusive. Don't sniff so superiorly. Maybe you know something about rabbits and maybe you don't. The chances are very much against it. Of course you know the American cotton tail, and maybe you have heard of the real Angora rabbit, but did you ever know that the pure bred Belgian hare is as red as the sinking sun? Did you ever know the New Zealand king rabbit is a cherry red, and one of the giant rabbits pure black, while another is a checkered pattern? Did you ever know that there are scores of rabbits in this country worth from $100 to $500 each and that $1,000 is no unheard of price for a single rabbit? If you knew all these things and had seen these royal representatives of the rabbit family then there won't be much to interest you in this portion of the fair except that Fort Wayne breeders own some of the best rabbits in the entire country.

The Fort Wayne Pet Stock association is a local of a national organization and is officered as follows: Charles Harris, president; Roy Evans, vice president; Frank A. Devillbiss, secretary; and Oscar L. Lauenberger, treasurer. In addition to rabbits this association will exhibit harmless skunk, guiena pigs, squirrel, fox and other fur bearing animals.

Any one desiring to enter this exhibit should communicate with the secretary, 2803 Oliver street, phone 7632 Black.

Charlemange was the first person to assume the title of kaiser.

VETERAN CHECKMAN GOES TO HOSPITAL

George W. Bearinger Very Ill With Stomach Trouble—Shop News.

George W. Bearinger, of 122 West Creighton avenue, has gone to the Wabash railway hospital at Peru, where he may have to submit to a surgical operation for relief from stomach trouble. He has been afflicted for a year or so, but was able to work at the company's freight house, where he is a checkman, until a week or two ago. Mr. Bearinger, in point of service, is one of the oldest of the employes at the Wabash freight house and he is held in great esteem by the other employes.

CROP REPORTS MORE FAVORABLE.

Corn Will Be Heaviest in History in Some Parts.

The weekly crop report of General Traffic Manager W. C. Maxwell, of the Wabash, covering the seven days prior to August 24, shows crop condition in the territory touched by the Wabash lines to be better than reported last week. In Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, under favorable weather conditions during a part of the week, from 50 to 60 per cent. of the crop of wheat was threshed. Quality off grade; 80 per cent. of the oats crop was harvested, but very little threshed. Damage about 25 per cent. Corn prospects good and warm weather will ripen it quickly.

Missouri—Rains delayed farm work and there was very little wheat threshing done during the week; the oats crop was nearly all destroyed north of Pattonburg and but little threshed elsewhere on account of the rain. Corn in good condition, but growth retarded by cold nights.

Iowa—Wheat threshing delayed by the rains; estimated yield 25 bushels to the acre, black and sprouting and will grade low; oats damaged considerably and yield will be about 15 bushels to the acre; on the Omaha line this grain was nearly all destroyed; corn, while backward, is doing fine and with favorable weather will be a good crop.

Illinois—Heavy rains during the week delayed wheat threshing, 10 to 15 per cent. being stacked for later threshing; sprouting in many places and will be off grade; about 50 per cent. of the crop of oats has been threshed; badly stained and off grade in some sections; in some fields the crop was beaten down by storm and was not cut; the corn is looking good, except in low lands; some damage by wind and rain, but extent cannot yet be estimated; the hay crop is light and not of good quality; about 30 per cent. not yet cut on account of the rains; the apple crop prospect was never better.

BUSINESS GETTING BETTER.

Nickel Plate Recalls Some Furloughed Trainmen.

The improvement in the freight business on the Nickel Plate which set in a few days ago, appears to be permanent. More crews are necessary to handle it and some furloughed men are being recalled. Among these are Firemen B. T. Smith, R. J. Leatherman, J. E. Frederickson and G. H. Aigler and Brakemen T. J. Conners, F. H. Showers and P. V. Duncan. More will be recalled next week if the traffic continues to increase in volume.

TRAIN OF GASOLENE

Is Being Rushed East for Export to Europe.

An unusual freight, size of consignment considered, to pass over the Nickel Plate last night, was a train of thirty-six tank cars loaded with gasolene. It came from some western oil field and was delivered to the Nickel Plate at Osborne by one of the western roads. This is said to be one of the largest shipments of gasolene to pass through this city for many months.

Schwartz will handle the throttle in place of Mr. Maloney on trains 3 and 6 between Fort Wayne and Bellevue.

IN THE CHURCHES

Rev. W. A. Griest and Wife Are Given Reception at Logansport.

In observance of the twentieth anniversary of their married life, a grand reception was recently given for Rev. W. A. Griest and wife at the Market street M. E. church, Logansport, where he is now in charge. Rev. Griest will be remembered by many Fort Wayne people, having been pastor of Simpson M. E. church, of this city. A Logansport newspaper has the following to say about the affair:

"One of the most pleasant social affairs ever given in the city was that given last evening at the Market Street M. E. church in honor of Rev. W. A. Griest and wife. It was in the nature of a reception and also a celebration of the twentieth wedding anniversary of the pastor and his wife.

The church was a bower of beauty, with palms, vines and cut flowers completely decorated for a church wedding. As Mr. Griest and wife entered the church they were met at the door by four little flower girls, six years of age, daintily gowned in white who scattered flowers before them on the way to the altar. Rev. E. C. Dunn gave the address of welcome and the pastor and his wife responded. The couple were then escorted to the diningroom, which was also artistically decorated with flowers and greenery where light refreshments were served and Dr. M. B. Stewart acted as toastmaster. Responses were given."

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

In a Belgian Loft: A War Incident

There is a graphic little sketch in the United Free Church "Record" of a Sunday morning in a Belgian loft. There had been a sharp engagement, and the British troops holding a village had been hurriedly forced by great masses of the enemy to retire. In the confusion three Scottish privates and a corporal had been cut off in the streets and had backed into the first open door they came to. The occupants had fled, and they made their way up a long staircase, intending to find the roof and watch events from there. But it ended in an empty loft, where there was only a skylight beyond their reach. "Better lie low for a while," suggested the corporal as they stood listening to the terrible sounds outside. The Germans were evidently burning, looting and killing. Now and again they heard screams and the discharge of rifles; sometimes an explosion would shake the building; while the smell of burning wood penetrated to their retreat. This went on for hours. The soldiers knew they would be discovered sooner or later, and expected no mercy.

Suddenly the corporal said: "Lads, it's time for church parade; let's have a wee bit service here; it may be our last." The soldiers looked a little astonished, but they piled their rifles in a corner and came and stood at attention. The corporal took a small Testament from his breast pocket and turned over the pages. "Canna we sing something first? Try ye're hand at the 23rd Psalm. Quiet, noo-very quiet."

"Yea, though I walk in death's dark vale.
Yet will I fear none ill:
For Thou art with me; and Thy rod
And staff comfort me still."

There wasn't much melody about the time, but the words came from the heart.

Then the corporal began: "Fear not them which kill the body but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear Him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not, therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows." As he read, there were loud shouts below; doors banged, and glass was smashed. But he went on; "He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for My sake shall find it." He ended, and his grave face took on a wry smile. "I'm no' a gude hand at this job," he said, "but we maun finish it off. Let us pray."

The corporal stood, with the book in his hand, and the others knelt and bowed their heads. A little haltingly, but very simply, he committed their way to God and asked for strength to meet their coming fate like men. While he prayed a heavy hand thrust open the door, and they heard an exultant exclamation and then a gasp of surprise. Not a man moved, and the corporal went calmly on. After a pause he began, with great reverence, to repeat the Lord's Prayer. That a German officer or private was standing there they realized; they did not see, but they felt, what was taking place. They heard the click of his heels, and they knew that he also was standing at attention. For a moment the suspense lasted and then came the soft closing of the door and his footsteps dying away. The tumult in the house gradually ceased, and soon afterwards the storm of war retreated like the ebb of the tide. At dusk four men ventured forth, and by making a wide detour worked round the flank of the enemy and reached the British outposts in safety.—George M. Graham.

Debt Carries You for Awhile, But, Groaning and Swea ting, You Carry Debt in the End

"WHAT A COMFORTABLE RIDE I AM HAVING!"

Several million young men are saying this now as they "CHARGE IT."

It is wonderful how comfortable life is while the charging process lasts.

You see what you want, you get it—and CHARGE IT.

One dollar suddenly becomes five dollars—any number of dollars—for you spend and you still have the one dollar.

Old Father Debt carries you along patiently for a little while. On he goes and carries the load, but then—

"CURSED BE THIS LOAD!"

Very different when the thing changes, when debt ceases to carry you and YOU begin to carry the heavy load of debt.

A picture is worth ten thousand words.

If you can't SEE the truth in these pictures you are among the vast majority that must learn only by experience. YOU WILL LEARN. When you feel the weight on your back that the man is carrying in this second picture you will wish that you had looked at the pictures more carefully.—San Francisco Call.

Five Reasons Worth Learning

Dr. Henry Smith Williams, of New York, an eminent specialist in nervous and mental diseases, summing up his investigations concerning alcohol and its effects, says:

"I am bound to believe, on the evidence, that if you take alcohol habitually in any quantity whatever, it is to some extent a menace to you. If you do this, I am bound to believe, in the light of what science has revealed:

"1. That you are tangibly threatening the physical structures of your stomach, your liver, your kidneys, your heart, your blood vessels, your nerves, your brain;

"2. That you are unequivocally decreasing your capacity for work in any field, be it physical, intellectual, or artistic.

"3. That you are in some measure lowering the grade of your mind, dulling your higher esthetic sense, and taking the finer edge off your morals.

"4. That you are distinctly lessening your chances of maintaining health and attaining long life; and.

"5. That you are entailing upon your descendants yet unborn a bond of incalculable misery."

Too bad that these five reasons may not be so impressed upon men and women that they be given the same horror of alcohol as they have been taught to feel toward the germs of tuberculosis—men will turn in horror from the thought of drinking tuberculosis germs in their milk, yet drink liquor that is more deadly!—The Miami (Fla.) Metropolis.

Personal Liberty Has Its Limits

"A man may not even do with his own body what he pleases," says Mr Charles Stelzle.

"Suppose he tries to kill it—to commit suicide. If he succeeds, Billy Sunday says he will go to hell. If he fails he will go to jail. And yet if the United States government should decide to go to war it assumes the right, if necessary, to send him to the front to be shot down. He belongs to the state as well as to himself. We have recently passed most stringent laws against the sale and use of certain kinds of drugs, because of the great injury which their use inflicts upon the human mind and body.

"If the state should decide that the saloon is a menace and that it dispenses poison, then society has a right to say that the saloon must go, no matter how it may affect anybody's personal liberty. We accept the restriction which the state imposes upon us in other relationships. Why not accept it with regard to the saloon, especially since it has been so clearly demonstrated that the interests of the saloon are always opposed to the interests of the workingman?"

OUR THREE FRIENDS

Friendship of the right sort means freedom of the best sort. The best thing that we can do for any man is to get him into touch with the right sort of friends: and our own life is never what it should be until our friends are what they should be. Fortunately we can all have exactly the friends that we most need. They are the heavenly Father, His Son, and the Holy Spirit. The way in which these friends prove their friendship for us has been revealingly suggested in the statement that God wills, Jesus works, and the Holy Spirit witnesses. It is God's will that men should be saved: our salvation originates in His loving purpose for us. Having willed this, he committed to His only Son the working out and the completing of our salvation. And the Holy Spirit is in the world today to make known to men the wonders of the work that is already done and that is yet to be done, for them, by Jesus Christ. It is as though an earthly king of absolute power assigned to his mightiest representative the work of providing for every need in the life of all his subjects, and then assigned to another equally mighty representative the mission of making known to his subjects the sufficiency of the provision that was made for them. Are we resting joyously in the friendship of our three friends?—S. S. Times.

GREED

Some of you may have read Tolstoi's fable, "How Much Land Does a Man Require?" In that striking story a Russian peasant is smitten with greed of land. Unable to obtain as much as he wishes from his old landlord, he seeks a new one, who in a freakish mood tells him he can have as much land for his money as he can walk round before sunset. The peasant joyfully agrees, and the owner lays his cap on a knoll and bids him walk round in a circle and return to the cap before the sun sinks. At first our gratified peasant walks leisurely, but presently he sees a desirable bit of land, the very patch for corn, and widens his circle to include it. A little further on he spies a piece that cries out for a potato crop and increases his pace to include that also. Another splendid piece of land comes to his view, and another, and yet another. To include them all he must run, and run he does; first slowly, then with all his might. At last he thinks he has enough, and notes with apprehension that the sun is very low in the sky, and the cap not yet in sight. He tries to increase his pace, but his feet are torn and bleeding, his head aches, his lungs work like a blacksmith's bellows, his veins are tense and swollen, his heart thumps like an iron hammer against his ribs. Still he makes an effort, and at last the cap is in sight. He is all but spent, every sinew is strained to snapping point, his head swims, there is a red mist before his eyes. But suddenly the loud cheering of the spectators bursts upon the humming ears, and with superhuman efforts he reaches the cap. As he reaches it he falls down dead, the sun goes down, and he lies dead.

This is not an old story. It happens every day. Men still drop dead in the cruel race in which greed holds the whip. Any doctor will confirm this, if you ask him. But the death of the soul comes first. When, do you think, did our peasant really die the only death that matters? Was it at the end of the race, when he sank down beside his prize? Was it during the race, or even at the beginning? In the deepest sense he was dead when he started—only a dead soul could run in such a race.—E. Hermann.

UP AND AT IT.

We are all liable to mishaps, errors and defeats. We undertake to do things which are beyond our power, and we often fail in our undertakings. Things do not turn out as we expected: we become discouraged, and are inclined to despond: but this is not the way of wisdom. A temporary failure may be a real and permanent blessing: there may have been a lesson which we have been slow to learn, which is emphasized by defeat. We have possibly trusted too much in our own strength, and needed to learn more about our weakness and helplessness: and now when the lesson is learned, we may be better fitted than ever before for activity, usefulness and success. It is a great thing to learn our weakness, to be made acquainted with our infirmities and our faults, and to understand wherein our strength lies. If we can only learn the lesson soon enough, if we are not too dull of hearing, we may gain instruction from the chastenings of the heavenly Father, and may say, "It is good for me that I have been afflicted; before I was afflicted I went astray, but now have I learned Thy law."

Trusting in God though we fall we shall not be utterly cast down. We have failed once, let us try again. We may have suffered defeat through disobedience, but if we follow Christ we are sure of victory.

LINCOLN ON TEMPERANCE.

On September 28, 1863, a delegation of the Sons of Temperance waited on President Lincoln. In an address to them, Mr. Lincoln said:

"If I were better known than I am you would not need to be told that in the advocacy of the cause of temperance you have in me a friend and sympathizer. When I was a young man I, in a humble way, made temperance speeches and I think I may say to this day I have never, by my example, belied what I then said.

"I think that the most reasonable men of the world have long since agreed that intemperance is one of the greatest if not the greatest of the evils among mankind."

This is the man that the liquor interests advertise as a saloonkeeper, a drinker of beer and an opposer of prohibition.

LITTLE GREAT MEN

Jesus never mentioned any of earth's great men, so called, with words of praise. There had been great conquerors before his time, like Alexander the Great, but He never spoke of them. Rich men had received the notice of their fellow men, but He never mentioned one of them by name. None of those of whom human history speaks most largely came in for a word of commendation from Him or from his apostles in later years.

This should bid us pause and make us stop and think whether our human judgments are not totally faulty. Have we not put the seal of greatness where it does not belong? In what respect is the world better today for the existence of rich men like Croesus, of conquerors like Alexander, of philosophers like Plato, of authors like Cicero? What really valuable thing should we lose had such men never existed? Gather all the conquerors of the world together, and say whether they have been as useful to this world as one John Bunyan or one John Wesley. Put all your philosophical books together, and declare whether they have accomplished as much for humanity as the Epistle of Paul to the Galatians. Match Bismarck and Luther, and judge whether politician or preacher has the best of it in the long run. On the other hand, if you blot out Abraham, Joseph, Moses, David the singer (not David the king), Elijah, Isaiah, John the Baptist, Paul, from human history, you usher in blackness of darkness.—A. F. Schauffler in Sunday School Times.

DAVID'S SORROW OVER ABSALOM.

How David suffered for his sins! How greatly his sins found him out! He robbed Uriah of his heart's desire and was robbed of the hearts of his people. He deceived an honest soldier and was deceived by a dishonest son! He sent Uriah to his death and was condemned to mourn the death of his beloved Absalom. Pity him, the old man in his heavy sorrows! But be sure to learn the lesson: "The wages of sin is death."

ACTS AND RESOLUTIONS

Horace Mann once remarked: "I have never heard anything about the resolutions of the apostles, but a good deal about the acts of the apostles." It was a keen criticism, which every Christian will do well to remember. The boy who wrote, in an examination, that "resolution" meant "something that melted down" was not as far wide of the mark as he might have been. That is what happens to every resolution that does not get into action; and without action, resolution is not only worthless, but harmful, since it accustoms the mind to decide and then stop short of action.

Modern psychology declares, indeed, that action will produce feeling, if it is kept up. The act of smiling, persisted in, will evolve a cheerful feeling. The act seems to be the important thing, and to draw the mental processes after it. When a young man or woman desires to be a Christian, the doing of Christian acts will help along more than any amount of anxious meditation or excited feeling. Any man who wants to find Christ, and who will take the Beatitudes and go doggedly to work to act them out, will find himself a Christian disciple before he knows it, ready to accept Christ, needing Him with a personal need, understanding His words better every hour. "If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching," were the Savior's own words, and they remain as true as when spoken in Galilee. The way to God is through the gate of action.

Prayer is a stumbling-block to many Christians, who ought to know better, because of the tendency to make prayer unreal by separating it from action. A Christian who prays, to prepare himself for action, and then acts in the spirit of prayer, never needs to be argued with on the efficacy of prayer. He knows its power. The girl to whom prayer seems unreal and hard is making it a dream, a feeling, not linked to the realities of her daily life. Obedient action, yoked to prayer, is the answer to such difficulty—the true secret of the apostles.—Unknown.

How to Promote Peace in the Home

I.—Let each person remember that there are others in the house beside themselves.

II.—That all, be they old or young, have a right to be considered as well as yourself.

III.—That as there are differences of temper, disposition, and judgment amongst you, there should be bearing and forbearing.

IV.—Learn each other's tender point or peculiarity, and do all you can to avoid touching it.

V.—When angry or cross, count ten before you speak, and then only in a whisper.

VI.—If others are put out, do all you can to soothe; provoke not, reply not.

VII.—Enter into one another's trials, sickness, pleasures or plans, and seek to share them.

VIII.—Let sunshine into all your ways, works and words.

IX.—Provoke not the children to wrath; soothe, cheer, guide them aright.

X.—Praise when you can, and when you cannot, say nothing to wound or irritate.

XI.—Speak kindly to servants—do not lord it over those under you.

XII.—Let the servants do what is to be done, without waiting to be told to do it.

XIII.—Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. Phil. II. 2-8.

KEEP BUSY.

If you expect God to choose you for a great work, be busy: He seldom selects idlers. When He wished a deliverer for Israel, He went into the wilderness for Moses, who was watching sheep; when He wanted a man to save His people from the Midianites, He sent for Gideon, who was threshing wheat; when He wanted a man after His own heart to be king of Israel, He sent for David who was keeping sheep. Idlers do not suit; the Lord wishes those who are not only willing to work, but who are hard at it. Idlers are too often lazy, and that may be the cause of their idleness. Such seldom have enough ambition to take care of themselves, let alone caring for the Lord's work. But idlers suit Satan exactly. He likes such as have no ambition, for they make the best slaves. The devil wants slaves for his work, but God wants something better. He wishes men and women who have ambition, who take an interest in their work; He wishes servants who are anxious to rise, for He means to promote them some day. From servants He adopts them into His family, and makes them His children.—Forward.

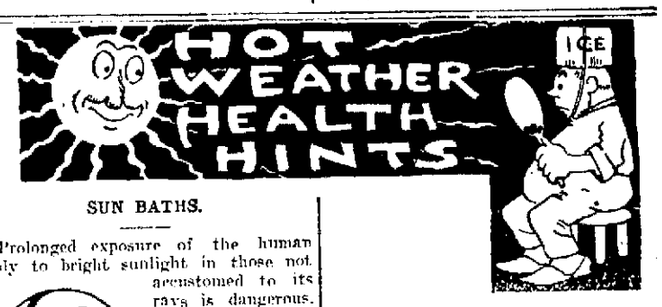
FAMILY PRAYER

There is one mark of a household in which God is known, which is too often wanting in our day—I mean the practice of family prayer. Depend upon it, the worth of a practice of that kind can only be measured by its effects during a long period of time, and family prayers, though only occupying a few minutes, do make a difference to any household at the end of a year. How, indeed, can it be otherwise when each morning, and perhaps each evening, too, all the members of the family—the old and the young, the parents and the children, the master and the servants—meet on a footing of perfect equality before the Eternal One, in whose presence each is as nothing or less than nothing, yet to whom each is so infinitely dear that He has redeemed by His blood each and all of them? How must not the bad spirits that are enemies of pure and bright family life flee away—the spirits of envy and pride and untruthfulness and sloth, and the whole tribe of evil thoughts—and make way for His gracious presence in the hearts of old and young alike, who, as He brings us, one by one, nearer to the true end of our existence.

HOT WEATHER HEALTH HINTS



SUN BATHS.

Prolonged exposure of the human body to bright sunlight in those not accustomed to its rays is dangerous.

Keep Well

The damage is more than the sunburn which results, for physicians have shown that headache and symptoms of meningitis have developed after youths under their observation had been lying several hours in the sunlight with unprotected head and no clothing but bathing trunks.

The symptoms shown by these patients demonstrated that the sun's rays had evidently penetrated the skull, this indicating that sunstroke is the consequence of direct exposure to the sun, says the Journal of the American Medical association.

Sun baths are most popular with anemic and nervous city indoor workers, but too much sun is most apt to harm the nerve system of nervous people.

Instead of being benefited by long exposure to the sun the nervous are rendered more nervous, and when the summer is over they are tanned but otherwise in poorer condition than in spring.

No one welcomes more than the physician the "back to nature" tendency of recent years, but they are now being careful to warn against excesses and abuses in the "enjoyment of nature."

A knowledge of the law of immunity teaches that when our health is at its best our resisting power is at its best. Hence we say we are immune to disease. While it is wise and necessary to avoid, control and destroy disease-producing germs whenever found, it is very necessary to render the body as nearly immune as possible and then keep it in that condition.

SUMMER UNDERCLOTHING.

What sort of underclothing is best for one to wear in summer time? It's an important question from the health standpoint as well as from the point of comfort.

The man who works in the broiling sun and perspires excessively should wear "woolens" even in summer. A shirt with a weave open enough to admit air to his body so that he will be cooled by evaporation is best.

The man who works in an office or who does not work his muscles hard enough to generate a great amount of heat will find they are more comfortable if they wear cotton or linen underwear.

The office worker usually works where the atmosphere is low enough to offset the heat generated by his body.

As the office worker does not sweat excessively, cotton or linen underwear with an open weave, permitting access of air, can easily take care of the body's moisture.

In what sort of a position is your body when you work? Do you know that working bent over causes the body to adjust itself—bones, muscles and joints—to the unnatural position? Try to see that you have exercise in recreation hours which will offset the bent-over tendency.

MEAT.

Those who are careful of their health eat but little meat during the real hot days of mid-summer. The superabundance of nourishment, combined with the hot weather, throws too much of a strain on the organs.

Office men, men who, as a rule, do not get enough outdoor exercise, invariably eat too much meat the year round, and particularly during the mid-summer season.

Meat is bad for people suffering from a fever, not so much on account of digestion, but because meat has a tendency to increase the fever.

Meat is also bad in its effect on the general nervous system. A little meat is all right, but the danger lies in making it the principal part of one's diet.

Pain is felt in certain nerve areas in many cases of chronic constipation, which indicates that the sore nerves are poisoned. This poison is generated in the large intestine and the disturbance disappears quickly when the abnormal intestinal decompositions, often caused by an excess of meat, are stopped.

A TEMPERANCE LESSON WITHOUT WORDS

BEGINNING THE DAY WITH GOD

Every day should be commenced with God and upon the knees. He begins the day unwisely who leaves his chamber without a secret conference with his heavenly Friend. The true Christian goes to his closet both for his panoply and his "rations" for the day's march and its inevitable conflicts. As the Oriental traveler sets out for the sultry journey by loading up his camel under the palm tree's shade, and by filling his flagons from the cool fountain that sparkles at its roots, so does God's wayfarer draw his fresh supplies from the unexhausted spring. Morning is the golden time for devotion. The mercies of the night provoke to thankfulness. The buoyant heart, that is in love with God, makes its earliest flight, like the lark, toward the gates of heaven. Gratitude, faith, dependent trust, all prompt to early interviews with Him who never slumbering Himself, waits on His throne for our morning orisons. We all remember Bunyan's beautiful description of his Pilgrim's lodging over night in the "Chamber of Peace," which looked toward the sunrising, and at daybreak he "awoke and sang." If stony Egyptian "Memnon" made music when the first rays kindled on his flinty brow, a devout heart should not be mute when God causes the outgoings of His mornings to rejoice. No pressure of business or household duties should crowd out prayer.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

TWO HURT IN AUTO SMASH

dangerous curves at Devil's Hollow, causing the machine to plunge down an embankment a distance of several feet. The other occupants of the car fell clear of the machine, while Miss Burtnett was pinioned beneath it, the heavy car having to be lifted from off her body by the other members of the party before she could be rescued. Al Schnorr, residing at 2011 Maumee avenue, was slightly injured about the leg. The other members of the party escaped with only a few minor scratches.

Although the accident occurred at 2 o'clock it was not until after 5 o'clock that Miss Burtnett was brought to the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Burtnett, 333 East Main street, with whom she has been making her home. Later she was removed to Hope hospital and late Thursday morning was unable to give any information except her name and place of residence. The car was badly damaged and had to be brought to the city on a hay wagon.

May Have Been Intoxicated.

"My granddaughter could give but little information when she was brought home," Mrs. Burtnett told a Sentinel reporter. "They may have all been intoxicated or the accident would never have occurred. I did not want her to go, but she insisted and bade me goodby with the remark that if she did not get killed she would be back."

Miss Burtnett is 20 years old and pretty. Up to a couple of months ago she had been working in Auburn. When a child both her parents died nine months apart from the effects of tuberculosis.

Her injuries were attended Thursday morning by Dr. Dean Metcalf, who found her right arm badly crushed and a bad cut extending from the middle of her forehead to her nose, besides a number of bruises all over her body.

Reports to the Sheriff.

Ertel reported the accident at the sheriff's office shortly after noon, and explained that on account of a dense fog he could not see his way and consequently went over the embankment. He said the party was composed of Miss Burtnett and two girls whose names he did not know, Lloyd Crum, Al Schnorr and himself. One of the girls was known as Marie. She lives on the Lincoln highway. The damaged car was the property of Ertel's brother-in-law.

LAKE AVENUE PAVING MATTER TO COME UP

Board Will Give Hearing to Project Once Killed by Remonstrance.

In a big mass of improvement resolutions upon which the board will give final hearings Thursday evening the most important is that for the paving of Lake avenue from Anthony boulevard to the east line of Lakeside park place addition. This is that part of Lake avenue that is unpaved and makes an ugly gap between the paved portion and the Marysville road, which has been given a tervia pavement. The project was up several months ago and was killed by remonstrance of resident property owners, who want the grade of that portion of the street changed before it is paved, a condition which the board will not acquiesce in. It is understood that if this resolution is killed by remonstrance the city council will pass an ordinance ordering the pavement, a power that is vested in that body. That there will again be remonstrance against the resolution is expected.

Other resolutions upon which hearings will be given are the following:

To grade Spring street to a width of twenty-six feet from Short to Barthold and sidewalks on the north side.

Sidewalks Both sides of Lafayette street, Columbia to Holman; both sides of Clay street, Washington to Holman; east side of Gay street, Horace to Buchanan; west side of Bowser avenue, Emily to Pontiac; east side of Webster street, Wildwood to Packard; north side of Sevilla avenue, Broadway to Indiana; both sides of Poplar street, Hoagland to Fairfield; east side of Hoagland avenue, Williams to Butler; south side of Wilt street, College to Nelson; south side of Putnam street, Warsaw to Sherman.

Local sewers Along line between lots 52 and 53 of Newhans addition, from Sherman street to the alley between Sherman and Oakland from Archer to Margaret; in alley between Alexander and Abbott streets from a point 25 feet north of the north line of Abbott's outlots numbered 67 to the alley south of Pontiac and in the alley south of Pontiac from Alexander to Abbott; in and along Wayne street from Francis to Harmer.

NO MONEY FOR RUDISILL.

Board of Works Not Likely to Advance Cash to Park Board.

As matters now stand, it is probable that the board of works will not advance to the park board the money needed by the latter to pay for the city's share of putting Rudisill boulevard in condition from Calhoun street to Broadway. The board does not believe that in view of the numerous demands it is unable to meet for the paving of streets that it can deplete its funds or ask an appropriation to carry on park board improvements. The outlook is that the park board will have to find its own means or let the improvement of the street go over to next year when its own appropriations will become available. It was for a time thought the board of works might advance the money so that the street may be graded and given a broken stone surface that would last until a reappraisement of the property on Rudisill would bring it up to a valuation that would permit legal assessment for a pavement. The board of works will make arrangements to repave East Creighton avenue as early as possible next spring.

PEOPLE MUST SHOW INTEREST.

In a conference with Mayor W. J. Hosey, Wednesday afternoon, Congressman Cyrus Cline stated that if the city of Fort Wayne expected federal aid in establishing means of flood prevention they must show their desire for it by giving signature to the petitions for a drainage district to be created by the courts under the flood prevention law passed for the relief of this city. Mr. Cline approved the mayor's suggestion that the federal government widen and deepen the channel of the Maumee river from Fort Wayne to Toledo and will take it up with members of congress at an early day.

become sufficiently aroused to investigate, and dropped to sleep again.

That no volatile drugs that would produce sleep were used is indicated by the absence from the room of any trace of odor and the concordant stories of the girls that they felt well when they awoke.

Miss Archer Shorn Close.

Both Miss Archer and Miss Ott had luxurious growths of hair. Miss Archer's brown and Miss Ott's raven black. Miss Archer's strands fell to her waist and Miss Ott's almost to her knees. The hair-cutter trimmed Miss Archer's tresses in ragged fashion quite close to her scalp, while he considerately left enough of the other girl's braids to reach half-way down her back.

On the floor of the chamber occupied by the girls was found a heavy lock of Miss Archer's hair that had been dropped by the nocturnal tonsorialist.

That the outrage was committed hurriedly is shown by the ragged manner in which the hair was cut off, the work on Miss Archer's head being strikingly so.

Kitchen Door Was Open.

When the Archer family arose for the day Thursday morning the door from the kitchen to the back porch was found open and the key gone. The outside cellar door was not fastened, but the door communicating from the kitchen to the inside cellar-way was locked. Members of the family are positive the rear kitchen door was fastened Wednesday night before they retired and all seem equally positive as to the front door.

There is a rear stairway that leads to the second floor, landing at the corridor near the door to the room occupied by the young ladies.

No one in the household can recall having been disturbed during the night by any noises and no one was aroused at all save Miss Ott, when she thought Miss Archer had taken hold of her hair.

Find a Clue in Back Yard.

Near a peach tree at the lower end of the back yard of the Archer premises there was picked up Thursday morning a life insurance rate book that may prove to be a clue when the owner of it is identified. So far the police have not gained anything definite.

All the members of the Archer family and of the 101 family say they cannot think of anyone who would have a wrongful motive in such an outrage. They are on friendly terms with their neighbors and have no enemies that they know of.

The sale of specialty fine strands of hair is frequently a motive in such outrages, but these crimes are usually committed on the street and housebreaking is seldom the means of such offenses.

It is doubtful if any mercenary motive prompted this outrage. The Archer family is large and with the guests in the house made possible entry of the house and the cutting of the girls' hair a proceeding of extreme risk.

Intends to Become a Nurse.

W. S. Archer, father of Miss Gladys, is proprietor of a grocery at 1038 Wells street and his residence is the next structure to the north. Miss Gladys has been employed as a clerk in the store, but had arranged to enter the Lutheran hospital next week as a student nurse. She and Miss Ott were at first much grieved by the loss of their hair, but later became more philosophical and were disposed to make light of the outrage.

There is a theory that one or the other of the girls was the special object of the outrage and that the other was made also to suffer for the purpose of making detection of the perpetrator more difficult.

been instructed to sink no merchant vessels without warning.

Will Revive Proposal.

It is understood that Germany, at the same time, will revive her proposal for a modus vivendi for relaxation of British restrictions on neutral commerce. In German quarters it was said that this step, which had been in contemplation in Germany for some time, could now be announced because of the victories in Poland. German officials, it was explained, consider that the victories to their armies in the campaign against the Russians permit Germany to recede a step on the sea.

Count Bernstorff brought nothing to the state department to supplement his telegram of Tuesday or the overnight news dispatches containing the German chancellor's statement broadly inferring that a settlement of a character satisfactory to the United States probably would be made in the case of the Arabic. The ambassador however, reiterated his previous disclaimer of any intent that Americans should be harmed.

Better Face on Situation.

Count Bernstorff's visit to Secretary Lansing and the advices from Berlin containing the German chancellor's statement have put a much better face on the whole situation. There is a notable relaxation of tension at the white house and at the state department. It was made plain at both places today that while officials were much encouraged by the apparent desire of Germany to avoid a break with the United States, the president will not finally decide on his course until he has before him a definite statement of the Berlin government's intentions.

It seems certain now that there will be diplomatic exchanges in the Arabic case. In addition to satisfying the American government in that single instance they are expected to take on a general character of submarine warfare and the rights of neutrals on the seas.

HAD ADOPTED NEW PLAN.

Change in Berlin Policy Before the Arabic Was Sunk.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The Associated Press is in a position to state on the best authority that the Arabic incident may be considered as eliminated as a source of discord between Germany and America, or at least is regarded by the German government in that light.

Moreover Germany in its desire to continue its friendly relations with the United States, had adopted before the sinking of the Arabic a policy designed to settle completely the whole submarine problem affecting America on the basis of good will and mutual understanding.

This is shown clearly by the statement of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg last night to the Associated Press, particularly his concluding remark to the effect that not until the circumstances in connection with the sinking of the Arabic had been cleared up would it be possible to say "whether the commander of one of our submarines went beyond his instructions" in which case Germany would give complete satisfaction to the United States.

Furthermore, during the conversation, the chancellor twice again referred to the instructions given to submarine commanders. He did not specify in detail the nature of these instructions but it may be said that they are designed to prevent a repetition of the Lusitania case and to provide the opportunity for escape for American noncombatants upon torpedoed ships which the United States desires.

Having given these instructions, Germany asked suspension of judgment on the Arabic case until the facts were ascertained, being confident it will be shown that the sinking of the vessel was not an unprovoked attack without warning by a German submarine but was attributed either to a mine explosion or to some action of the vessel itself. Should it develop, however, that a submarine acted contrary to instructions, ample reparation will be offered.

Germany is still unable to understand why Americans in these troubled times travel on belligerent ships instead of taking American or other neutral steamers but since they in some instances insist upon taking passage on vessels belonging to belligerents, Germany will do its utmost to provide for their safety.

"It is not permissable to quote remarks made by the chancellor in the course of the conversation other than to the formal statement which he made. It may be said, however, that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg showed genuine interest in the state of feeling in the United States concerning the Arabic and expressed the hope that the American people would not form an opinion on the basis of conflicting statements giving only one side of the story. He spoke with emphasis of Germany's desire to maintain the friendship of America. The chancellor appeared to be in good health and spirits and greatly encouraged by the successes achieved by the Germans in the eastern campaign. The interview necessarily was of short duration as the chancellor was hurrying away for a conference with Emperor William at his field headquarters.

WAR'S BIGGEST AIR RAID.

French Air Squadron Hurls Shells on German Arms Factory.

Paris, Aug. 25. Sixty-two French aviators on August 25 flew over a German arms factory to the north of Saarlouis, throwing down a total of more than 150 shells. Thirty of these were of large calibre.

Announcement of the aerial raid is made in the statement given out by the war office this afternoon. The statement reads:

"On August 25 an aerial squadron composed of four groups and including a total of sixty-two aviators flew over the heights of Dellingen, Here there is a factory where shells and armor plate are made. The location of this plant is to the north of Saarlouis, in Rheinish Prussia, thirty miles southeast of Treves. The aviators threw down with precision over 150 bombs thirty of which were of large calibre."

So far as official reports have disclosed there never had been previously an air raid of such magnitude, so far as concerns the number of machines employed, as yesterday's attack by sixty-two aeroplanes. In a few earlier ventures of the kind thirty or more aeroplanes were used.

Press dispatches have indicated that the principal belligerents have built great numbers of aeroplanes and as a result of the development of this branch of the service since the outbreak of the war these machines are now sent forth in flotillas for organized assaults on a large scale instead of being dispatched singly or in pairs, chiefly for observation purposes.

Yesterday's raid was the third in this part of Germany during the last three weeks. On August 9 Saarbruecken was bombarded, and three days later the neighboring towns of Saint Ingenberg and Sweibruecken were attacked. Eight persons were killed in the latter raid.

H. R. FREEMAN IMPROVING.

Will Return Home Within the Next Three Weeks.

Most encouraging word is received from Rochester, Minn., concerning the condition of H. R. Freeman, cashier of the First National bank, who was recently operated upon at the Mayo Bros. hospital for stomach trouble. He is improving nicely and will probably be brought home within the next three or four weeks.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

Miller Family Reunion.

The Jacob S. Miller family held its fifth annual reunion in Swinney park on Wednesday. There was an attendance of nearly 100 members and all had an enjoyable time. The address of the day was given by Rev. E. Q. Lauderman, pastor of the First Evangelical church. The forenoon was spent in renewing old acquaintances. The noon hour was enjoyed in the pavilion devouring chickens and other good things. The afternoon was taken up in various contests and games for all. The two feature games were playing duck stone and pitching horseshoes. The next reunion will be held in Goshen, on the third Saturday in August. Officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: President, V. C. Miller, vice president, Wm. Beck, Secretary-treasurer, C. W. Carrel.

James F. Beber, ticket agent at the interurban station, has gone to near Auburn with his family to spend a few days. During his absence his place is being taken by S. J. Rider, assistant ticket agent.

PUTRID DIVORCE SUIT IS ON TRIAL

Catherine and David Smith Each Fighting for a Decree.

For undiluted nastiness the testimony in the suit of Catherine Smith for divorce from David Smith, who is fighting with a cross complaint, is a little worse than anything heard recently in the superior court, where the cause is on trial. Each accuses the other of gross immoralities and has brought in testimony to prove it. Among the witnesses was the young daughter of the plaintiff. She is one of the girls who figured in the exposures made by the "scandal grand jury" in the spring of 1913, in which several prominent men were involved.

Didn't Show Her Bigamist.

When the superior court gave a hearing Thursday to the counter showing filed by Thomas Tomson against Mabel Tomson's demand that he be made to pay an allowance for her support while a divorce suit is pending, Thomas failed to sustain his allegation that his wife has living another husband from whom she never was divorced and Judge Yaple ordered him to pay her $15 a month, beginning August 28, until the divorce suit is disposed of. Mrs. Tomson denied his further complaint that he has been obliged to support his wife's father and her grown-up son. She says she has to work to earn her living and that her relatives living in her home pay board.

Notes of the Courts.

In the circuit court Harold N. and James P. Weller have brought suit against the D. M. Sears company for $2,500 on account.

In the suit of John G. Zimmer vs. Guy W. Pinkham, in the superior court, the parties agreed to the discharge of the receiver of the property involved and the mortgaged property was surrendered to the plaintiff, except such as has been found to be the property of the defendant and in consideration of this a credit of $755.93 is given the defendant on the judgment rendered against him.

Frank M. Hogan has begun suit in the superior court against the Standard Cooperage company for collection of $800 on note and account and for garnishment. Colerick & Hogan are the plaintiff's attorneys.

A. George Fiedler has applied to the superior court for admission to the bar of Allen county and Judge Yaple has appointed Phil B. Colerick, Frank A. Emrick and John H. Aiken a committee to examine the applicant.

John Bayer has brought suit in the superior court against Arthur F. Koons and his wife for possession of real estate and $100 damages. Barrett, Morris & Hoffman are the plaintiff's attorneys.

John C. Kohr, Fred W. Soest and George Soest have sued Julian Grosjean in the superior court in replevin proceedings for $175.

MUCH GRAIN ON THE NEW FARM.

Allen county will harvest this year from its new 800-acre farm north of the city 5,600 bushels of oats, 1,000 bushels of wheat, 500 bushels of rye, 8,000 bushels of corn and 800 bushels of potatoes. There was a threshing bee at the county farm Wednesday and Commissioners Butt, Schwier and Black and County Treasurer J. Herman Bueter and others were guests and had a friendly contest at pitching sheaves, in which the treasurer carried off the honors.

AFTER ROAD VANDALS.

County Surveyor Ralph W. Guenther will prosecute the vandals who have been breaking through the barricades on county highways under improvement and driving over them to the great damage of the roads, if he can identify the persons. Great damage has been wrought on the Scipio road in this manner lately.

LITERACY TEST REJECTED.

New York Constitutional Convention Reverses Its Action.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 26.—By a vote of 77 to 67 the constitutional convention today reversed its action of yesterday and rejected the literacy test for voters. The action was taken on C. H. It is understood that the fight for the proposal which would have required all voters to be able to read and write the English language now will be abandoned.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE FARMER

By J. KASTLE and R. GRAHAM

Hog cholera is the greatest menace to successful hog raising. It is by far the most contagious and fatal of any of the disease of swine. The disease is due to an ultra-microscopic virus which is present in the blood, the excreta and in the carcasses of all infected animals. The infection may be carried from infected to healthy herds by a number of agencies, such as running water, birds, dogs, new stock from infected sources, and also on the shoes of persons who have walked over infected areas. We can only hope to control, and ultimately eradicate hog cholera by honest, conscientious and painstaking efforts on the part of all farmers and hog raisers looking to the effective isolation of all animals having the disease, scrupulous cleanliness in the handling and care of hogs, disinfection of infected premises, the burning of all carcasses of hogs that have died of this disease, proper care in the selection of fresh stock and the careful and intelligent use of hog cholera serum.

Hogs should be fed a balanced ration consisting of such materials as corn and various corn products, bran, wheat middlings, oil meal, tankage and distillers' dried grains and, whenever possible, they should be supplied with forage crops, such as green alfalfa or alfalfa hay. Hogs should be supplied with an abundance of pure, clean water, plenty of shade in hot weather, dry bedding, and airy, light, well ventilated hog houses.

Great care should be exercised in the purchase of new stock in order to secure healthy, vigorous animals, free from disease. In this connection, it is well to bear in mind that hog cholera has an incubation period lasting from 5 to 20 days, during which time the animal may appear normal to all intents and purposes. Separate quarters should be provided for the isolation of all newly purchased animals, where they may be kept from the rest of the herd for a period of three weeks, and kept under observation for any symptom of the disease that may appear.

Following an outbreak of hog cholera in a herd, a thorough cleaning up and disinfection of hog lots and quarters must be resorted to. Fire and fresh air-slaked lime are the most efficient agents for the destruction of hog cholera virus. Scatter fresh air-slaked lime abundantly about the hog lots or disinfect with a 3 per cent solution of cresol compound and whitewash the hog houses and fences.

Sick hogs should not be sold; neither should they be driven along public highways or transported in cars from place to place, or placed in public stock yards or pens. In other words, the only way to properly control this disease is to isolate it, and though it may work a temporary hardship on the individual owner to do this, it is certainly, ultimately, to his interest and to the interest of the great body of hog raisers, to do all in his power to establish and maintain a rigid and effective quarantine with respect to this disease.

The only means of protecting the hog against cholera is by inoculation with hog cholera serum, or with hog cholera serum and virus.

The serum alone confers an immunity lasting from six to eight weeks, while the double treatment (inoculation of the hog on one side with serum and on the other side with virus), shows a lasting or permanent immunity to hog cholera.

KEEPING EGGS IN WATER GLASS.

There are several good methods of preserving eggs but the water glass method is best. Water glass can usually be purchased at a local drug store for less than $1 a gallon, making the cost about one cent for each dozen eggs.

The receptacle used should be an earthenware jar of from five to ten gallons. The eggs should be placed in the jar each day, when gathered, as the fresher the egg the better it will keep. Care should be exercised to see that none of the eggs is cracked, or the whole jar of eggs may be spoiled in a short time.

The jar should be placed in a cool cellar, a piece of oiled paper or some other water-proof cover should be placed over to prevent evaporation. If this is not done, any eggs that appear above the liquid will spoil rapidly. The eggs should be kept at least two inches below the surface of the liquid.

The solution recommended is one part of water glass to ten parts of pure water.

KEEP MILK AS COLD AS POSSIBLE

The colder milk is kept, the longer it will remain sweet. Bacteria are responsible for the changes which take place, and bacteria increase in numbers very slowly at low temperatures. Therefore, do not leave milk where it will get warm. If possible, put it directly against the ice. If this cannot be done, put it in the compartment of the ice box directly beneath the ice, for the air circulating through the ice chest is coldest directly after it passes over the ice. If no ice box is used, keep the milk as cool as possible by putting it in the cellar, or by wrapping the bottle in a damp cloth and setting it out of the direct sunlight in a current of air.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF THE SILO

By W. J. FRASER, Illinois

The digestive organs of animals that chew the cud are so formed as to require comparatively juicy and bulky food. The cow cannot, therefore, thrive on exclusively dry food so well as can the horse. The nearest an ideal food that can be obtained for the dairy cow is good pasture; but, in many sections, for more than six months in the year green pasture is not available. The best substitutes to use during this period are corn silage and such roots as mangels and turnips. Corn yields an average of twice as much dry matter per acre as do root crops, and since the latter require much more labor, which in this country is relatively expensive, silage is far more economical.

Making corn into silage is a means of preserving the grain as well as the stalk in the best possible condition for feeding and without the expense of shelling and grinding. In feeding whole corn, either in the ear or shelled, many of the kernels are not digested. With silage, the grain being eaten with the roughage, nearly all the kernels are broken during mastication, and, since they are somewhat soft, are practically all digested.

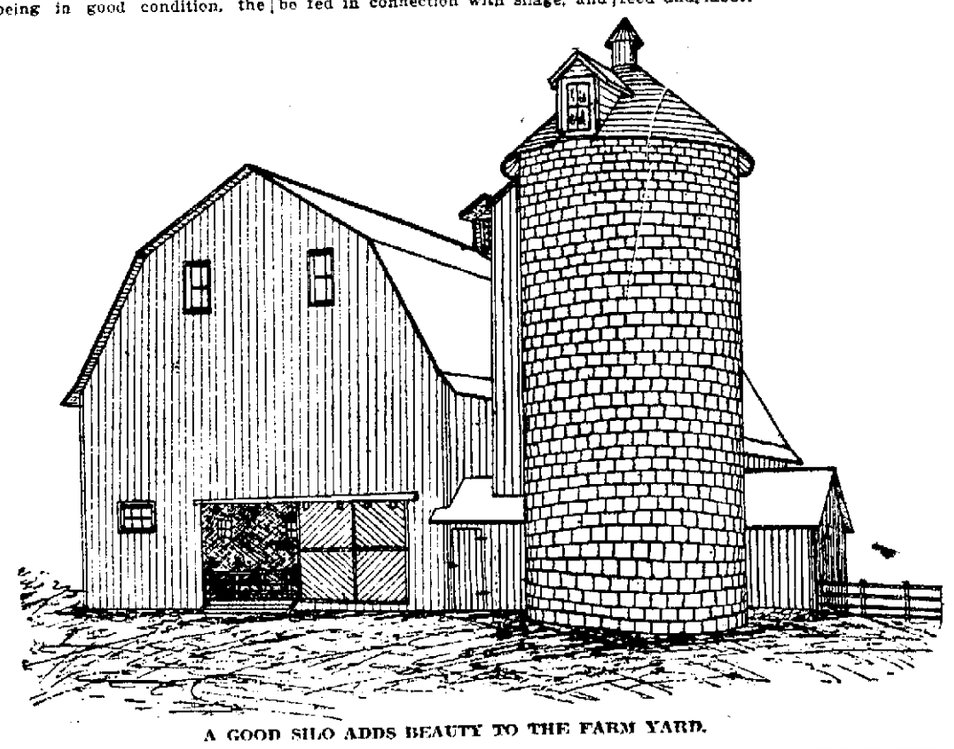
By the use of the silo the corn is removed from the field at a time when no injury is done the land by cutting it up while soft. As the corn is cut before the blades are dry enough to shatter, there is no waste from weathering and both stock and grain being in good condition, the whole crop is consumed by the stock, while with dry shock corn a large percentage of the leaves and butts of the stalk is wasted.

It has been determined that one cubic foot of hay in the mow contains about 4.3 pounds of dry matter, and that a cubic foot of silage in a thirty-six foot silo contains about 8.9 pounds of dry matter. From this it is evident that a cubic foot of space in a silo of proper depth will hold more than twice as much dry matter as the corresponding space in a mow. It is also true that on the average a larger amount of digestible feed can be obtained from an acre in the form of silage than in any other way at like expense. Making corn into silage is then both an economical and compact method of storing feed.

Much damage has been done to the cause of silage by the extravagant claims of its over-enthusiastic friends. Although corn silage is not a complete and balanced ration in itself, it is so well relished that large quantities are consumed. Being a succulent feed, it tends to heavy milk production, and should be given an important place in the ration of dairy cows. It has proved an important factor in steer feeding as well as in milk production, but a steer cannot be finished on silage alone, any more than a cow can produce her best yields of milk on such a ration. To obtain the most economical returns, some dry roughage should be fed in connection with silage, and a legume hay, as alfalfa, clover, or cowpeas, is the best for this purpose, particularly for young stock and cows. Economical milk can be produced from these feeds without the addition of grain, if the cows are not giving more than two gallons of milk a day, providing the corn was well cured and both the silage and the legume hay are of excellent quality. Cows giving a larger yield must have grain added to their ration.

A pasture will carry much more stock during spring, early summer, and fall, than it will through the hot, dry weather of midsummer. By helping the pasture out at this season with partial soiling, the cattle not only have better feed during this critical period, but more stock can be carried on a given area than by pasturing alone. As land increases in value and farming becomes more intensive, there is greater need for soiling, and the most satisfactory method of providing a substitute is by means of the silo. It requires too much labor to cut green crops every day and haul them to the cows, and besides there is necessarily a great loss in being obliged to feed the crops before they are fully mature and after they are over-ripe.

No crop furnishes more feed to the acre than corn, and with the silo it can be utilized for soiling, thus permitting the whole crop to be harvested when at the right stage of maturity and fed when needed, saving both feed and labor.



A GOOD SILO ADDS BEAUTY TO THE FARM YARD.

By E. E. HENDERSON

The Percheron has proven himself to be the breed most adapted to the demands of the user of the draft-horse, in all sections of the country.

They do well on the cotton fields of the south and in the wheat fields of Canada. They are popular in the east and in the west. On the farm they are the farmers' mainstay.

In the city they are able to withstand the hard work better than any other breed, witness the fact that dealers often pay as much as $20. in the hundred, for horses bearing that indelible Percheron color, gray, more than for horses of similar quality but lacking that trade mark.

The demand of today is for a horse that can stand the strain of long hours, pulling heavy loads over all kinds of roads. For a horse that is prompt and yet quiet, one that can move the heaviest of loads and yet, when the occasion demands it, can get up and go. The Percheron seems to be the one horse that can fully fill these requirements.

A thing that is much desired by the corn-belt farmer is economy of maintenance. The horse to be desired is not only one that can do a large day's work, but one that will do it on a minimum of feed. A case in point: We have in one of our teams a pure-bred Percheron mare of 1900 pounds.

Her team mate, carrying a large percentage of the blood of another popular breed, weighs about the same.

These two mares do exactly the same work, have the same attention and yet the grade mare eats 20 per cent more feed daily than does the pure-bred Percheron. Even then she is not in the condition of her mate. While the Percheron is smooth, and in fine condition, the other is thin and, to the eye, unlovely.

I have a communication from one of the leading importers in the United States, in which he states that he can keep his Percherons in show-yard condition on the same feed that it requires to keep his Shires and Clydesdales in good breeding condition.

Surely here is a subject worthy of consideration by the intending purchasers of draft horses.

The thing that most serves to arouse my admiration for the breed is their wonderful disposition. We find in them a combination of almost all the best traits of horsedom.

They are ever on their mettle, yet not nervous or fretful. They are free, prompt workers and always willing. They always keep their "heads." It is very seldom we find one that is overheadstrong.

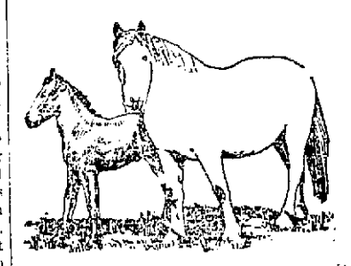
We have reached an age when the demands of the time are for the large, yet early maturing animal. The Percheron comes very near to filling this bill.

On our farm we breed our fillies as two-year-olds and work our stallions at the same age.

It is true that it takes a trifle more feed per year, to mature them at this early age, but, when we consider that we save one year's care and expense, the smallness of the extra feed is apparent.

I have in mind a mare that is a great-grandmother at nine years of age, yet her colts, bred as two-year-olds, are today larger than the mother, and the second generation has all that can be desired in the way of size.

We have colts produced by three-year-old fillies that will compare favorably with those of more mature mares. The same mares were worked the fall after they weaned the colt, while they were carrying the second foal.



Percheron Mare and Foal.

In these days of high-priced land the call is for "high pressure" operations; and the man that gets his horses to work for him the earliest, without dwarfing them, is the one who has the inside track.

In my opinion the working of male colts as two-year-olds and the breeding of fillies at the same age, not only cuts down the expensive feed bills, but the horses, both mares and stallions, are all the better breeders for having been put to a moderate amount of work at an early age.

These horses develop into big, strong animals, fully large enough for the needs of the most discriminating men. When I tell you that a four-horse team that is in the field every day plowed 35 acres of corn ground in one week, you can readily see that they are made to work, and these mares are breeders, too.

Every one of them raised a colt last year, and every one a good one. They are re-bred and we hope to do well this year. They are the kind that have made the Percheron the most popular in field, in the city streets or in the arena.

Big, rugged, strong-boned, well muscled and correctly built; strong backs, capable of sustaining any load; well sprung ribs, giving plenty of room to the vital organs; plenty of room to carry their dinners, and, best of all, they have strong, sensible heads. Heads that, when you examine, remind you of a broad-minded, intelligent man.

By far too many of us seem to think that after fruit trees or shade trees are once set out, they need neither care nor cultivation.

Next Year's Crop

In order to have the best of flowers and vegetables next year, the seed must be very carefully saved from this year's crop. Have bags containing seeds marked carefully and in detail. If the seed is of Mrs. Brown's pansies, write that on the bag; and any other information regarding the plant, the seed of which you desire to keep. Then hang the bags up out of reach of mice or other vermin.

Seed Properly Labeled.

FOREST FIRES.

An especially good showing was made by the Forest officers last year in extinguishing fires outside the National Forests before they reached the forest boundaries. Such fires constituted more than one-sixth of all fought by the Forest rangers and guards. About nine-tenths were extinguished before they touched the forests. Of the fires within the forest boundaries, more than 18 per cent were on lands in private ownership. Nearly one-fourth of the extra expenditures due to fighting fires—that is, expenditures outside the time of the regular forest force—was incurred in fighting these fires.

Lightning caused more fires than any other agency, followed by railroads, campers, and incendiaries, in the order given.

MOTHER NATURE.

Mother nature is generally very careful about how she treats her trees, plants and vines, and if given full permission to handle things as she likes, will pull them through seasons of rain and cold, heat and drought and bring them out in full leaf and free blossom when the right time for new dresses arrives; and where foliage and bloom bedeck the trees and plants, fruits will form and mature, to surprise the predictors of evil and gladden the hearts of the tillers of the earth.

During the season of fruit stains, it is well to look carefully to the table linen. If there is a sign of a stain, pour boiling water through it as soon as possible. This will remove all but the stain from peaches.

To reach a mountain top, the number of times we fall does not count; it is the picking up and going on that gains the pinnacle.

Ways to Fight Quack-Grass

Quack-grass can be exterminated. F. L. Kennard, of Minnesota, says that the principal requisite is a firm resolve to rid the farm of the pest.

The weed reproduces both from seed and from underground root stocks. It may be brought to a farm in the form of seed, but the spread is usually by scattering root stocks about with the harrow or other farm implement.

Mr. Kennard recommends two methods of attack: Growing a cultural crop, and summer-fallowing.

Where the land is badly infested the former will require a great deal of hard labor. If the pest is to be exterminated no green portion must be allowed to show itself and that means eternal vigilance on the part of the farmer. It is not enough to keep the soil clean between the rows. None of the grass must be permitted to grow in the hills. Two years of this treatment is recommended.

When land is partly occupied, the summer fallow method is probably most economical. One crop is lost but the additional yield the succeeding year will usually offset this when the low cost of cultivating fallow land as compared with corn land is considered. The field should be plowed in the fall and again in the spring to a depth of six or eight inches. A good mulch three inches deep should be prepared with disk and harrow and this mulch kept cultivated with sufficient frequency to prevent any growth above the surface of the ground. By preventing this part from developing the roots are simply starved to death.

ANXIOUS TO LEARN.

The steadily increasing attendance at existing Schools of Agriculture, and the demand for more such schools in addition to the demand for agricultural instruction in the common schools, show that farmers are awake, as never before in history, to the fact that the size of their incomes from the soil is largely a matter of education. The man who knows when to plow, and why; when to plant, and why; when to reap, and why, is seen to have a decided advantage over him to whom the time for each of these functions is a mere "happenstance" and who never concerns himself with the "Why?" Scientific exactness is becoming the rule on the farm as well as in the laboratory and the machine shop; and exactness comes only with the mastery of principles.—C. R. B.

The largest orange tree in the south is a gigantic specimen which grows out of the rich soil in Terrebonne Parish, La. It is fifty feet high and fifteen feet in circumference at the base.

Take a receipt for all bills paid. It may save a second payment of hard-earned dollars. This is business every time.

Successful Rat Trap

A trap which has been known to catch the rodents by the dozens is called the barrel trap. Procure a water-tight barrel, put a rock in the bottom that will reach up about a foot high, and pour in sufficient water to nearly cover the rock, leaving just the upper point sticking out, and it should be about large enough to hold a single rat.

In place of the upper head, stretch a piece of very thick wrapping-paper over the top of the barrel and fasten it securely, by means of the top hoop or a cord.

Dampen the paper slightly with a moist sponge, and it will become tight when dry. Feed the rats on this paper head, with cheese-parings and other things that they like, for several nights in succession, so as to get the rats accustomed to coming without fear or suspicion.

After you have gained their confidence, cut a cross slit in the middle of the paper and spread the feed as before.

The first rat that comes will drop through into the water and get on the rock; the next one drops through and there is a fight for a foothold, and they argue the point with such squeals that all the rats in the neighborhood hasten in to find out what the trouble is.

LOOK OUT FOR BORERS.

Peach and plum trees should be carefully examined for any indications of borers. Be certain to look for both kinds, the one boring into the trunks and working under the bark just at the collar of the tree at the surface of the ground and underground, also those which work into the wood at the crotches of the trees higher up. They should all be dug out and destroyed. This is the appointed time—before they have a chance to mature and produce adults, which get out and escape.

Pullets hatched in May can be brought to laying by November, if they are properly fed and cared for and crowded as fast as possible. It cannot be done however, if they are half fed, tormented with lice, short of fresh water or allowed to become stunted for any other reason.

All animal life must have sunshine, and poultry is no exception.

Chicken Lice

The common hen louse is pale dull yellow in color; rather slender and about 1-20 of an inch long, and is always without wings. It is provided with six legs, and the head is broadly rounded in front.

The lice are very active, and move about in the feathers of an infested fowl quickly, apparently looking for something new, as any one who handles an infested hen will soon discover. They keep close to the host, and complete their entire transformations on its body. During the night they move from the body of one fowl to another so that they may soon spread from one infested hen throughout the whole flock.

The eggs of the common hen louse are small and oval and are laid in small clusters or "nits." Each egg is attached by one end to the vanes and barbs of the feathers. They hatch in about eight days under favorable conditions. However, they may remain unhatched for several months in a cool place without losing their vitality.

The young lice hatching from the eggs resemble the adults in most respects, except in size. Two or three weeks are required under ordinary conditions for the young louse to become mature. Under favorable conditions the lice may multiply so rapidly that an uninfested flock may become badly infested in a comparatively short time.

COWS HARD TO MILK.

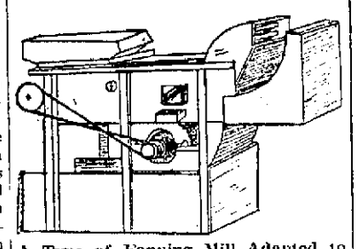
Some cows are naturally hard to milk; others are made hard by weak-handed milking. A woman or child with hands not strong enough for milking causes a cow to become hard for anyone to milk. To cure such a cow, oil the teat freely before starting to milk, so that the oil will work into and soften the skin. Then milk the cow with as much force as possible, squeezing hard. This treatment will usually cure an ordinarily hard milker. Once in a great while it is necessary to cut the muscle surrounding the inside of the teat with a lancelike knife. This, however, is very likely to ruin the cow if not done with great care to avoid cutting too much and causing permanent leakage. It also makes a sore which is painful to the cow at the time of milking, and if done when the cow is not giving milk, the wound grows together and the muscle becomes tighter than before.—R. M. Washburn.

Water-glass eggs are practically as good as fresh eggs for most cooking purposes. If it is desired to boil them, prick a small hole through the large end of the shell before placing them into the water. The pores of the shell have been sealed with the water-glass solution and without this pin hole the expanding air within the shell would burst it.

Mulching breaks the force of rains, and prevents compacting the soil.

Recleaning Alfalfa Seed

Alfalfa seed as it comes from the machine is not usually in marketable condition. It contains small stones, clods, pieces of stems and pods, and often a considerable quantity of weed seeds as well as more or less shriveled alfalfa seed. These impurities must be removed before the seed can be sold to advantage. A good fanning mill or other cleaning device will remove the lighter seeds as well as most of the portions of pods and stems, while a special set of seives will remove the weed seeds and small stones and clods which differ in size from the alfalfa seed.



A Type of Fanning Mill Adapted to the Recleaning of Alfalfa Seed.

A BOLD THIEF.

The bad-road thief forces you to haul small loads; drive slowly; wrench and twist the life out of your horse, harness and vehicle, often breaking and damaging the latter until great and expensive delays are occasioned. It also steals your opportunity to dispose of your farm when you wish to sell, for no man will pay as much for a farm bordered by a poor-road system as he will for one with a well kept highway, and some will not buy a farm at all when the road system is poor. The loss of time and money, where the above named conditions exist, makes it imperative that you open all the drain ditches along the road, drag this silent, notorious thief to death with the King road-drag.

PLANT LICE ABUNDANT.

This season plant lice or aphids on trees and shrubs are more abundant than in many years. Weather conditions have been very favorable for their reproduction and very unfavorable for the reproduction of their parasitic enemies. Many of the aphids in normal years attracted very little attention. In abnormal years artificial methods of control must be used to keep them within bounds.

Keep the soil about the flower-beds and shrubs nicely edged. It adds much to the appearance.

There are books and tables telling the feeding value of every feedstuff the cow eats, and it will pay every dairy farmer to study them.

Fish Oil For Flies

Fish oil may usually be bought by the barrel at about 45 cents per gallon or in ten-gallon lots at 60 cents per gallon. It is a good repellant for flies and similar insects and may be used in the following mixtures:

(1) Fish oil, 3 parts,
Kerosene, 1 part.

(2) Fish oil, 100 parts,
Oil of tar, 50 parts,
Crude carbolic acid, 1 part.

(3) Fish oil, 1½ pints,
Kerosene, 1½ pints,
Resin, 1½ pounds,
Laundry soap, 2 cakes,
Mix thoroughly and add enough water to make 3 gallons.

(4) Fish oil, linseed oil, or kerosene, 1 pint,
Coal tar dip, 1 pint,
Laundry soap, ¼ bar,
Hot water, 15 pints,
Mix thoroughly so as to form an emulsion.

Any of these mixtures may be applied thinly to the animals with such a brush as can be purchased for ten or fifteen cents, or they may be sprayed on with a small hand-sprayer such as can be purchased for forty or fifty cents.—C. C. Lipp.

WILL RAISE MORE SHEEP.

The American Stockman says that the time is not far distant when the western range states will turn out fewer feeding sheep and lambs and more fat ones for the eastern market. This is equivalent to saying that the days of free range sheep raising are about over, and that sheep will soon be raised under farm conditions in the far west. It also means the equalizing of opportunities for the eastern sheep keeper. The cheap hill pasture lands of the east afford excellent advantages for the raising of sheep.

SEVEN THOUSAND IN COMPETITION.

Seven thousand boys and girls in Minnesota are taking part in some form of farm or home-making project this year. They are engaged in corn growing, pig raising, bread making, gardening and canning, poultry, calf and other contests. In the corn contest alone 3,000 boys are enrolled. Of girls engaged in bread making there are 2,000. More than 55 counties have already held bread making "field days." Five hundred Minnesota boys and girls have entered the pork production contest.

The California poppy is one of the most satisfactory small annuals. Its yellow flowers furnish color for a garden border almost through the summer.

It is very poor business policy to loan money without security. Your friend may be strictly honest but he may drop dead.

Protect the Birds

In order to increase the number of birds in any area, they must be protected, not only against every form of persecution by human kind, but we must defend them from various natural foes. Guards should be placed about the trees or poles which contain the birds' nests. These guards should be placed six feet or more above the ground, and they should be made of sheet metal. This will prevent cats and all such marauders from climbing to the nests.

THE FAITHFUL HEN.

That the poultry business has now become a leading industry in our country is proven by the fact that in one year the value of eggs and poultry brought into Boston, was $12,216,556.20, and multiplying these figures by 3, so as to include New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, and only with the same figures for each, though all are larger, and we have the startling financial sum of $36,649,668.60; that the 200-egg hen has come at last, with more to follow, is our encouragement for us to keep close to the line of progress.

GLAD TO HAVE THE BEES BROUGHT BACK

A story is told of orchardists in a far western state who brought suit against a bee man to compel him to remove his bees on the ground that bees in their work damaged fruit prospects. But the bee man successfully combatted the suit, and afterward the same horticulturists were glad to get the bees back on account of acknowledged valuable work in aiding pollination.

The duck that lays ten dozen eggs in a year is a good one for laying. Indian Runners are claimed to lay 200 eggs in that time.

GOVERNMENT COPIES METHODS OF CIRCUS

Uncle Sam's Officials Study System of Hagenbeck-Wallace Show.

Beneath the pomp and glitter and amidst the odor of sawdust and naphtha is a system of government and management whose scope and scale are stupendous and staggering. No human institution is more perfect in operation than the circus. Surely no more flattering tribute could be paid the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus than that officially given by the United States government. Officers from the army department, veterans in their profession, carefully observed the rapid sequence of proceedings when the big show was in Washington.

The naval officers were in the railroad yards to watch the arrival of the trains, the process of debarkation, and on the show grounds they marveled at the manner in which the monster Aladdin-like palaces were raised in the air. They critically observed the manner in which the two-mile-long street parade was lined up. They marveled at the haste and precision in which hundreds of their employes hastened about their work. General Evans surveyed the marvelous scenes and he was dumfounded. He asked Mr. Wallace to permit several members of his staff to travel with the show a fortnight that they might grasp a few of the advanced ideas as to how so great an institution is moved with apparently so little effort. General Evans confessed that the army department had always loaded their wagons on flat cars by hoisting them over the sides, not rolling on them from the end.

The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus is the most wonderful tented organization in the world. In reality there are two separate shows, Carl Hagenbeck's collection of trained animals and the great Wallace circus. Several years ago the two shows were combined, yet one ticket admits to everything. The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus will come to Fort Wayne Labor day, Monday, September 6, for performances at 2 and 8 p. m. The monster, all new, street pageant will leave the grounds at 10 o'clock on the day of the exhibition.

ADAIR TALKS TO CORN CLUB.

Tells Delaware County Boys of Government's Interest in Farmers.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 26. John A. M. Adair, congressman, addressed the boys of the Delaware County Corn club. It was a part of a three days' outing and inspection trip of the hundred or more boys of the club.

Mr. Adair explained the relations of the national department of agriculture to the farmer and outlined the methods of the department in the promotion of all ideas tending to the betterment of the crops. He dwelt on the fact that the government now is taking a greater interest in the home and community life of the farmer; that it is seeking to relieve the tedium of farm labor by encouraging the things that tend to make the boy on the farm satisfied.

The boys of the corn club are spending their days in the inspection of some of Delaware county's model farms, where they devote their time in grading farm products and judging stock.

THE MARKETS

23 CENTS DIFFERENCE IN OLD AND NEW OATS

According to the prices received by farmers on the street market Thursday morning, there remains a difference of twenty-three cents in the prices paid for new and old oats. The new grain which is very variable in quality brought thirty-seven cent a bushel while the old sold for sixty cents. Only one load of old oats appeared on the market and that was quickly bought by grain dealers.

With the wheat market remaining firm another day and receipts very light, all other markets followed its example. Trading was low in grains although the Barr street market was the scene of lively business and enough produce was offered to fill the baskets of all those who came to buy.

Thirteen loads of hay were weighed at the city scales and prices varied from $12 to $14, one dollar higher than the previous day. Corn prices remained at the high figure of ninety cents. Four loads appeared on the street. Nine loads of oats tipped the scales.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Aug. 26.—War shares were again the dominant feature at the opening of today's market, gaining 2 to almost 5 points. Lackawanna Steel scored the new high price of 68 on a further gain of 3½ and New York Air Brake rose 4½ to 51 while Studebaker advanced 3. Other issues to record further improvement included General Motors, General Electric, Westinghouse and Willys-Overland. U. S. Steel held its leadership with an opening sale of 8,000 shares at 75¾ to 76, a rise of 1 point with a similar gain for the preferred at 112⅝. Among miscellaneous issues General Chemical was prominent for its ten point advance.

Coppers rivaled war specialties later, their activity resulting largely from London advices reporting a substantial overnight rise in the metal there. Anaconda, Utah and American Smelting rose 2 to almost 3 points over yesterday's close, and Tennessee Copper also advanced only 1¼ and made the new high record of 55. As an offset, however, there were reactions of 1 to 2½ points in the war stocks and steel while the standard railways, notably Union Pacific, Reading and Pennsylvania were lower. Chicago and Alton preferred, an inactive issue, sold at 22 against its last quotation of 41½. Bonds were irregular.

Whirlwind Campaign to Get New York Employes Won Over.

New York, Aug. 26.—Speakers for the woman suffrage party made a tour of the car barns today to hold a series of meetings in which they hoped to reach every conductor and motorman with an appeal to vote for woman suffrage in the fall election. The automobiles in which they were hurried about the city were loaded with bouquets, campaign buttons and suffrage ribbons.

After inducing a conductor or motorman to promise to vote for suffrage the women planned to put a bouquet in the lapel of his coat, pin a campaign button to his cap and attach to his coat a ribbon bearing the inscription, "Vote for woman suffrage amendment on Nov. 2."

Posters were distributed at all the car barns reading as follows: "Conductors! Motormen! Forget your grouch at us. Give us the vote and we will try to never fall off the car backward, never to climb on in front while in motion, never to forget our transfers, and never to say Johnnie is three when he is ten."

ROOSEVELT FLAYS WILSON POLICIES

Condemns the President for Country's Attitude in War Situation.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 25.—"Don't applaud unless you feel a burning sense of shame because the United States has not stood up for Belgium."

Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, snapped out these words last night at a crowd at the military instruction camp during a speech in which he censured the administration for its attitude in the European war. As he paused after uttering the sentence his audience, consisting of about 4,000 members of the camp and more than 2,000 other persons, burst into wild and prolonged applause.

"The surest way for a nation to invite disaster is to be rich, aggressive and unarmed," the former president said at another time in speaking of preparedness. In a statement made at the railway station shortly before leaving for New York, Colonel Roosevelt defended his criticism of the administration's course in the present situation.

"I wish to make one comment on the statement so frequently made that we must stand by the president," he said. "I heartily subscribe to this on condition, and only on condition that it is followed by the statement 'so long as the president stands by the country.'"

Colonel Roosevelt started to speak shortly before dark. He was introduced by Major General Leonard Wood. Ere the colonel was fairly launched in his address it became too dark for him to see his manuscript and a lantern was brought for him to read by. Several times he digressed from his written address.

"No man is fitted," he said once, looking away from the printed page, "to be a citizen of a free country unless he is willing to defend that country," and loud applause followed.

The former president condemned the government for having "not taken the smallest step in the way of preparedness to defend our own rights." Germany he condemned as "utterly brutal and ruthless in its disregard of international morality," and declared that it "would be a base abandonment of morality" for American manufacturers of munitions of war to refuse to make shipments "for the use of the armies that are striving to restore Belgium to its own people."

Munition makers who refused to make such shipments should be put, he said, on a "roll of dishonor." He added that they should be encouraged "so that we may abe able to hold our own when the hour of peril comes to us in our turn."

OSTEOPATHY IS DIFFERENT

IS BETTER—IS A DISTINCT ADVANCEMENT OVER MEDICAL TREATMENT IN STOMACH DISORDERS.

(State Educational Bureau.)

The stomach is, perhaps, the most abused organ of the body. Not only is it made the receptacle of every imaginable food mixture, but it is also insulted by being called upon to receive the nauseating, irritating and poisonous concoctions administered as medical agents by well-meaning, though misguided, individuals.

If your mind has been biased by medical teaching, the fact that disorder in the upper dorsal region of your spine can, and does, affect the stomach may seem impossible. But truth has always seemed queer to the stranger, or when she has been revealed to mankind, she has invariably met with bitter opposition and derision. Familiarity, however, does not breed contempt when Truth is concerned. Therefore, upon careful and thoughtful consideration, the truths of Osteopathy meet with a ready acceptance on the part of every conscientious investigator. Osteopathy gives the stomach a square deal. It does not add to its burdens.

The Osteopath does not close his eyes to any of the factors that may be operative in any case of stomach disorder. On the contrary he studies the diet and habits of the patient, and, above all, gives special attention to any possible handicaps that may exist in the body interfering with the circulation or nervous energy to the stomach. By adjusting all such handicaps the organ is given adequate opportunity to utilize its own resources in fighting its own battles, and the natural result is Health.

Another point ought to be mentioned here, and that is the permanency of Osteopathic cures. The results of Osteopathic treatment are based upon removal of the cause, and it is obvious that when the cause of any disturbance is adjusted, there is no longer any basis for a continuance of such disturbance. Therefore if your stomach is relieved by the ministrations of Osteopathy, this much is certain: It is as permanent as it is possible for any cure to be.

ATTACKS ACTRESS IN HOTEL CHAMBER

Sam Minor, Bellhop at a Hotel, Gets 150 Days at Penal Farm.

Sam Miner, aged 22 years, employed as a bellhop at a hotel, pleaded guilty in the city court Thursday morning, to a charge of assault and battery on Dolly West, aged 18, a burlesque actress who with several other young women of the same troupe, is stopping at that hotel. The attack was made on the young woman while she was asleep in her bedroom. In the city court Miss West, who is an exceedingly pretty young woman, said she was awakened from her sleep about 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning and found Miner on her bed. She screamed and fought her assailant who fled from the room. Patrolman Glen Johnson was called in and Miner was identified as the assailant and arrested. Two other girls of the burlesque troop testified that a short time prior to the attack on Miss West, Miner approached successively at their doors and inquired if they had called. Being told they had not the bellhop disappeared. Then the screams from Miss West's room aroused them. Miner said in his own defense that he had made a "date" with Miss West in her room. This story Miss West indignantly disputed. The other girls of the troupe say that Miss West does not gad the streets, makes no acquaintances and always retires at night soon after her work on the stage is completed and did so Wednesday evening, declining to attend a little gathering of the other women in the room of one of them. Miner only went to work at the hotel Wednesday evening and signalized his first night with a crime. Judge Kerr fined him $20 and costs and added 120 days at the penal farm, all of which will keep him there for the next five months. Miner's person and appearance do not indicate that any girl would pick him out for a "mash" even in the dark.

Bill Jacobs Gets His.

For the second time within a year Mabel Miller complained to the police that Bill Jacobs, for whom she is housekeeper at 126 Brackenridge street, had committed assault and battery on her. In the city court Thursday morning William pleaded in mitigation that he was thoroughly soused Wednesday evening when the assault took place and did not know what he did. He was found guilty and fined $20 and costs by Judge Kerr, who admonished the Miller woman that all things considered, it would be well for her to break away from William.

Other City Court Cases.

Jim Murphy, just in, staged a welcome-to-our-city function for the behoof and honor of himself and two hours later was found down and out at Berry street and Maiden Lane. He drew eleven days and will remain longer than was contemplated in his original plan.

William McDevitt, also a very recent arrival and a stranger in a strange land, put on his own reception and after getting thoroughly polluted, much to the scandal of the community and the indignation of a policeman, was picked from his bed in the street. He promised diligence in taking his departure and was given thirty minutes.

Frank Wilson, a loiterer, taken from a boxcar in the Lake Shore yards, had 85 cents and a liking for freedom. Thirty minutes was the limit put on his presence with immunity from arrest and he drilled.

Wesleyan Gray, an aged paralytic who is almost helpless, was continued a day on a loitering charge and an effort will be made to get him into the poor house.

Judge Kerr put Ralph Strebig, a 17-year-old lad who had pleaed guilty to the theft of a bicycle, on probation for thirty days and let him go on his own recognizance.

Harry Shaffer, a drunk, was turned loose, and Isabel Wells, charged with drunkenness, was continued until Friday for trial under $25 bond.

Napoleon said, "Victory is on the side of the heaviest batallions." That is equally true upon the battlefields of business. Our great business wins over all competition by reason of its size and the completeness of its organization. Foster's.
